

CAA CONSIDERING
4TH EAST-WEST
AIR EXPRESSWAY
ACROSS THE U.S.

3 Paths From North to South Likely to Be Ordered Also to Improve Safety, Agency Chief Says.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 2—The establishment of a fourth transcontinental sky expressway, in which all airplanes would be under "absolute" ground control as a means of avoiding collisions, was indicated here yesterday.

James T. Pyle, chief of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, also said the setting up of three air expressways from north to south, and also under rigid ground control, is under consideration.

At present, commercial airliners in clear weather usually fly on a "see or be seen" basis, with their pilots responsible for avoiding collisions. Under ground control, they would be assigned definite altitudes and horizontal spacing from other aircraft, thus reducing the hazard of collision.

Also, military planes, which now fly more or less on their own, without any civilian control, would be barred from these skyways unless they filed flight plans in advance, and submitted to ground control, too. Military aircraft would be prohibited from flying across the expressways also.

Three Effective June 15.

The two collisions of military jet planes with commercial airliners within the last six weeks, with a loss of 61 lives, brought about the setting up of three transcontinental expressways. They will go into operation June 15. Linking New York and Washington with Los Angeles and San Francisco, they are 40 miles wide and at altitudes of from 17,000 to 22,000 feet.

Pyle gave no hint of when the fourth transcontinental expressway would be set up, or any indication of its location. He indicated the North-South routes may link New York and Miami, Detroit and Miami, and Chicago and Miami.

By the Associated Press.

The Air Transport Association today endorsed legislation to set up a federal aviation agency to co-ordinate control of the skyways. However, it called for some changes in the bills now before congressional committees.

Milton Arnold, A.T.A. vice president and a retired Air Force brigadier general, outlined the association's views at a news conference. A.T.A. represents the scheduled airlines. Arnold said bills by Senator Mike Monroney (Dem., Mont.), and Representative Oren Harris (Dem., Ark.), provide "an excellent framework" on which to build a system that would provide greater safety against aerial collisions in the coming age of jet airliners.

But he said the measures should be modified if they are to work to best advantage.

Military Liaison Link.

Arnold said the bills would give military aviation a liaison link with the proposed independent agency. He said A.T.A. would prefer integrating the military directly into the group.

Otherwise, he said, "you would have four practical purposes of the military sniping at the group and going their own way" on air traffic control measures.

Arnold also was critical of proposed provisions for appealing safety standards and regulations that would be fixed by the administrator of the new agency.

He said practically anyone would be able to appeal such matters to the Civil Aeronautics Board. "Things would move slower and be worse than under our present system," he said. "There would be no progress, no traffic control program."

TRUMAN CALLS DE GAULLE
"THE MAN FRANCE NEEDS"

ALGERIA, Spain, June 2 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said yesterday he believes Gen. Charles de Gaulle is the man France needs to overcome its present political difficulties.

Truman gave this opinion to a group of newsmen who boarded the United States liner Independence to greet him on a two-hour stopover on his way to Cannes, France.

The former President, accompanied by his wife, said he plans to spend two weeks in Cannes before proceeding to Paris for another week.

Explorer III Doomed.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 2 (UPI)—America's latest earth satellite will meet its doom this month, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory says. Explorer III, launched last March 26, should end its circling of the earth in the final days of June, the observatory announced yesterday.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC
371; NEW RECORD

Toll Exceeds Estimate of 350—12 Die in Missouri.

CHICAGO, June 2 (AP)—The nation's traffic fatalities for the Memorial day holiday climbed to 371 today, breaking the record toll for the same three-day holiday in 1955.

Late reports were expected to boost the tabulation. The count of dead in accidents covered the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday.

In addition to the 371 killed in traffic, 413 accounted for 130 deaths and 88 died from miscellaneous accidents, an overall total of 589. The traffic toll exceeded the "National Safety Council's pre-holiday estimate of 350.

In Missouri, 12 persons were killed in traffic accidents, four were drowned and three killed in other accidents. Illinois had 22 highway deaths, three drownings and six miscellaneous fatalities.

In last year's four-day Memorial day holiday, 413 persons were killed in highway accidents.

HAGERTY SAYS
PRESIDENT WILL KEEP ON GOLFING

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower is going to keep on playing golf to recharge his battery by getting into the open air and away from the burdens of his office.

"He needs the exercise; he is going to continue to play golf," Presidential Press Secretary James G. Hagerty said yesterday.

Hagerty discussed the President's golfing on a transcribed television interview with Representative Kenneth Keating (Rep., N.Y.).

He said the President doesn't pay any attention to suggestions of some people that "he plays too much golf and has too long vacations."

He termed "completely ridiculous" rumors that the President might retire before the end of his term. "What part of the reports 'politically inspired'?"

SPUTNIK III SAID TO TRANSMIT DATA TO RUSSIA ALONE

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Tass reported yesterday that Sputnik III, though it sends identification signals to the whole world, tells its scientific secrets only to Russians.

A Soviet news agency dispatch from Moscow said that a duplicate of the 1½-ton satellite is on display with copies of Sputnik I and II at the All-Union Industry Fair which opened Saturday in Moscow.

Its account said: "Guides at the exhibit tell visitors that observations gathered by Sputnik III's heavy load of scientific instruments while the satellite is not over Soviet territory are 're-membered'—presumably on tape—and transmitted to earth only over Soviet territory. The guides also say that the only apparatus capable of receiving and decoding the information is in the Soviet Union."

5-DAY WEATHER OUTLOOK:
INTERMITTENT RAIN,
RISING TEMPERATURES

INTERMITTENT rain and slightly higher temperatures are expected in the St. Louis area in the next five days, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecast.

The forecast is: Precipitation will occur as intermittent showers or thunderstorms toward the end of the five-day period; temperatures are expected to average 3 to 5 degrees above normal with only minor day-to-day changes; normal highs are in the low 80s; normal lows in the low 60s.

Utah Town Makes Big Things
Out of Nearby Dinosaur Bones

DINOSAUR MONUMENT, Utah, June 2 (AP)—The chief industry of this arid country is the bones of dinosaurs that lived in steaming bogs millions of years ago.

In nearby Vernal, Utah, cafes and motels hand out dinosaur hunting licenses to tourists.

"Special permit," they read, "issued by authority, United States Reptile Control Commission." The "licenses" are put out by the Vernal Chamber of Commerce, which gave away 60,000 last year.

"Dinoh lives here," proclaims a sign in front of the Utah Fieldhouse of Natural History in Vernal. Nearby is a towering dinosaur skeleton, 76 feet long and 21 feet high. There's always

State Dept. Answers Protest Against Buzzing of Suspicious Trawlers 100 Miles Off Canada.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—The State Department has notified Russia, in response to a Soviet complaint, that the United States Navy is keeping close watch on shipping in the ocean approaches to the United States.

Moscow had protested that United States aircraft had buzzed Soviet trawlers in international waters near the Grand Banks, southwest of Nova Scotia.

State Department Press Officer Lincoln White said today the Soviet complaint was made about mid-April and that it received a prompt answer. Privately, informants said the behavior of the Soviet trawler fleet along sea and air routes between the United States east coast and Europe was suspicious in some respects.

The Russian vessels were said to be in waters which are not normally heavily fished. They seem to have a large amount of electronic detection equipment such as radar. The number of vessels is constant, one arriving as another departs.

Necessary to Approach. Asked about the nature of the United States reply to Moscow, White said it followed the lines of this statement which he had just made to reporters on the situation:

"The United States Navy conducts routine surveillance of shipping in the ocean approaches to the United States. Soviet trawlers have been sighted from time to time. In conducting the surveillance it is sometimes necessary to approach within visual identification range of ships being investigated."

"Freedom of navigation in the open seas is not violated in any manner by such reconnaissance," the statement asserted.

American officials have been wondering what, besides fishing, six Russian vessels may be doing about 100 miles off Canada's east coast. An official said they were not breaking any law by being where they are. But there was speculation that they might be engaged in observing movements of American and Canadian ships and aircraft. Planes assigned to the United States Navy's Atlantic barrier aircraft warning system fly over that region in operating out of an air station at Argentia, Newfoundland.

Submarine Attacked. Concern over Soviet activities off the North American mainland follows a recent announcement in Buenos Aires that Argentine warships had depth-charged an unidentified submarine off the Argentine coast. It also highlights continuing investigations of sightings of unidentified submarines off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of this country.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy said Thursday that this government believes there have been "Russian subs in the waters off our country, the Atlantic waters. We don't think that Russian subs have come into our territorial waters and I don't think they will."

"We are always concerned about any potential enemy weapon being around," McElroy said, "but under the law of the seas he has a right to be offshore if he doesn't come too close."

DE GAULLE IS VOTED POWER TO RULE BY DECREE, HANDED
SETBACK ON REFORM ISSUE

U.S. OFFICIALLY OPTIMISTIC OVER GENERAL, AWAITS HIS NEXT MOVES

Hopeful That He Will Continue Co-operation With West—Sees Him as Still Unknown Quantity.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (UPI)—The chief Washington reaction today to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's investment as the new French Premier was one of relief that France apparently has emerged from its crisis without civil war.

Officials from the President down expressed hopeful confidence that De Gaulle's government would continue to work closely with this country and Britain in moves aimed at bolstering the West against the Soviet military, economic and political challenge.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles were expected to discuss the French situation at a conference today.

Despite the official optimism, "line," high-ranking authorities emphasized De Gaulle still largely an unknown quantity. They made it plain any real assessment of his role must await his future moves.

White House Statement. The White House, in a statement issued yesterday at Gettysburg, Pa., shortly after De Gaulle's appointment, said: "We have been witnessing with sympathy and understanding the difficult days through which France has been passing and we are gratified that the French crisis is now being resolved."

"Gen. De Gaulle has assumed heavy responsibilities at a critical juncture in French history. Our thoughts go out to the great French nation, wishing it well in the tasks ahead."

"We look forward to the continuation of the intimate and friendly relations which have always characterized our long association with France."

This statement obviously pre-empted the approval of both the President and the State Department.

'Beneficial' to U.S. Efforts. Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy expressed belief yesterday that De Gaulle's rise to power would be "beneficial" to United States efforts to build up West European defenses.

McElroy told a television audience he was confident the calling of De Gaulle would make no change in France's status as this country's "traditional ally and that the French leader would honor France's commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

McElroy also voiced belief that De Gaulle's expected greater authority would result in "more decisive action" by the French government, not

CABINET HOLDS HIS BACKERS IN ALGERIA; CALLED A SLAP IN FACE

One Provincial Leader Says Mobs Will Be Crying 'Down With De Gaulle' Within Month.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ALGIERS, June 2—The All-Algeria Committee of Public Safety was filled with bitter disappointment and dissension today over Gen. Charles de Gaulle's choice of a cabinet.

One member of the committee, a right-wing French settler, told the Post-Dispatch the selections amounted to a slap in the face to the Algerian insurrection that pushed De Gaulle into power. He predicted that the Algerian mobs that have been chanting "Vive De Gaulle" since the May 13 insurrection would be shouting "Down with De Gaulle" within a month.

Protest Reported Sent. This source also said that Leon Delbecq, vice president of the Committee of Public Safety, had written a letter of protest to De Gaulle immediately after the names of the new cabinet members became known here at mid-afternoon yesterday.

Delbecq later denied this report and repeated the official line of "confidence in De Gaulle." But the French politicians who helped stir up the insurrection here told newsmen the De Gaulle cabinet "is not yet the government of public safety hoped for."

It was given over by Col. Charles Lacheroy, spokesman for Gen. Raoul Salan, military ruler of Algeria. Lacheroy told a crowded press conference that De Gaulle's accession to the French premiership made it a "day of victory."

Not 'Arguing With Doctor.' In the name of Salan, the colonel said he would have only one comment on the De Gaulle cabinet: "We have confidence in Gen. De Gaulle. When you call in a doctor you wish with him about the treatment he decides to give you."

Behind that front, the right-wing settlers, who make up the bulk of the 71-member committee, were reported convinced that the cabinet selections "were necessary as a sop" to the Socialist and other French parties that joined in bringing De Gaulle to power.

These right-wingers were said to be confident that a new cabinet would be named in a few days giving representation to the Algerian insurgent movement.

The 12 army officers on the committee on the other hand were said to be backing De Gaulle to the hilt.

Omission of Soustelle. Not one of the insurrectionists appeared on the cabinet list. The most obvious omission was Jacques Soustelle, the French politician who wants Algeria to remain French at any price and who fled here shortly after the insurrection that forced Premier Pflimlin to resign.

Soustelle is perhaps the greatest hero of the Algerian insurrection next to De Gaulle and many took it for granted he would be in the cabinet.

It was Soustelle's dramatic appeal for "integration"—political, social and economic equality for Algeria's 8,700,000 Moslems with its 1,000,000 Europeans under French law—that seemed to Algerian settlers to open the door to a deliverance from the three and one-half-year civil war and from fears of Algerian independence.

Ardent insurrectionists were especially irate over a widely believed rumor that Max Lejeune, Socialist former minister of the Sahara, had been chosen minister for Algeria as well. As yet Lejeune has been named only as a minister of state without portfolio.

An atmosphere of expectation lay over Algiers as word came that De Gaulle would arrive here Wednesday. Security forces were strengthened. Soldiers armed with submachine guns or rifles have been stationed on street corners and cruising about in jeeps ever since martial law was imposed May 13. Their number appeared to have doubled yesterday.

For the first time in three weeks there was no demonstration in the forum facing the

PROBLEM FACES
BRITISH SOLDIER

CARLISLE, England, June 2 (UPI)—Sgt. Toni Mallet of the Seventh-fourth Medium Royal Artillery was under official orders today to grow another luxurious handlebar mustache.

It will be the second he has had to grow this year.

The Seventy-fourth Medium defeated a French unit known as "Les Moustaches" at Martiniq in the Napoleonic wars. Every year since the tallest man in the regiment has carried the battle ax trophy of that engagement in a victory celebration parade.

Mallet, 6 feet, 4 inches, grew a fine handlebar for the event in February. Then he shaved it off.

Now, however, Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are to visit the regiment and the parade will be repeated for them.

"Grow that mustache again," ordered the commanding officer.

"Yes sir," said Mallet, "I shall do my best."

He has eight days.

CONFLICT OVER
PENCIL STOPS
HUGE PROJECT

CALCUTTA, India, June 2 (UPI)—A controversy over a penny pencil is holding up construction of a multi-million dollar steel plant at Rourkella in Orissa state, it was reported today.

Reports said 200 West German construction men employed by the Krupp engineering combine quit work Friday because a security guard objected when one of them bought a pencil from a village peddler in their hotel.

The guard protested at the entry of the hawk into the hotel without a permit but the German insisted that the peddler remain until he had selected a pencil.

The enraged guard and several villagers stoned the hotel and the Germans retaliated by refusing to report to work.

He was charged with being a disorderly person.

ASSEMBLY UNIT THROWS OUT HIS
CONSTITUTION

PARIS, June 2 (UPI)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle today won continuance of emergency powers over Algeria and extraordinary rights to rule for six months without parliamentary interference. But he suffered a major setback on the issue of constitutional reform.

Within a day of taking office, De Gaulle thus was faced with the choice of backing down or putting his regime to an immediate test in a reluctant and still partly hostile National Assembly.

The lawmakers spun through the Algerian powers bill in routine fashion, as they had done often for recent French governments. With less enthusiasm, they gave De Gaulle a modified right to rule by decree for a fixed period of time. But they balked on the final portion of his program, constitutional reform, designed to save France from chaos.

The situation for France again could become critical. A government spokesman issued a statement earlier in the day implying that De Gaulle could wash his hands of the whole business unless he wins on all three issues.

The deputies flung down their first serious challenge to the General when the Assembly's Committee on Universal Suffrage tossed out his bill on constitutional reforms.

Substitute Own Measure. The committee did not even vote on De Gaulle's measure, which would have empowered him to put governmental constitutional amendments directly to the people instead of going through Parliament.

Instead, it put together a measure of its own and sent it to the Assembly for consideration tonight. The watered-down version was approved in committee by a vote of 21 to 11, with nine abstentions. The Communists supported it.

The committee's action was a straight challenge to De Gaulle. Either he would have to accept the committee's rewritten bill, or insist on passage of his own bill by the full Assembly and make it a confidence issue on which his Government would stand or fall.

The government already had rewritten its own bill today after earlier committee difficulties.

Its revised version would have:

1. Given the Government the right to reform the 1946 constitution so as to provide for a stronger executive and more stable governments.

2. Had the drafting of the new revised constitution carried out by the Government in consultation with a special committee, two-thirds of whose members were to be named by the two houses of Parliament.

3. Submitted the draft of the revised constitution to the nation for approval by a popular referendum while Parliament itself is in recess.

Substitute Proposals. The Assembly's committee threw out these proposals. In their place it substituted a bill under which the revised constitution would be submitted to the Assembly for approval. There would be a referendum only if the Assembly failed within three months to adopt it by an absolute majority of the Assembly's 595 members.

The committee's action did not mean the government's bill was thrown out once and for all. But it left little doubt that the Government's draft would in fact be defeated by the full Assembly unless the government made it a confidence issue—perhaps even then.

The news was conveyed immediately to De Gaulle, who was seeing a succession of public figures at his Hotel La Perouse headquarters.

The next move would have to come from the Government when the Assembly reconvened at 9 p.m.

By the Associated Press.

The Assembly voted 322 to 232 to grant De Gaulle sweeping powers to govern by decree for six months.

The measure was sent immediately to the French Senate, where De Gaulle supporters hope to ram it through today and clear the way for the new

DULLES TO SEE EISENHOWER ON REPLY TO RUSSIA ON A-TEST BAR

Khrushchev's Proposal Differs Some With That of U.S. But No Serious Hitches Are Indicated.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have scheduled a foreign policy conference to discuss, among other things, a new reply to Russia on nuclear test talks.

The President received a letter from Soviet Premier Khrushchev Saturday agreeing to open talks among scientific experts of the United States, Russia and other countries later this month.

Khrushchev raised several points, concerning place and membership, which required a presidential response.

The immediate issue is how to organize a proposed conference of scientific experts. Their task will be to try to work out means agreeable to both Russia and the Western powers for detecting any violations once an agreement to halt testing is ratified.

There is no such agreement now, although Russia announced earlier this year that it was stopping tests and the United States and Britain have been considering a moratorium.

The President in a letter to Khrushchev May 24 suggested that both sides send scientific experts to Geneva in three weeks to work out the detection system. He proposed including British, French and probably other scientists along with three topflight American physicists.

Khrushchev replied that he was agreeable to the proposed starting time. According to official informants, he also raised the question of including Polish and Czech scientists and possibly having men also from neutral countries such as India.

He called for a final report in about a month—rather than two months—from the opening date of the technical sessions. United States officials said the Khrushchev proposition seemed to raise no difficult barriers to getting the talks under way in middle or late June. Khrushchev did say he would like the meeting held in Moscow, but pending a further study of this point officials here thought the President probably would stick to his proposal of Geneva as a neutral meeting place.

Khrushchev, Terms Canadian Arguments Artificial.
NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Tass news agency made public last night a letter from Premier Khrushchev reproaching Canadian Prime Minister Diefenbaker for not getting the United States and Britain to halt nuclear weapons tests.

The letter, dated May 30, was in reply to a Diefenbaker note delivered earlier in the month. In that letter, the Canadian prime minister said the Soviet announcement of unilateral suspension of nuclear weapons tests is not a substitute for international agreement on the question.

Khrushchev wrote that Diefenbaker's letter showed "the distrust of the Soviet Union which it constantly cultivated in the North Atlantic pact organization."

He termed "highly artificial argumentation" Diefenbaker's charge that Soviet veto of an Arctic plane patrol had weakened the Soviet stand on nuclear tests. He attacked United States plane flights in that region and asked Diefenbaker how he would like Soviet planes flying toward Canada's borders.

He said he was disappointed that Canada has done nothing to persuade the United States and Britain to stop their tests.

French Envoy Ends Big Three Talks With Gromyko.
MOSCOW, June 2 (UPI)—French Ambassador Maurice Dejean called on Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today to round out the latest series of meetings between Gromyko and the Big Three western ambassadors.

United States Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson met Gromyko Saturday. The British Ambassador, Sir Patrick Reilly, called earlier last week.

All three were believed to have handed memoranda to Gromyko concerning the resumption of talks on the proposed summit meeting. Strict secrecy was being observed in western embassies, however, and there was no official confirmation.

In London diplomatic sources said the West had offered to resume talks with Gromyko at ambassadorial level with a view to arranging a meeting of foreign ministers later this summer to set the stage for a summit conference.)

STROMBOLI VOLCANO ERUPTS

STROMBOLI, Italy, June 2 (AP)—The volcano on this little island off the north coast of Sicily poured out a stream of lava yesterday. It ran down the mountainside and sized into the sea.
The eruption began Saturday night, providing a fiery spectacle for tourists. The lava stream was a mile or more from the nearest village.

To Be Members of De Gaulle Cabinet

Three former premiers named in Cabinet list submitted by Gen. Charles de Gaulle yesterday. Left to right are: GUY MOLLET, ANTOINE PINAY and PIERRE PFLIMLIN. Pinay was named finance minister; Mollet and Pflimlin are scheduled to become state ministers or deputy premiers.

Others on Cabinet list are (from left): MAURICE COUVE de MURVILLE, a foreign ministry career man designated as foreign minister; FELIX HOUPHOUET-BOIGNY, a West African Negro leader, and LOUIS JACQUINOT of the Independent-Republican party, both of whom are slated to become state ministers or deputy premiers.

Make-Up of De Gaulle's Cabinet: Politicians, Experts, Moderates

Included Are Two Ex-Premiers Who Opposed Him and Four Over-All 'Ministers of State.'

PARIS, June 2 (UPI)—Premier Charles de Gaulle's cabinet is a combination of politicians and non-partisan experts, representing France's moderate parties and excluding extremists of both right and left.

Two of its members are declared supporters of De Gaulle. Two others, each a former premier, did their best to prevent his coming to power. The others range between these extremes. None is a Communist.

Four Party Leaders.
At the top are four "Ministers of State"—men without specific duties who are expected to be top-level advisers of the premier. They are:

Guy Mollet, Socialist leader who held office as Premier longer than any of the other 25 men who have been appointed to the job since World War II. Mollet was an outspoken foe of De Gaulle but eventually was won over to his cause.

Louis Jacquinot, Independent Republican, a pro-Gaullist former overseas minister. He joined the underground immediately after France's surrender in 1940, and escaped through Spain to serve on De Gaulle's staff as organizer of the Free French navy.

Pierre Pflimlin, popular Republican, De Gaulle's predecessor as Premier and his principal foe in the early days of the French crisis. The new Premier installed him despite opposition from his rebel supporters in Algeria.

Felix Houphouet-Boigny, African Democratic Rally party, a Negro from the Ivory Coast who has served in France's past four cabinets. By including him, De Gaulle emphasized his determination to keep the peace in French "black Africa."

Heads of Ministries.

Other ministers include: Foreign Affairs—Maurice Couve de Murville, non-partisan, a career diplomat who has served as ambassador to Washington and Bonn. He has a reputation of support for the Atlantic pact and efforts to unify Europe.

Interior—Maurice Pelletier, a non-political expert who has served as governor of the provinces of Somme, Aisne and Seine. In the latter capacity, his most recent job, he was responsible for the Paris area.

Defense—Pierre Guillaumat, non-partisan technician who has held high administrative positions in Indochina and Tunisia and has served as a government expert on mines and atomic energy.

Technically, Guillaumat is to be known as "minister of the armies," although officially he replaced outgoing Defense Minister Pierre de Chevigne. Where De Chevigne was a policymaker, Guillaumat is expected to be simply an administrator and technical adviser.

Pinay Handling Finance.
Finance—Antoine Pinay, Independent Republican, ex-Premier who served as a go-between in negotiations with De Gaulle during the current crisis.

Justice—Michel Debre, Social Republican (Gaullist) Senator who fought in the Resistance and served as a legal expert in De Gaulle's postwar government.

Education—Jean Berthoin, Radical Socialist Senator who has served previously as director of the security police (Surete Nationale) and inspector-general of the French Administration in Algeria.

Labor—Paul Bacon, Popular Republican, a veteran unionist who has held the same post in a number of cabinets, including the two most recent.

Overseas—Bernard Cornut-Gentile, non-partisan, a former provincial governor who has served also as high commissioner in North Africa. Since 1957, Cornut has been ambassador to Argentina.

Algeria—Max Lejeune, a Socialist leader and former Sahara minister who advocates a firm policy in Algeria.

Information—Andre Malraux, Social Republican, famed author who served in the same post in De Gaulle's postwar government.

U.S. OIL FIRMS DROP ARGENTINE INVESTMENT IDEA

BUENOS AIRES, June 2—The major oil companies of the United States are abandoning their idea of investing millions of dollars in Argentine oil development, it was learned yesterday.

Virtually all these companies sent special envoys here in recent weeks expecting Argentina's new President Arturo Frondizi to open the country's oilfields to private enterprise.

These envoys now are returning from Buenos Aires convinced there will be no attractive opportunities for private oil capital for the time being.

Frondizi evidently has decided that nationalism is still too strong and political risks still too great to permit him to open the oilfields to private companies.

He recently repeated his readiness to conclude contracts with private companies. But he made it clear he would pay them only fixed fees. There would be no participation in profits.

TUNISIA ASKS U.N. HELP OUST FRENCH TROOPS

However, Georges-Picot Charges N. African State Failed to Negotiate in Good Faith.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., June 2—Tunisian Ambassador Mongi Slim formally requested the United Nations Security Council today "to take all appropriate steps" to assist in removing French troops from Tunisia.

The unprovoked bombings of Tunisian villages and "the many bloody attacks" by French intruders constituted "armed aggression, clear-cut and simple," he said.

Slim spoke as the Council met in special session to take up Tunisian and French countercharges arising out of recent violence in that North African country.

French Ambassador Guillaume Georges-Picot in reply accused Tunisia of failing to deal in good faith in private negotiations. He said recent violence at Remada and elsewhere was incited by the actions of Tunisian leaders.

Georges-Picot sought Security Council adjournment after it "invited" Tunisia, in conformity with the U.N. Charter, to carry on negotiations now in progress with France and to restore immediately within its borders "all conditions suitable for the speedy conclusion of these negotiations," satisfactory for both countries.

He described French military action as "self-defense," declaring that "Tunisia has not shown herself worthy of the demonstrations of trust which have been lavished upon her."

Tunis claims capacity to assume international responsibilities, but "at the same time wants to free itself of the commitments undertaken" in treaties with France, Georges-Picot added.

Slim declared that with the establishment of control in Algeria by military men seeking the selection of Gen. Charles de Gaulle as Premier, statements were made there that action would be taken in Tunisia "with or without consulting Paris."

He alleged that all violence in Tunisia had resulted from French action, "perhaps inspired by French forces in Algeria."

Slim charged that the fighting at Remada took place when French soldiers sought to destroy a barrier manned by Tunisian troops. He said

Helicopters Used to Spot Riots And Mass Police Quickly in Paris

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

PARIS, June 2—As the French National Assembly met to hear Gen. Charles de Gaulle, numerous left-wing-inspired riots broke in Paris yesterday.

White noise was of a large-scale nature, many minor injuries were reported.

Most of the scuffles occurred as bands of left-wingers, most of them Communists, marched in the streets of the capital, mainly in the districts near the Place de la Republique. They carried anti-De Gaulle signs and shouted slogans against the General, against Fascism and against the army in Algeria.

No serious demonstrations materialized near the National Assembly where heavy forces of police were massed in adjoining streets.

Since dawn, police had been on the lookout for mass meetings. Guided by radio from helicopters, they were kept busy during the day rushing in trucks from one area of disturbance to another. They often met the crowds almost on the double, wielding their clubs.

The situation appeared serious by late afternoon when the separate groups of marchers joined on the Place de la Republique and on Place de la Bastille.

It was estimated that at certain times the crowds were several thousand strong in these areas but their action seemed to be unco-ordinated.

"other acts of vandalism" had taken place in areas "off-bound" for French troops.

He said the presence of French troops against the will of his country was incompatible with conduct toward an independent state. He said Tunisia had tried direct negotiation with Paris without avail.

He also cited the mediation efforts of the U.N. "good offices" committee, composed of Britain and the United States. He said Tunisia had demonstrated more than human patience before calling on the council for aid.

Slim also asked the Security Council to "invite France solemnly" to stop sending soldiers to Tunisia, to halt sending naval units to its waters and to end all embarking and parachuting. Tunis has charged that paratroopers have made incursions in Tunisian territory. Despite agreements with Paris, Slim added, France has expanded military movements to forbidden points in his country.

He urged the Security Council to "note the aggression" and to "repel the aggressor by doing away with its causes."

This United Nations cannot

This led observers to believe that while the Communist party must have encouraged such demonstrations, it did not actually organize one on a large scale.

Other scuffles, caused mostly by left-wing students, developed in the Latin Quarter, with demonstrators slinging pavement stones at the helmeted riot police.

Groups of rioters marched down Boulevard Raspail and were met by advancing members of the Compagnie Republique de Securite, the toughest members of the police and specialized in breaking up riots.

The police soon dispersed the marchers into adjoining streets.

While traffic had been kept going on the Place de la Republique, it was interrupted mid-afternoon, when police blocked off most of the streets leading into the large square.

On the place itself, demonstrators marched, carrying the French flag and singing the Marseillaise and a group laid a wreath of flowers at the foot of the huge statue which symbolizes the republic.

Smaller disorders were noted elsewhere in France.

Demonstrations broke out in Rouen, in northwestern France, and in Avignon in the south, but were quickly quelled. Communists of Marseille issued a call for massive demonstrations.

do unless it places at the disposal of Tunis "all the necessary means" of resistance, he added, but did not amplify the remark by defining the term.

It has been reported that Tunisia unsuccessfully sought arms from the United States.

The French counter-complaint accuses Tunisia of violating agreements permitting France to maintain military bases in the former French protectorate. France has been trying to prevent Algerian rebels from getting arms from Tunisia.

Politically, Tunisia opposes the ambition of the De Gaulleists and other French power groups to "keep Algeria French."

Tunisia and France both sought United States support on the issue before the council.

The United States faced a hard choice. If it backs Tunisia, it will offend the new French government of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. If it backs France as a NATO ally, it will offend Tunisian president Habib Bourguiba's pro-Western regime. If it abstains it will please neither side.

HOUSE SEEKING U.S. ACCORD ON SPACE FOR PEACE

Military Bar Proposed in Adopted Resolution—Joint Exploration Urged Also.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (UPI)—The House unanimously passed today a resolution calling for the United States to seek an international agreement reserving space for peace.

The resolution, passed by a voice vote, now goes to the Senate.

The vote came immediately before the House began to debate legislation that would set up a national aeronautics and space Administration, a new civilian agency.

The House Space Committee has proposed that the N.A.S.A. start spending a billion dollars a year by 1962 in order to "leap frog" Russia in the conquest of space. It recommended a half-billion dollar program this year.

The resolution said "the United States should strive through the United Nations, or such other means as may be most appropriate, for an international agreement banning the use of outer space for military purposes."

It also calls for the United States to seek an international agreement providing for joint exploration of outer space and establishing a method of settling space disputes.

Finally, it calls for an international agreement "providing for joint co-operation in advancement of scientific developments which can be expected to flow from the exploration of outer space."

The resolution was cleared in advance with State Department legal advisers.

Both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles have urged that space be dedicated to peaceful purposes.

Several prominent scientists have proposed calling an international conference to seek agreement on at least the launching of satellites.

SUPPLY, DEMAND LAW BREAKDOWN SAID TO BE CAUSE OF RECESSION

Business Leaders Differ on Solutions in Response to Poll Conducted by Senate Finance Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—A group of the nation's top industrialists and business leaders agreed today that the chief cause of the recession was a breakdown of the "law" of supply and demand.

But they disagreed on ways to bring the two back into balance and on the role the government should play in revitalizing the economy.

Some of them suggested tax cuts. Several advocated stepped-up government expenditures for public works and other projects. Others called for curbs on labor union powers.

A task also was delegated to business itself—to give the consumer more attractive products at lower prices.

The views were given in response to a questionnaire sent out Feb. 17 by the Senate Finance Committee, which last year began a study of the country's financial condition.

Bottom of Slump. The replies showed that most of the 14 executives believed the nation had just about reached the bottom of the slump.

Two company presidents—Ralph Cordiner of General Electric and F. W. Ecker of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.—said the Government should play its major function in providing financial help to the unemployed and in encouraging sound monetary policies. While taxes may be high, they doubted the wisdom of cutting them now.

However, Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors, said an across-the-board tax cut would be the simplest and most effective move for the Government to make. He said the psychological impact would go a long way toward restoring confidence in the economy.

Several others advocated tax cutting on a selective basis. Presidents J. W. Keener of the B. F. Goodrich Co., F. E. Jerome of the Seattle First National Bank and Porter M. Jarvis of Swift and Co. called for a sit-tight policy on the part of the Government, at least for the time being.

The possibility of increased government spending was listed as a stopgap measure by Curtice; S. C. Beise, San Francisco banker; Eugene Holman, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey; and Edmund Fitzgerald, president of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Accumulate Surpluses. Most of the 14 took the view that deficit financing by the Government had not contributed greatly to the inflationary spiral. However, they said surpluses should be accumulated when the economy is expanding so that more money is available for government help in slumping periods.

Ecker called for inserting some provision in the federal budget for reducing the national debt in times of prosperity.

Cordiner and Fitzgerald said greater price stability could be achieved by the Government's issuance of long rather than short term securities. The short term borrowings, it was argued, forces the Federal Reserve Bank to pursue a less restrictive monetary policy.

Henry Kaiser, West Coast industrialist, said deflationary measures were vital. He said it was vital that Government regulation of credit not be carried to the point of artificially creating deflation and depression.

George Gund, president of the Cleveland Trust Co., defended the Federal Reserve System. Through a long period of trial, he said, it has developed into a satisfactory mechanism of credit regulation.

D. B. Jenks, president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, said he saw no need to inflation so long as wages increase without a corresponding rise in the productivity rate.

NIGHT WATCHMAN STRUCK ON HEAD AT ST. LOUIS U.

William Power, a night watchman at the St. Louis University Law School, 3648 Lindell boulevard, was struck on the head late Saturday night by an assailant he did not see. Power, if the police he saw some lights on the second floor go off, walked up to investigate, and was struck from behind at the top of the stairs. He was treated at Firmin Desloge Hospital. Nothing was missed at the school.

UNION TO VOTE AGAIN ON M'DONNELL OFFER

Machinists International Orders Reconsideration of Rejected Proposal.

Machinists employed at McDonnell Aircraft Corp., will take a second vote on a company wage offer previously rejected, it was announced today. The action is at the direction of the International Association of Machinists.

A meeting of the 15,000 members of Machinists District 9 employed at the McDonnell plant at Lambert-St. Louis Field has been called for 10 a.m. Saturday in the convention hall at Kiel Auditorium. A secret ballot on the wage offer will be taken, union leaders announced.

The unusual instruction for a second vote was in reply to a request to the international union for sanction of a strike authorized by a rank and file vote April 13.

International union officers at Chicago indicated that the $405 attendance at the strike meeting was not representative of the machinists' force employed at McDonnell.

Local union officers said today they would consider an attendance of approximately 10,000 a proper representation. Lack of interest was given as the probable reason for poor attendance at the previous meeting.

Union representatives conferred with company officials late today on probable changes in the company's so-called "final" wage offer. Any changes will be reported at Saturday's meeting. George Breitenstein, research director for District 9, said.

The company proposed a 28-month contract, with wage increases of 11 to 20 cents the first year and 3 1/2 per cent the second year. Union demands were for a 15-cent cost of living increase, and an additional 6 per cent, or 30 cents in all, which ever was greater. The company offer was rejected by a vote of 2791 to 2614.

McDonnell Aircraft Corp. manufactures military planes for the United States Government and engages in missile development. It is the largest employer in the St. Louis area.

TWO FINED ON GAMBLING, TAVERN HOURS CHARGES

Two persons were fined $25 each on pleas of guilty to charges of gambling and operating a tavern after hours, following a raid on a saloon at 601 Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, early yesterday.

Police, investigating a report at 6:20 a.m. that a man was displaying a revolver in the establishment, failed to find the man, but found Willie White, the proprietor, serving customers, and a dice game running in a rear room.

White was fined for violating the 4 a.m. Sunday closing hour. Mrs. Rosie Washington, in charge of the dice game, was fined on a gambling charge. They entered guilty pleas before Magistrate Howard Langford.

$300 IN SAFE, NEW CAR STOLEN IN EAST ST. LOUIS

A safe containing $300 was stolen from the Bitzer Motor Co., East St. Louis over the weekend, it was learned yesterday. Burglars also stole a new automobile in which to transport the 700-pound box. Entrance to the building at 1250 State street, was gained by breaking a window. The burglars crawled a hole in a wall and crawled into the office of Earl Bitzer, head of the firm. Efforts to open one safe were unsuccessful, and the second safe was hauled away. Bitzer, who discovered the theft late yesterday, said the agency had been closed since Thursday for Memorial day.

DOCTOR PLAYS OUTFIELD BUT STORK SCORES TWICE

PURCELLVILLE, Va., June 2 (AP)—Dr. Keith M. Oliver lets very little interfere with his playing outfield with the semi-pro Purcellville baseball team. Take yesterday for instance. During the course of Purcellville's 6 to 5 victory over Warrenton in 12 innings, Oliver took time out to deliver two babies and treat a woman who suffered a heart attack. Oliver belted two hits. He almost scored the winning run, but was thrown out in a close play at the plate in the tenth.

ALDERMEN DUE TO VOTE ON TAX BILLS THURSDAY

Caucus Scheduled to Discuss Information on Controversial Revenue Plans.

The Board of Aldermen probably will act Thursday on pending tax proposals designed to aid the city in its financial crisis, majority floor leader James W. Noonan (Dem.), Third ward, said today.

The board met briefly today to comply with the law that daily sessions must be held until a budget is adopted. Additional revenue totaling $6,025,880 is sought to bridge the gap between the proposed $64,134,060 city budget and present expected municipal receipts.

The board will caucus Thursday morning to discuss data now being gathered on possible sources of revenue. Noonan said. Additional information is sought, he said, because of opposition expressed to various pending tax bills by organizations and individuals.

Apparently there is little opposition to two of the proposals, while a third measure appears to have sufficient support to assure its passage, Noonan said.

The proposals likely to be voted, he said, are those to end city earnings tax refunds allowed on that portion of income going for federal income tax payments, and a bill for imposition of miscellaneous fees. Revenue yield from the first bill has been estimated at $1,200,000, and from the second, $285,000.

A proposal to boost by 50 cents per $1000 worth of sales under the merchants and manufacturers tax to a new levy of $2 per $1000 appears to have sufficient support for enactment, Noonan said. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment had recommended a 25-cent increase, to yield an additional $875,000 in revenue. The 50-cent rise would bring in an estimated $1,750,000.

Noonan said strong opposition is developing to three other proposals calling for a half-cent increase in the motor fuel tax, a 1-cent boost in the cigarette tax, and a new 5 per cent tax on gross receipts of parking lots and garages. Enactment of the bills would yield an additional $1,785,000.

NEWSPAPER BOOSTS PRICE

MORRISTOWN, N.J., June 2 (AP)—The Morris County Daily Record has increased its price from 5 to 7 cents effective with today's edition. The afternoon newspaper said in a front page statement Saturday that the increase was "necessitated by the steadily rising costs of labor and materials."

GATERER TAKES OVER, ENDS KP DUTY AT BOLLING BASE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—KP duty for the 1200 enlisted men at the Bolling Air Force base here is a thing of the past.

The Prophet Co., a Detroit, Mich., catering firm has taken on the responsibility of feeding all of the men assigned to the base—and the Air Force dining hall across the Potomac river at Fort Myer, Va., as well.

Col. Edwin D. Miller Jr., Bolling commandant, said the changeover from military to civilian cooks and potato peelers was intended to "increase the over-all operational efficiency of the base and to provide for full utilization of manpower (military, that is) in the many work sections at Bolling."

The amount of the contract awarded the Detroit firm was not disclosed.

$900 STOLEN FROM SAFE AT LAWNMOWER COMPANY

A safe belonging to the Balco Equipment Co., a lawnmower sales and repair firm at 7055 Olive street, near University City, was broken open and $900 taken over the weekend, it was discovered last night. A neighbor noticed that a window in the building had been broken, and police were called. The amount of the loss was reported by Roderick Baumann, president of the firm.

BOY, 5, KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO NEAR HOME

Father Was Loading Car, Preparatory to Moving Because of Heavy Traffic.

Craig Hudson, 5 years old, was killed today when he ran into the street in front of his home and was struck by an automobile.

The father, Prince Hudson, who was on the sidewalk loading personal effects into his automobile, told police the family was preparing to move from 4134 Chouteau avenue because of the heavy traffic.

Robert Thompson, a bookkeeper, living in St. Charles, told police he was driving east when the child ran from the south curb into the path of his automobile. Thompson said he applied the brakes, but was unable to avoid the accident. The boy died at City Hospital of a skull injury three hours later.

Wanda Thomas, 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mamie Thomas, 2511 Glasgow avenue, died at Homer G. Phillips Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when she was struck by a station wagon in front of her home Saturday night.

The driver of the vehicle stopped after the child had been carried about 30 feet, got out and looked around and then drove on, witnesses told police. The child had been returning home from a confectionery across the street.

A taxicab driver followed the station wagon and obtained the license number. Some time later O. C. Fearella, of the 1400 block of Hogan street, reported to the Penrose Street police station and said he had heard he was wanted. He said he was in the vicinity of the accident and did stop, but did not know he had hit anyone.

Three men let their lives in a collision near Ste. Genevieve yesterday. They were the R.V. George K. Tregent, pastor of Our Lady Help of Christians Catholic Church at Weingarten, Mo., and Oscar P. Greishaber of New Offenburg, Mo., the driver, and Kenneth Greishaber, 23-year-old son of Oscar. Father Tregent was alone in his automobile.

The Missouri Highway Patrol could find no witnesses of the accident in which the cars ran together on a curve about three miles west of Ste. Genevieve.

Seven residents of the St. Louis area died in traffic accidents in the Memorial day weekend.

Yale Seeks $69,000,000.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 2 (UPI)—Yale University yesterday announced it would start a "five-year-plan" to raise $69,000,000 to meet its most urgent needs.

Wind, Rain Damage Property; Power to 25,000 Homes Cut Off

Telephone Service to 900 Families Interrupted—$20,000 Loss at St. Charles County Fairgrounds.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.) High winds accompanied by heavy rain early yesterday caused extensive damage in the St. Louis area.

Trees and chimneys were blown down, garages unroofed and plate glass windows smashed. Several persons were injured, none seriously. The Weather Bureau reported sustained winds up to 46 miles an hour at the downtown station and gusts of 44 miles an hour at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Rain totaled .16 of an inch downtown, starting at 12:50 a.m., and .26 at the airport.

Electric power was cut off to about 25,000 homes scattered throughout the area, and telephone service interrupted to more than 900 homes. Most of the interruptions were caused by trees falling on lines to individual homes. Virtually all service had been restored by late yesterday afternoon.

Fairgrounds Hardest Hit. Most extensive damage—about $20,000—was at the St. Charles county fairgrounds, near St. Charles. The metal roof of the dairy barn was blown off and supporting posts collapsed. Bleacher seats and fencing on the south side of the grounds were knocked down and part of the hog barn roof torn off.

The home of J. A. Schreiber Jr., 7210 St. Andrew's road, Normandy, had damage estimated at about $4000 when a chimney crashed through the roof into a second-floor bedroom.

A 50-foot cottonwood tree fell through the roof of the home of Lester Suellentrop, 1455 West Duchesne drive, Florissant, damaging the sun porch, living and dining rooms and kitchen.

Home Collapses. Illinois State Police reported the two-room frame home of Herbert Layton at 200 Joe street, in the State Park Place area west of Collinsville, collapsed in the storm while the family was visiting a neighbor.

James W. McRoberts of Belleville, Republican state central committeeman for St. Clair and Madison counties, suffered head injuries when he slipped and fell when trying to start his automobile near his home. He was released after treatment at Christian Welfare Hospital, East St. Louis.

James D. Smith of Rural Route 1, near St. Charles, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital there for cuts of the neck and leg, suffered when a window at his home fell on him as he was trying to replace it in the frame.

In St. Louis, police received many damage reports and the forestry division was busy yesterday removing trees which fell on automobiles and blocked streets.

Plate glass windows were smashed at the Surety Home Savings & Loan Association, 4425 Hampton avenue, and at a Shell oil station at Union and Birchler boulevards.

BURGLARS WORK UP A LATHER, STEAL RAZOR

Frustrated burglars scattered papers over the Dougherty Brothers Tent and Awning Co. offices after intensive but fruitless safe-cracking efforts over the weekend.

Entry was gained to the establishment, 6303 South Broadway, by forcing a window. The burglars apparently switched off a light near one safe and battered off the combination. The safe contained no money.

Another safe was open, but the burglars had to force a door on an inside compartment. They found no money there either. Obviously angered, they gathered up the papers from the two safes and strewn them about the offices.

Determined not to leave empty-handed, they took an electric razor belonging to an employee. "You might say all they got out of it was a good shave," Thomas Dilg, the owner, said.

DEER DESTROYED AFTER SMASHING STORE WINDOWS

A deer appeared in downtown Belleville Saturday night and began smashing store windows. It was finally cornered and destroyed early yesterday after suffering leg injuries.

Belleville police said the 150-pound doe first leaped through a large plate glass window at the Finestone Store, 232 West Main street, damaging three television sets.

It next crashed through a rear window of the O.K. Barber Shop, 119 1/2 West Main, ran through the shop and out a front window. Later it damaged a section of metal fence at 421 North First street.

Police, health and humane officers ended the deer's brief fling at city living near the St. Paul's Old Folks Home, 1021 West E street. They surmised that the animal may have been living in a wooded section of strip mine land south of Belleville.

VAUGHN MOORE'S ILLINOIS RISK FIRM UNDER FIRE

Suit to Rehabilitate or Liquidate Aurora Insurance Company Is on File.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 2 —Vaughn V. Moore, whose insurance firm in St. Louis was taken over today by the State Insurance Department of Missouri, faces similar action with one of his insurance companies in Illinois.

A suit to rehabilitate or liquidate Northern Security Life Insurance Co., which has headquarters at Aurora, was filed March 18 by the Illinois Attorney General's office.

The Illinois Insurance Department charged that the firm was insolvent, its liabilities exceeding assets by $56,515. State Insurance Director Joseph S. Gerber had ordered the company to get rid of mortgages totaling $132,000 on property in California, Texas and Washington, holding that these investments did not conform to Illinois law.

The company, which denies that it is insolvent, has voted a 100 per cent assessment on its life policyholders which does not apply to holders of health and accident insurance policies. Gerber questioned the legality of such a procedure.

The Missouri Insurance Department filed a similar suit Thursday against Security National Life Insurance Co., 4425 Hampton avenue, St. Louis. The petition to take over the firm, on which a hearing is to be held tomorrow in Cole county circuit court at Jefferson City, asserted that the capital stock is impaired and the company is insolvent.

There have been numerous complaints that the St. Louis firm was slow in paying claims on its accident and health policies.

Moore told the Missouri Insurance Department he would contest the suit.

FREE RE-SALE SERVICE

Two weeks ago we announced the Tiny Tot Free Re-Sale Service. Customers of Tiny Tot were invited to list their unused carriages, bassinets, bathinets, strollers, cribs, sterilizers and other nursery items with us. This listing would be sent to all Tiny Tot customers. A good way to dispose of unwanted baby items and a chance to acquire needed ones at a bargain.

Tiny Tot has very smart customers. That's why they take Tiny Tot Diaper Service—ahem! At any rate, folks phoned me to list their things and just as soon as the circular was sent out, other mothers called to grab the bargain offerings.

If you're a Tiny Tot customer and have something to sell, or if there's something you need—here's your opportunity! The phone is STerling 1-8282.

"YES, MA'AM"

Jim Canepa, one of our Tiny Tot Service Men reports a conversation with a prospective new customer the other day that went like this: "Do you give twice weekly service?"

"Yes, Ma'am."

"Are yours the diapers that are Diaparene treated?"

"Yes, Ma'am."

"You're sure, now?"

"Yes, Ma'am."

"And do you individually fold them just the way I want them?"

"Yes, Ma'am."

"Do I get the same ones back each time?"

"Yes, Ma'am."

"Then you're Tiny Tot. Those are the diapers my sister told me to get."

"Yes, Ma'am."

"Well, why didn't you say so, right away?"

If Jim ever leaves St. Louis he has a brilliant future waiting him as a Western TV Star. Yes, Ma'am.

WESTERN INFLUENCE

On the subject of Westerns and Diaparene, some wag who would do us out of a job suggested that we advertise: Tiny Tot Diaparene Treated Diapers keep babies from getting saddle sore.

OUTSIDE versus INSIDE

Looking for a new home? You'll be interested to know that our forward home builders, guided either by the psychiatrists or the sorry fate of the auto builders, are producing some mighty interesting new homes this season.

On the outside they're reminiscent of the homes of our childhood—lead windows, cedar shake roofs, a reminder of New England, the Caribbean or plain Hansel and Gretel. This is to make us feel psychologically at ease.

But on the inside they're as smart and as modern and as efficient as well, as diaper service. Here the builders are appealing to the practical person who wants to enjoy modern, comfortable living.

They know that the tendency is to live a little, to enjoy the good things in life.

GIFT WRAPPED

A proud father who lives almost within shouting distance of Busch Stadium is bragging to his friends at his shop that his baby was delivered gift wrapped.

No one believes him, of course, until he explains that he means his baby was delivered home from the hospital gift wrapped. The gift wrapping, if you're still curious, was Tiny Tot Diapers supplied on a Gift Certificate from grandma.

Thousands of St. Louis' luckier babies are gift wrapped because of Tiny Tot Gift Certificates. We recently printed some special new ones which the prospective mother can hand out to her friends when they ask what she'd like. The idea, of course, is to permit the givers to spend whatever amount they please and not to embarrass the giftee.

Want some gift certificates? Phone me at STerling 1-8282. They make a handy, some souvenir for the baby book, too.

LETTERS DEPT.

Dear Mary Holmes: I have had eight healthy children and I'm expecting my ninth in August. Can you recommend a good book for me to buy on child care?

Mrs. Prolific. You don't need to buy a book—write your own.

Mary Holmes.

BOASTFUL BURGLAR GETS 4-YEAR TERM

Glenn Gilbreath, 72-year-old former convict and self-styled "top-flight burglar," was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary today when he pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge Oswald P. Owen to three charges of second-degree burglary and stealing.

The sentence was the longest Gilbreath received during a career which included 12 previous convictions. Judge Owen, imposing sentence, told the defendant it was unfortunate "that you obviously pride yourself on your chosen profession."

On April 22 Gilbreath kicked in the door of the Richard Mueller Plating Co., 716 Market street, and stole silver valued at $490. The same night, he broke into a tavern at 809 Walnut street.

Gilbreath returned to the Mueller concern the next night and took items valued at $592. The loot included a $125 sterling silver spoon and creamer belonging to Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter.

"You are the man, I believe, who posed as a top-flight burglar," Judge Owen said to Gilbreath. "Apparently you think there is something funny about it. This court doesn't think it is funny at all."

Court officials said Gilbreath's longest previous sentence was three years.

France

Premier's trip to Algeria to restore government authority over the rebellious territory.

The result was almost the same as the vote of 329 to 224 by which the Assembly invested De Gaulle hardly 24 hours earlier.

In the final version of the measure, De Gaulle's supporters accepted amendments restricting the General's power to govern by decree in such fields as liberties, labor legislation and social security. However, the bill incorporated almost everything the General asked to enable him to govern for six months while the Assembly takes a paid vacation.

The General maintained constant contact with the Assembly through cabinet members reporting to his downtown hotel headquarters.

Slight Variations.

The legislation varies only slightly from the full powers the Assembly implied it would grant when it voted the General's investiture yesterday.

Meanwhile, De Gaulle's contacts with the Algerian insurgents took on something of a cloak and dagger aspect. Gen. Raoul Salan, French commander in Algeria, announced that he had received a telephone call from De Gaulle saying the General would arrive there Wednesday. De Gaulle's office confirmed the phone call, but only after several hours.

It was learned too, that Leon Delbecq, a fiery political leader in the Algerian junta had come to Paris for secret talks with De Gaulle.

The Assembly vote on power for De Gaulle was the second of a series of victories for him in this busy legislative day. Earlier the deputies voted 337 to 199 to continue the government's special emergency powers in Algeria. These powers have been passed on from government to government in the past three years.

The Assembly and the Senate outlined for themselves a backbreaking schedule so that De Gaulle could hurry to Algeria to cope with his most immediate problem—the insurgent army leaders and French colonialists whose defiance of Premier Pierre Pflimlin's government brought the World War II Resistance leader out of the political wilderness.

The Assembly went back into session this morning after 24 of the most stirring hours in its long history. Prospects were that in another 12 to 24 hours of near continuous sessions, the General's demands for a virtual blank check would be approved.

The General made his sweeping demands in a cold, calm, six-minute speech to the hushed chamber. He needed the powers, he said, to avert a "break-up and perhaps civil war" in France.

The Assembly's Committee on Universal Suffrage approved the request for six months of full power 27 to 17 after an all-night session during which Vice Premier Guy Mollet and Pflimlin pleaded that the General must be given a chance to push ahead with plans to revitalize France.

The full-powers bill would give De Gaulle and his ministers the right to rule by decrees, which would be called ordinances. For six months, the government would replace Parliament. Previous laws passed by Parliament could be revoked, modified or replaced. Advice of the Council of State—sort of a supreme court for French administrative affairs—would be required before application.

The government bill would reserve all discussions of the budget for Parliament, which returns from its enforced vacation on Oct. 7.

The Committee on Universal Suffrage modified the government proposal. Its amendments tend to limit the government's rule by decree. For example, the government would not be able to tinker with laws on public and labor union liberties, the definition of crimes and the limits of punishment. It could not tamper with current court procedures or alter the autonomous regimes granted to nationalized industries.

Reservation Rejected.

The committee wanted to reserve to Parliament the right to reorganize nationalized industries but this was not accepted by the government.

While De Gaulle had passed his first political hurdles, observers noted that he did so only with a push from four politicians representing wide shades of non-Communist French political opinion. All four have been chosen by De Gaulle as deputy premiers.

Besides Socialist Mollet and Popular Republican (Catholic) Pflimlin, De Gaulle's demands were pressed by conservative Louis Jacquinot and Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Rally of African People.

The bitter debate earlier in the Assembly and in the committee made plain that De Gaulle will have no honeymoon with the opposition. This was pointed up by the fact that he got only 329 votes to install him instead of the 400 non-Communist ballots for which he had hoped.

Sporadic outbreaks of leftist violence also were seen as an omen of trouble ahead, but calm prevailed throughout France this morning.

Censorship Is Lifted.

De Gaulle and his new cabinet met for about an hour last night under President Rene Coty's chairmanship in the Elysee Palace. The General and his ministers discussed and drafted the texts of the three bills he has demanded as part of his extraordinary powers.

The new Premier lifted French censorship at midnight. It was one of his first acts as the new government chief.

Censorship had been imposed by the Pflimlin government following the Algerian uprising. It applied to all news and pictures distributed in France. Though foreign newsmen had been cautioned, censorship was not used on dispatches and photographs sent abroad.

In forming his cabinet, De Gaulle avoided both the extreme right and far left. He named a majority coalition from the center parties which conceivably could govern successfully after the six months of emergency rule he demanded.

One appointment, career diplomat Maurice Couve de Murville to be foreign minister, heartened France's allies in the North Atlantic alliance. Now French Ambassador to West Germany, Couve de Murville is a former ambassador to Washington and an avowed supporter of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and such European unity programs as the common market and the atomic pool.

Another major appointment was former Premier Antoine Pinay as finance minister.

Charges of Blackmail.

After making his bid for emergency powers, De Gaulle left the Assembly chamber for his hotel to await the result of the vote on his investiture. It came after 3½ hours of legalistic and blackmail echoed through the hall.

Left-wing spokesmen declared that the Assembly was not voting freely but under threat of "insurrectionists."

"Why deny it?" asked former Justice Minister Francois Mitterand, leader of a small left-of-center group. "It is a matter here of a change of regime. Although the most illustrious of Frenchmen presents himself for our vote I cannot forget that he is presented and supported first by an undisciplined army."

De Gaulle entered the Assembly chamber on the stroke of 3 p.m., as he had promised. He was warmly applauded by the center and right wingers as he strode rapidly toward the empty front government bench.

He seemed nervous, almost apprehensive, as Speaker Andre Le Troquer read President Coty's letter summoning De Gaulle, and De Gaulle's list of cabinet members.

Then it was his turn. He climbed rapidly up to the rostrum, yanked his address from his pocket, and read it fairly rapidly, in low tones, with almost no emotion. But he betrayed his nervousness with a clenching and gestulation of his left hand.

"Unity Is Menaced."

He said "the degradation of the state is going at a headlong pace" and that "France's unity is immediately menaced."

Apart from the troubles in Algeria and Corsica, he added, in France itself opposing movements "strengthen from hour to hour their passion and their action."

He said the French army was "scandalized by the absence of powers."

"Our international position," he warned, "has been battered right up to the heart of our alliances."

With a patter of applause from the Assembly, he bounded down the steps and stalked out.

Of the 224 votes against him,

147 came from the bloc of Communist deputies. The Socialists split, with 42 voting for the General and 49 against. The leftists have expressed fears that De Gaulle's return threatened France with dictatorship despite the General's denials.

De Gaulle Task

Pessimistic Point of View.

In the opposite view, De Gaulle will be unable to suppress the forces that brought on the insurrection. While he may bring temporary calm in Algiers, the settlers and the colonels who combined to destroy the government in Paris will neither forgive nor forget the moderation with which De Gaulle has begun the great task of reform.

Going underground, they will continue to plot as they have in recent months for absolute authority and the total destruction of the parliamentary system. They will feel that their error was to trust De Gaulle and not send the paratroopers against Paris to bring about a military dictatorship.

Can De Gaulle break the power of the paratroopers? He send small units to outposts where they will no longer be a threat to civil order? This is the question the pessimists ask and they answer it in the negative.

They feel that De Gaulle has put himself under a severe handicap in announcing that he wanted emergency powers for only six months and in declaring that, after a year or a year and a half at the head of the government, he would again retire. The prospect of a reaction on both the left and the right need only to wait out that time and then fight it out in the civil war that was averted when Pierre Pflimlin resigned to make way for the General.

Outlook for Reds.

The pessimists point out that by making way for De Gaulle the political center committed suicide. It was in a desperate way before the crisis, trying to balance off the two extremes. But now only the violent left and the violent right remain.

How well the Communists understand this is shown by the comparative restraint they have shown in the streets, with Moscow taking a tolerant line toward De Gaulle's assumption of power. With his angry speeches made one after another through the crisis the implacable Jacques Duclos, mouthpiece of the party, has been silent. He is far from having caricatures that impair his vision and a chronic glandular condition that is believed to have not a little to do with his haughty reserved temperament. Yet the odds against him were as great when he fled from ruined, defeated France 18 years ago and it may be that another miracle will save this unhappy nation.

ently was on its way to "working out of its crises."

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.) of Minnesota, predicted the French under De Gaulle would "get their government in order." He said there were "good signs" to warrant optimism.

Senator William Langer (Rep.) of North Dakota, said he thought the United States and the De Gaulle government would develop "a splendid relationship."

Diplomatic officials said the United States must wait to see what stand De Gaulle takes on critical issues involving United States interests. They said basically this country still knows little or nothing about De Gaulle's position on such issues as the NATO alliance and Western European unity, two of the most sensitive international issues involving France.

A Hopeful Sign.

Diplomats saw as a hopeful sign in the fact that three champions of continued French membership in NATO and of European integration were named to key posts in De Gaulle's cabinet. They were Socialist leader Guy Mollet; Pierre Pflimlin, De Gaulle's predecessor, and Independent Republican leader Antoine Pinay.

Officials expressed pleased surprise at the naming of Maurice Couve de Murville as De Gaulle's Foreign Minister. De Murville formerly was ambassador to Washington, where he is highly esteemed and liked by American officials. He was more recently French ambassador to West Germany and officials here viewed his selection as a good omen for French-German relations.

The appointment of Mollet and other non-Communist leftists was seen as assurance to liberal elements in France and elsewhere that De Gaulle would not follow a dictatorial course. Officials were surprised at the left-of-center cast of the new cabinet.

Another encouraging sign seen here was the fact that De Gaulle set a six-month limit on the duration of emergency powers he sought from the French Assembly.

THREE TRAPPED FOR 3 HOURS IN CAPSIZED BOAT

Mrs. Marcus C. Bauer of Belleville and two of her sons were rescued early yesterday after being trapped for almost three hours in the flooded forward cabin of their overturned cruiser off Bolter Island in the Mississippi river.

The 32-foot craft was turned upside down by a sudden and severe windstorm which struck the area shortly before midnight Saturday. The wind caught the bow of the boat, raising it high in the air and causing it to make a 180-degree arc.

Other boats around the island were buffeted by the high wind. Bauer, who lives at 4232 Oak Lane, said one boat owner reported seeing a tornado-like funnel. The wind cut a path through the island, he said, snapping off tree tops and felling several big trees.

The cruiser was anchored about 60 feet offshore when the storm struck. Bauer went up to the bridge and tried to start the motor in an effort to ease the pull on the anchor and prevent the boat from drifting into other craft.

"This Can't Happen," Bauer said it was like a nightmare when the boat began turning over.

"I saw the bow go up and I stood there on the bridge waiting for the boat to settle back in the water," he related. "I couldn't believe it when it kept going up. The thought ran through my mind, 'This can't happen.' The next thing I was thrashing around in water in the upside-down bridge."

Bauer said he crawled through an open window of the bridge and swam around the boat. He was unable to get to his wife, Fern, and their two younger sons, Ronald, 15, and Michael, 10, who were in the forward cabin. He could not see his other son, Mark, 16, who had been on deck with him.

Bauer swam to shore and sought help from other boat owners.

"They wouldn't believe me at first when I told them my cruiser had blown upside down," he said. "There was a lot of confusion. I was screaming and yelling and asking for rope."

Meanwhile, Mark had been wedged against a section of the bridge when the cruiser went over. He was on the outer side of a partition separating him from his mother and brothers.

Asks for Prayers. "Mark tapped on the wall and we heard him call out," Mrs. Bauer said. "He told us he was caught but said he thought he could wiggle out. He asked us to pray for him. We prayed and he got loose and swam ashore."

Mark brought news to his father and others on the beach that Mrs. Bauer and the two boys were still alive. Others on the shore made a line by splicing ski tow ropes together. A small hand ax and a saw were found.

"We got the line attached to the boat," Bauer said, "but it was blowing and raining so hard that everybody who tried to get on the back of the boat kept sliding off."

Finally, Harry Roither, 6763 Bonnie avenue, Affton, managed to straddle the heaving keel. He had swam to the cruiser holding the handle of the hand ax in his teeth. Roither is a brewer at Anheuser-Busch Inc.

"The ax was small and he had a hard time cutting through the two-inch hull," Bauer said. "But after a while he made a little hole. My wife and the boys had been holding to the sides of the cabin in pitch darkness with water up to their necks. They went wild when they could finally see outside."

Another rescuer, George R. Garrett, 11 Fee Fee road, Bridgeton, used the saw to make the hole large enough to pull Mrs. Bauer and her sons through. They were assisted to shore.

Bauer, who is president of the Bauer Sheet Metal Co., East St. Louis, had been with his family at Pere Marquette State Park, near Grafton, most of Saturday.

COUNTY INDUSTRIAL PROJECT DELAYED 300 SHAPLEIGH CO. WORKERS WALK OUT

The Elmwood Park project to redevelop 111 blighted acres for industrial use is being held up because of the St. Louis county controversy over the Jefferson Barracks public housing project, it was announced today.

The county's Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority had applied for a federal loan of $55,517 for final planning of the Elmwood Park project.

However, Chairman Francis M. Barnes III announced today that the Housing and Home Finance Agency has decided to withhold the money pending a court decision on use of public housing as a relocation aid in the county.

The Elmwood Park area to be redeveloped extends along Elmwood avenue north of Olive Street road, a tract bordering the Rock Island Railroad. The project would rely heavily upon public housing to relocate displaced families of low income.

The Jefferson Barracks project would provide 315 public housing units, but it has been stalemated by opposition of nearby residents, whose bitter fight has led to filing of two court suits. A low bid of $3,569,000 for construction of the project, submitted jointly by Fischer & Richter Construction Co. and Design & Construction, was withdrawn last week because of the long delay in authorizing a start and increases in building costs.

The friendly spirit which existed after that cooled off considerably earlier this year when Russia started criticizing Yugoslavia's independent brand of Communism. Then last week, the Soviets canceled $285,000 worth of credits to Yugoslavia.

Borba said this showed Russia's true attitude toward Yugoslavia. "The postponement of the credits clearly shows they had been granted to Yugoslavia with the strong belief that she would accept the stands imposed on her," Borba said.

BLAST DAMAGES MOST HOMES IN ILLINOIS TOWN

MOUNT PULASKI, Ill., June 2 (AP) — The explosion of a railroad tank car spread devastation through this town of 1500 persons yesterday, leaving some 1000 temporarily homeless.

After midnight, explosives experts reported little chance of ignition of other chemical-carrying cars and residents began trickling back to begin repair of their homes. National Guardsmen were withdrawn by midmorning.

However, state police required everyone entering the town to meet identification tests to prove residence. Traffic on Route 54 through the city was being rerouted at Springfield, Decatur, Clinton and Lincoln so as to bypass the community.

Mount Pulaski is 30 miles northeast of Springfield. Two railroad crewmen were killed and one was injured seriously in the blast. More than 20 persons were injured by flying glass and debris. None was reported in serious condition.

Damage was estimated by town and civil defense officials at $1,000,000. Officials said a survey indicated two thirds of the town's some 400 homes were damaged and not immediately habitable.

State police ordered the town evacuated after the tank car filled with a petroleum product exploded and flames threatened two other tank cars filled with liquid chemicals. The cause of the blast was not immediately determined.

The tank car was one of 43 cars on an Illinois Central Railroad freight train which was switching in the yards. After the fire was put out, some 500 residents whose homes were not too seriously damaged were permitted to remain in town.

Several nearby communities, some 20 miles away, were reported shaken by the blast and residents in Springfield said they heard the explosion. The explosion tore a crater communities.

The shock of the wave shattered windows and tore off doors, porches and sidings of homes and other buildings throughout the town. Hundreds of residents, fearing a second blast, drove to Lincoln 10 miles away. Food and shelter were provided at Central High School and a 200-bed emergency civil defense hospital unit. Other evacuees went to farms outside Mount Pulaski or to other nearby communities.

HELL'S CANYON DAM BILL KILLED AND REACTION TO DE GAULLE'S RISE

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—The House Interior reclamation subcommittee today voted down a controversial bill for federal construction of dams in Hell's Canyon, the deepest river gorge on the continent.

Representative Wayne Aspinall (Dem., Colo.), subcommittee chairman, said the adoption of an unfavorable report killed the Senate-passed measure.

A 15-13 vote apparently ended a long fight over whether the Federal Government or the Idaho Power Co. should build dams in the Hell's Canyon stretch of the Snake river bordering Idaho and Oregon.

Thirteen Republicans and two southern Democrats, Representatives James A. Haley of Florida and George A. Shuford of North Carolina, voted against the bill. The 13 who voted for it are Democrats.

The Senate-passed bill was a symbol of a great public-versus-private power fight that started in the Pacific Northwest years ago and spread across the nation.

The high federal dam would have flooded the sites of three dams Idaho Power plans to build under a Federal Power Commission license which was granted during a bitter controversy that was taken to the Supreme Court.

The company has one dam nearly built, another under construction.

Cost of the proposed federal Hell's Canyon project has been estimated at from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000. It would impound water for flood control and regulation which advocates claim would add 1,000,000 kilowatts of capacity to the federal power generating system in the Columbia river basin.

Idaho Power Co. has estimated its three dams will cost about $133,000,000. It claims they would provide nearly as much power and as many other benefits as the big federal project, at one third the cost.

It has been assumed that the utility would have to be paid for any work done at its sites if the Government built a dam and flooded them.

The company probably has spent $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 on its Brownlee and Oxbow dams. It began building Brownlee while its license case still was before the courts.

Hell's Canyon dam legislation has been introduced in the last several sessions of Congress. Last year was the first time any of the bills got out of a congressional committee and through one of the Houses.

LONDON, June 2 (AP)—European reaction to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's accession to power ranges from fear and cautious approval down to the laughter of political cartoonists. Asian and African reaction was scant and mixed.

Prime Minister Macmillan sent De Gaulle a warm personal message wishing him well in his new job.

"I send you herewith my best wishes on your investiture as president of the council," Macmillan's message said.

"It will be a great pleasure for me to be able to renew our wartime friendship, forged in the days when, as head of the Committee of National Liberation, you led France to victory. Recalling those days and the indissoluble ties of friendship and interest, which unite our two countries, I look forward with pleasure to working with you in our common cause."

Beaverbrook Editorial.

Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard commented: "The best testimonial to Gen. De Gaulle's skill in forming his cabinet is the reaction of disappointment in Algeria. The exclusion of rebel leaders from the government gives warning that the General does not mean to have his policies dictated by them. The composition of his cabinet is reassuringly diverse."

The West German government applauded De Gaulle and pledged readiness to continue its close co-operation with the French.

The statement emphasized that the basis of co-operation was the network of treaties now linking the western countries—such as the North Atlantic Alliance and the European Common Market.

A big question in Europe was whether De Gaulle would try a separate approach to Moscow. In the Ruhr city of Essen, for instance, Socialist Carlo Schmid told a political meeting: "A man from Paris will probably get to Moscow ahead of the Germans. Then, not only NATO but the idea of European unity will be threatened."

In Norway, the conservative Morgenbladet, warned that Russia "may contact De Gaulle, give him concessions, and in this way try to split NATO and the unity between the Western allies."

The paper said, however, that there is no indication De Gaulle will set up a dictatorship because it "would not agree with his personality."

No Model for the West.

Die Welt of Hamburg said of France's future foreign policy:

"Even if it approves the principles of the Atlantic pact, it will not be a model student of Atlantic conformity."

It will try to open up the East-West talks, Die Welt said, and try to push NATO leaders to think of something new.

In New Delhi, the Indian Express commented that the only encouraging feature of De Gaulle's return to power was that the French crisis was settled through parliamentary democracy, "even if the spirit was expunged."

The Egyptian newspaper Al Shaab in Cairo said France was betrayed by its leaders in bringing De Gaulle to power. France lost its honor and its liberty, the paper said.

NEGER DESERT DISCOVERIES

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector, June 2 (UPI)—Hebrew University geologists have discovered signs that agricultural settlements existed in the Negev desert in southern Israel as far back as nine centuries before Christ, it was announced today.

The discoveries were made some 50 miles south of Beer-sheva. They included signs of ancient farms, implements and forts, the University reported.

IDAHO BOY, 16, OFF TO HELP CASTRO, QUILTS IN KANSAS

WICHITA, Kan., June 2 (AP)—Jason Smith slipped away from his Idaho home and headed for Cuba to lend a fighting hand to Fidel Castro's rebels.

But Jason's spirit surrendered to homesickness on the plains of southwestern Kansas. The 16-year-old son of Idaho Attorney General Graydon W. Smith will start back to his Boise home as soon as his father arrives here to provide proper escort.

Jason left Boise early Saturday, leaving a note that he planned to hitchhike to Florida. There, he hoped to get transportation to Cuba. Jason had saved his school lunch money to finance the maneuver.

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—The House today unanimously voted retroactive 10 per cent pay raises for 1,000,000 classified federal employees at an estimated annual cost of $542,000,000.

It sent back to the Senate by voice vote a bill giving civil service workers the same size pay hike recently voted for $30,000 postal employees. As in the case of the postal raises, the civil service workers' increases would be retroactive to last January.

In addition to the classified civil service, the rise applies to employees in the foreign service, the Veterans Administration department of medicine and surgery, and the legislative and judicial branches.

The House debated its bill less than an hour.

MRS. WILLIAM B. LANDWEHR FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed in circuit court at Clayton today against William B. Landwehr, Clayton Insurance agent, who was arrested last Friday on a forgery charge.

His wife, Frances, charged general indignities. In her petition, she asks gross alimony and restoration of her maiden name, King. Mrs. Landwehr said they were married July 28, 1948. They have no children.

Her attorney said the pair have been separated for some time and that Landwehr's recent difficulties had nothing to do with the divorce proceedings. Landwehr's office was at 7933 Clayton road. He gave his home address as 808 South Brentwood boulevard, Clayton.

UAW IS WITHOUT CONTRACTS WITH ANY OF BIG THREE

DETROIT, June 2 (AP) — Failure to reach agreement on new contracts with the Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. by midnight Sunday left the United Auto Workers without pacts at all Big Three plants today for the first time in more than 17 years.

Workers went to their jobs at 275 automobile plants. There were no reports of incidents. Deadlocked bargaining talks were broken off Sunday midnight at Ford and Chrysler just as they were three nights ago at General Motors. The companies and the union blamed each other for the situation.

One-half million UAW members employed by the Big Three are under orders from their chief, Walter P. Reuther, not to strike or provoke any incidents that could give the companies an excuse to shut down their plants.

Reuther failed in last hour attempts to win concessions from Ford and Chrysler before their contracts died at midnight. He made the same maneuvers that failed at G.M. Thursday night. But the companies flatly rejected his moves for any kind of temporary extensions of contracts.

Company Proposals. All stood firm on their proposals to extend 1955 contracts for two years, giving auto workers built-in annual wage increases of 7 cents per hour plus cost of living increases. This would amount to at least 16 cents spread over two years. After the break-up of Ford early today, Reuther told newsmen, "We will ultimately get the companies to sit down and bargain with us the way they should. We will get a 1958 contract, whether it takes two weeks, four weeks or eight weeks . . . time is on our side."

The companies did not say how they planned to keep Reuther from stalling until model changeover time would give Reuther a more favorable opportunity to strike them. Reuther said it would be insane to strike now when the industry has 750,000 unsold 1958 model cars.

No More Check-Off. In setting their own terms for keeping plants in operation, the companies cut off collecting dues from UAW members and turning the money over to the union. Last year they deducted an estimated $18,000,000 in dues for the union. Now the union will have to collect its own dues. The companies also dropped the union shop. This means that union membership is no longer a condition for employment. It gives insurgent groups of skilled workers a chance to step up their drives to carve out separate bargaining units among craftsmen belonging to the UAW.

Reuther said his minimum demands include cost of living allowances for retired workers on pensions, broadening of lay-off pay benefits and travel allowances or severance pay for workers uprooted by relocation of plants.

700 SEEKING END TO H-TESTS MARCH AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP) — Carrying "stop the tests" signs, some 700 Walkers for Peace paraded in front of the White House for 90 minutes yesterday urging an end to nuclear weapons tests.

The demonstration and an afternoon rally on the grounds of the Washington Monument went off without incident. At the White House, some 25 special policemen watched the procession. President Eisenhower was away at Gettysburg.

The marchers, including a number of Quakers from the Philadelphia area, also held aloft placards saying "Peace in the world or a world in pieces."

Some of them had hiked from Wilmington, Del., 120 miles away, and from Winchester, Va., 75 miles distant. Joined by others as they went. Additional groups came by bus or other transportation.

The Peace Walkers, disbanding after their rally, left behind a small group to try to interest legislators in their campaign to end nuclear tests.

THREE FISHERMEN KILLED AS LEAKING GAS EXPLODES

BIG SPRING, Tex., June 2 (AP) — Gas leaking from a pipeline was blamed for an explosion and fire which killed three fishermen and destroyed two cars on a West Texas oil lease yesterday.

Highway patrolmen said someone apparently struck a match or started one of the cars and touched off the blast. The cars were parked in a depression while the party fished in a stock tank 30 miles northeast of here in Borden county. The explosion killed George Washington Gilbert, George Cecil Rackley, and Gilbert Neal Jennings, all of Big Spring. Edgar Lee Jennings Jr., brother of Gilbert, suffered critical burns.

NEGOTIATIONS BREAK DOWN IN LONDON BUS STRIKE

LONDON, June 2 (AP) — Negotiations intended to end the 4-week-old strike of London bus men broke down last night.

The negotiations foundered on whether a wage increase settlement should include 14,000 workers on suburban buses and in garages. About 8400 vehicles of the state-owned transport system and 50,000 employees are affected.

HOLDS MILK PAIL IN TORNADO, DOES NOT SPILL A DROP

NEVADA, Mo., June 2 (AP) — When a funnel cloud touched the ground near Stotesbury, Mo., Saturday night, farmer Luther Dawson, 74 years old, was in the barn milking cows.

Dawson stayed in the barn supporting himself with one hand on a stanchion while the other hand held a pail of milk. The barn was heavily damaged but Dawson was uninjured. He said he didn't spill a drop of the milk although the pressure of the wind raised his feet from the floor three times.

The funnel damaged outbuildings on two farms in the Stotesbury area near the Kansas line but no injuries were reported. The storm occurred in a tornado alert for a 120-mile-wide area from Kansas City to Quincy, Ill. A tornado damaged farm buildings near Ottawa, Kan.

REVEALS CHINA MAY HAVE SET A-BLAST

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP) — Senator Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) said yesterday it is a definite possibility that Communist China has some atomic bomb development.

Humphrey, chairman of the Senate Disarmament subcommittee, said his belief that China might have an atomic development grew out of information the committee obtained on an underground explosion which occurred in China in December 1955.

He asserted the explosion of 9-kiloton power, was detected by a seismic station at Hungry Horse, Mont., about 7000 miles away, but this fact was not made public at the time of the blast.

He said the committee dug from non-security files the information that it was possible to detect an underground explosion nearly 7000 miles away. This, he said, is a much greater distance than it was previously believed such an explosion could be detected.

Humphrey said he did not know whether the Chinese explosion was atomic.

At the same time he said he believes initial stages of agreement toward barring of nuclear tests could be carried out without China being involved.

Detection stations around the rim of China, he said, particularly in Japan, would make it possible to detect any nuclear explosions by the Communist Chinese.

Communist China's Vice Premier and Foreign Minister, Chen Yi, was quoted last May as saying his country does not now have atomic weapons but will have them in the future. Humphrey was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" program.

INVESTMENT CLUB GROUP TO HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

The St. Louis Council of the National Association of Investment Clubs will hold its first meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Founders' Hall at Stix, Baer & Fuller. Wagar Glas of Detroit, the association's national board chairman, will speak.

Another speaker will be Ralph L. Segar Jr. of Detroit, an association board member. He is a chemical engineer with U. S. Rubber Co. The association, established in 1951, now has more than 3000 clubs with 40,471 members.

2 CHINESE GUNBOATS, JUNK SUNK, NATIONALISTS CLAIM

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 2 (AP) — The Chinese Nationalist navy claimed yesterday it sank two Communist gunboats and one motorized junk in a 12-minute naval action starting early yesterday about 30 miles north of Matsau.

Naval headquarters here said another motorized junk was heavily damaged. The navy said Nationalist vessels returned to base without damage or casualties.

TRUCKING LINE FINED ON SAFETY CHARGES

The Park Transportation Co., 1717 Park avenue, today was fined a total of $1250 in United States District Court for violating Interstate Commerce Commission safety regulations. Ernest A. Brooks II, attorney for the firm, entered guilty pleas for the company to five counts of an information charging that drivers for the firm worked longer hours than considered safe under ICC regulations. A guilty plea also was entered to five counts involving failure to inspect trucks leased from other companies. Judge Roy W. Harper assessed fines of $150 each for the hours violations and $100 each for failure to inspect vehicles. Ten other counts in the information were dismissed. The regulations require that highway transport drivers be limited to 70 hours at the wheel in a consecutive 192-hour period. The United States Attorney charged that one Park driver was on the job 90 hours.

ALSOP

French Assembly Voted Its Own Demise With Solemnity Of a Great Deathbed Scene

At No Point Was There an Outward Show of Deep Emotion, Except in De Gaulle's Sudden Emphasis of His Readiness for 'Heavy Duty.'

By JOSEPH ALSOP

PARIS.

HOW DOES A REGIME DIE? In France, the answer is, with a proper sense of the solemnity of a great deathbed scene, but with rather too much of the tendency of King Charles II, who apologized wryly for being "such an unconscionable time a-dying."

The setting for this last act in the history of the Fourth Republic was worthy of the event. There is no handsomer or more theatrical legislative chamber in the world than the old French Chamber, dusty with forgotten history, rich with white marble columns and gold-fringed red velvet, sonorous in its acoustics, and by its very shape constructed to enhance the drama of the moment.

Here, quietly, unobtrusively, almost as though he were apologizing for thrusting in where he did not belong, entered the tall, gangling, almost comically solemn figure of Charles de Gaulle. On the floor and in the jammed opera-box-like tribunes, all the vast crowd was waiting for the appearance of the man of destiny—or the man, at any rate, on whom the French people now have bet their own destiny.

No Rousing Welcome. Yet there was no stirring acknowledgment of De Gaulle's entrance. The squat, bald president of the Assembly, that apt intriguer Andre Lefevre, smiled his welcome. De Gaulle, infinitely alone on a front bench where no others chose or dared to join him, made a stiff gesture of greeting in reply.

The Assembly president gabbled through the formal preliminaries. The name of Andre Malraux caused a sudden murmur when the cabinet list was read. And De Gaulle, with his walk of a giant automaton, strode to the high, ornamented tribune.

In all his long, unhappy experience of public oratory, this reporter has heard only one curious speech on a great occasion. The phrases were polished and marmoreal. The exposition of the plight of France was chilly and laconic.

At no point was there the slightest outward show of deep emotion, except in the sudden emphasis with which De Gaulle announced his readiness to accept "the heavy duty" of the leadership of France. The two words "lourd devoir" rang like bells and one knew the emotion was there, right enough, hidden behind the severe facade. It was one suddenly thought, rather like a funeral oration pronounced over a fallen comrade's bier by a military officer long and strictly disciplined to conceal all feeling.

Respectful Applause. The deputies heard out De Gaulle in a cool hush. As he finished and walked from the chamber, there was a round of applause, respectful but far from tempestuous. And so the French Assembly got down to the day's real business, of voting its own demise.

No man there—not even the great air-cue of the French Resistance, Pierre Clement, who mounted the tribune to welcome De Gaulle in a voice of grateful tears—can really have enjoyed the business in hand. As Paul Reynaud once amiably remarked: "If regimes rarely reform themselves, it is rarely because the abuses are so delicious."

Few deputies indeed have not enjoyed those delicious abuses—the complex game of musical chairs that has been French cabinet making, that also resembled Alice's caucus race in which all contestants won a prize; the happy intrigues, the delicate trading operations conducted at the Brasserie Lipp and La Concorde; even the Chamber's elaborate ritual, so happily conducive to feelings of self-importance and so usefully full of openings for adepts in the parliamentary game.

For Gaullists as well as the men of the left, it was now time to say goodbye to all that, at least for a while, and none of them liked doing so.

Haunting Memories. Nor was this recollection of a happy past the only memory haunting the chamber. Among the divided Socialists, especially, there was the haunting memory of the vote of full powers to Marshal Petain, taken in even more terrible circumstances, which also split the French Socialist party into irreconcilable factions. And others besides the Socialists asked themselves whether this moment marked the beginning of a new authoritarian reign for France.

This question and the roll of oratory filled the air. There were sentimental speeches, like that of Clostermann. There were the crass, little Communist boss, Jacques Duclos, with his harsh voice that would usually serve a professional torturer, who had the effrontery to perorate with a shout of, "Down with dictatorship!" There were also boring speeches.

But on the whole the level of oratory was exceptionally high, and none was better than the two men of the non-Communist left, Mendes-France and Mitterand, and the unpleasant but articulate fellow-traveler, Pierre Cot.

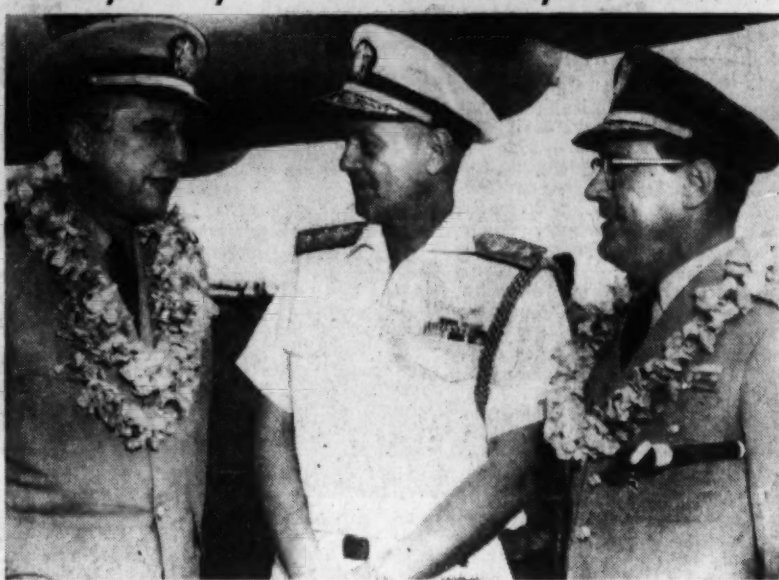

All Stress Same Point. With an eloquence that rasped the Chamber's nerves, all three grimly insisted on the same point, that this was no free vote, but a vote under duress, taken almost under fire from the Assembly's enemies. As Mendes spoke, one remembered the pale, determined face of a young Mendes-France two evenings earlier, admitting that "he would not sleep in his own bed that night if President Coty did not send for De Gaulle," yet obstinately arguing that civil conflict now would still be better than the civil conflict he foresaw later on. Indeed, on the tribune of the Assembly, Mendes-France himself said almost the same thing.

These men, it was clear, were making their records now in the firm expectation that the De Gaulle regime would indeed be authoritarian, and so would end by alienating all those masses of Frenchmen who now are turning to De Gaulle.

But one can say, as Mendes also said, that the Fourth Republic destroyed itself by its own weaknesses and follies. The final vote was a formality. The regime had died long before the vote was taken.

Khrushchev Still in Struggle To Retain Power, Poles Assert

Warsaw Officials Believe That the Decisive Influence on Soviet Leaders Rests With Chinese Communists.

By SYDNEY GRUSON

© New York Times News Service

WARSAW.

AFTER THE RETURN of their leaders from the recent Moscow conferences, Polish officials are more convinced than ever that Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's leadership of the Soviet Union was seriously threatened early this month. The Poles' analysis of a fluid political situation in which the foes of Khrushchev combined against him was generally scoffed at by Western chancelleries when it became known that the Poles now say not only that there was a time of great crisis for Khrushchev but that the struggle rages on, most obviously on the Yugoslav-Soviet ideological dispute but also touching many other issues of Soviet internal and international policy.

The Poles are convinced that Khrushchev lost his usual majority in the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party when it discussed the Yugoslav question early in May. They believe he survived by giving way to the exponents of a "hard" line with the Yugoslavs and because the other issues were so diverse that no individual foe had amassed sufficient strength to unseat him.

Only a Personal Gesture. The Soviet hard line on the Yugoslav issue continues to prevail, according to the Poles. The cordiality of Khrushchev's birthday telegram to President Tito, which the Poles consider a personal gesture, was overshadowed by the Soviet decision to postpone the promised economic aid to Belgrade. This was a Presidential decision to which Khrushchev was forced to bow, the Poles believe. The decision came, significantly enough for the Poles, after the Chinese Communist party's Congress had backed up with a formal resolution Peiping's fierce original condemnation of the Yugoslav's alleged revisionism.

Couldn't Ignore Chinese Reds. The decisive influence on Soviet leaders remains with the Chinese Reds, the Poles continue to believe. The Poles note that Czechoslovakia, East Germany and Bulgaria have been dragging their feet on the reconciliation with Yugoslavia ordered by Khrushchev after his peace mission to Belgrade in 1955.

So long as the East European satellites were involved, Khrushchev could and did ignore their pressure to get tough with Tito, the Poles maintain. But he could not ignore Communist China's demands for a tightening of ranks, they say. "We Communists have a sense of historical perspective," an official said today in a discussion on the situation. "We do not see China as you in the West, as a land of squalor, poverty and backwardness. We see it as it will be in perhaps 20 or 30 years—one of the most powerful countries in the world, perhaps even the most powerful."

The official was bitter about was that of Red China. The Red Chinese are determined to impose this line on the rest of the Communist camp until they have the material strength to force recognition from the United States the Poles believe.

None of the implications of all this is to the liking of the Poles, convinced as they are that whatever hopeful prospects they have are bound up in Khrushchev's maintaining himself in power. The Poles see no easy or early resolution of the struggle in Moscow. Contrary to some reports in Warsaw, they do not believe that Mikhail A. Suslov, generally regarded as Khrushchev's main ideological opponent, has been dismissed from the Soviet Presidium, or from his powerful position as secretary of the Soviet party.

Polish Paper Points to Chinese Red Split. © New York Times News Service. WARSAW, June 2.—The Polish weekly Swiat 1 Polska (the World and Poland) said yesterday that the "drastic extreme" of Communist China's attitude to Yugoslavia was apparently caused by internal difficulties in the Chinese party.

This comment seemed to reflect the belief of many Polish Communists that a significant shift of forces sidetracking Mao Tse-tung from direct party action

If De Gaulle Is Weak, Massu May Step In

Paratrooper Real Power Behind Leader—Army Seeks Comeback

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1958.)

WASHINGTON.

FROM information this reporter obtained while in Paris and since then by trans-Atlantic telephone, it appears that the chief thing to remember about France is that the French army is determined to stage a comeback. This is especially true of Gen. Jacques Massu, the tough paratrooper who is the real power behind De Gaulle and the man who may take his place should the generals find De Gaulle too weak.

Massu is the man who commanded French paratroopers at the landing at Suez. His men were on the verge of a victory which would have retrieved the sting of losing Indochina, Morocco, Syria, and Lebanon, and defeat by the Nazis in 1940. Then President Eisenhower stepped in and stopped the French army. This is what Gen. Massu has not forgotten and will not forget. He is not anti-American, but he is not pro-American either. He is anti-Eisenhower.

Others Against U.S. Many other French army leaders are anti-American.

You have to remember that the United States clashed with French forces during the landing in North Africa. One unit of the French Foreign Legion was caught in a ravine near Oran and wiped out by American forces. The French wiped out around 900 American troops aboard two ships when they tried to land at Oran. These are some of the unhappy incidents that come back to plague American-French relations with the French army.

Gen. De Gaulle, who was almost a prisoner in London prior to the North African landing, was not informed in advance that the Allies would land. Prime Minister Churchill figured that Frenchmen around him might leak the information. When De Gaulle read the news in British papers he was furious.

At that time De Gaulle

Safety Control Biggest Problem For Aviation, Says Air Pioneer

Jerome Lederer, Monsanto Award Winner, Calls for Single Federal Agency to Regulate Flying.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG

National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 2.

THE AIR SAFETY CONTROL question is the most critical problem facing aviation, Jerome Lederer, director of the Flight Safety Foundation, said today.

Lederer, who was aeronautical engineer for the air mail service in the pre-Lindbergh year of 1926 and served later as safety bureau director for the Civil Aeronautics Board, received the Monsanto Aviation Safety Award for 1957 Friday at the Aviation Writers' Association convention at Houston, Tex. His reply to a Post-Dispatch request for his views on the present state of air safety was delayed until he delivered an address on the subject after accepting the award for "the most significant and lasting contribution to aircraft operating safety."

The 20-year-old civil aeronautics act is "no longer geared to aviation's jet age," Lederer said, urging enactment of legislation creating a new single federal agency to regulate flying.

Hearings on such legislation introduced in companion bills by Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem., Oklahoma), and Representative Owen Harris (Dem., Arkansas), begin today. The measures would create a new federal aviation agency, free of the Department of Commerce and responsible only to the President and Congress.

"The new dynamism in aviation will have to be matched by any equal dynamism in Washington," said Lederer, who also has been director of the Cornell-Guggenheim Aviation Center since 1950. "Aviation is so closely tied to regulation that it cannot accelerate with decisions that have to be jointly made by the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board."

A single independent agency should be able to act faster, carry more weight in the halls of Congress and with the Budget Bureau than the existing two agencies—one of which (CAA) operates under another governmental department which has many other interests.

Problems of CAB. The other (CAB), although independent, is beset by a combination of technical and economic problems that (with the best of intentions) tends toward a lack of concentration on objectives that require continuous

"The air traffic control situation has been and will remain for some time to come the most critical problem facing aviation," he went on. "Fortunately, the solution now rests in the able hands of Gen. E. R. Quesada and his Airways Modernization Board."

VENEZUELA SEEKS TO DECIDE UPON COALITION LEADER

© New York Times News Service. CARACAS, June 2.—The political parties of Venezuela began a series of conversations today concerning the possibility of a coalition candidate for the presidency. They will consider both independents and professional politicians, and will debate a list of about 20 names.

Meanwhile the most prominent of the candidates—Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal—said: "I have definitely not thought of accepting the nomination."

The Junta president implied he would head the government only up to the time the newly elected President was taken over. "As a good sailor, I must bring my ship to port," he said. Nevertheless the impression persists here that Larrazabal would accept a draft.

Other candidates to be discussed by the parties will be political leaders like Rafael Caldera, civilians such as Dr. Rafael Pizani and Dr. Julio de Armas, and ex-Junta member Eugenio Mendoza.

VENEZUELA ORDERS ARREST OF FORMER SECRET POLICE

CARACAS, June 2 (UPI)—A court here has issued warrants for the arrest of former secret police chief Pedro Estrada and 35 members of the force he built up for ousted ex-President Marcos Perez Jimenez.

So far as is known, none of the men named in the warrants is now in Venezuela. Estrada, who fled to the United States when Perez was overthrown, was last reported in Italy.

Where the Money Goes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"Zooming Salaries Bigger Than Wages In Labor Cost Rise," is the title of a most amazing article by Joseph Slevin in your May 27 edition. This article seems to imply that union workers are not able to get their proper share of wage increases because of some scheme of manufacturing companies to give all their money (benevolently) to technical and professional workers instead.

Mr. Slevin would probably be shocked if I were to suggest that perhaps it might be that the use of more efficient equipment, production and cost studies, standardizations, and new techniques developed by professional people might have enabled manufacturing companies to pay increased wages without being forced out of business.

Mr. Slevin also seems to imply that those he refers to as salaried workers do not belong to unions. The great majority of office workers are organized in unions. He cites the large increase in salary cost (10%) compared with the not-so-large increase in wages (2%), which of course sounds as though individual salaries have increased tremendously more than individual wages.

Analyzing figures given earlier in his article on the growths of the two categories during the last 30 years might indicate that exactly the reverse is true, since they imply that the number of salaried workers has increased more than 10 times as fast as the number of wage earners.

Actually over this same period individual professional salaries have steadily declined in relation to individual wages to a point where there is very little incentive to make the effort necessary to become a professional worker.

As one of the professional workers who have no organized means of getting our wages increased, it is annoying to be mentioned as responsible for the increasing costs.

George R. Schmidt

When?

When will St. Louis county fluoridate its water supply?

Medical and dental authorities seem to be in general agreement that fluoridation of water is a concentration has no adverse effect upon industry, produce no toxic effect or disease, but on the contrary greatly reduce the incidence of dental caries in children.

As the mother of three young children, I am anxious to do anything to save their teeth and spare them some of the psychological and physical trauma that is unfortunately associated with trips to the dentist, as well as to spare the family some of the expense of dental treatment.

What valid reason have the minority groups against fluoridation? Is my only solution for my husband to carry our drinking water home from his office in the city?

Mrs. Virgil Loeb Jr.

What One Court Said

Now that the text is available of the New York Court of Appeals decision upholding participation of Fordham University in a New York redevelopment project, it is possible to consider accurately the claim that it supported the award of 22 acres in the Mill Creek project to St. Louis University.

The New York decision not only does not support the St. Louis plan, but shows that Fordham was required to do the very things, and more, which we contend must be done to make the Mill Creek proposal legal.

We have said that the designation of the 22 acres for "the expansion of the campus of St. Louis University," with other educational institutions eliminated from participating in the project, was illegal. In New York, however, there was no such designation as "the expansion of the campus of Fordham University." On the contrary, Fordham was not even mentioned in the plan. The designation was "for educational purposes." Fordham was required to buy the land involved at public auction. As the New York Court of Appeals said: "Any collegiate institution could have been a bidder at the auction."

This is precisely what we say should have been done in St. Louis. However, the Redevelopment Authority here has insisted that such procedure was impossible.

Any possible legal delay in the development of Mill Creek rests, therefore, with those who insist upon an exclusive award to St. Louis University, without public bidding and without permitting any other educational institution to participate.

Victor B. Harris

Where We Went Wrong

We are all to blame for our complacency and too quick to place partisan blame. If our foreign policy has slipped in Latin America it is due greatly to the lack of support the Administration has suffered from the Democratic Congress. Let's stick together and fight Communism, not each other.

De Gaulle Takes Over

Premier DeGaulle takes power in France with considerably less than the national mandate he had demanded. Instead of the 400 Assembly votes he had set as a condition for his investiture, he settled for a minimum 329. Instead of an unlimited franchise to rule by decree, he asked six months of emergency powers, and a turbulent Assembly made clear that even this would be most grudgingly granted. Instead of banishing the parliamentarians on whom he had heaped so much scorn, he included their leaders, even Pillin, in his cabinet.

The conditions of DeGaulle's assumption of power, in short, are far different from those of dictatorship which his bid for power originally implied. Once in, he may of course use the dictator's historic method of undermining the constitutional system which gave him authority. But the strength of the overt opposition, combined with that of the forces which accepted him only conditionally, should act as a deterrent to such tactics.

Having compromised with the left sufficiently to gain a parliamentary majority, DeGaulle's main problem now will be to hold in check the stormy right, whose resort to military threat brought him to power. His task is to work nothing short of a miracle in Algeria. At the same time, he has an opportunity to take the lead in reforming the constitutional weakness which has led to political crisis after crisis, and which this time confronted France with the unhappy choice of DeGaulle or a popular front government open to Communist domination.

There inevitably are doubts about his desire to rule without legislative interference. Under the French constitution, only parliament can enact laws. Rule by decree is forbidden. But this was circumvented in 1953 under the disguise of "extension of the power to make regulations." Even so, government decrees are supposed to be submitted to parliamentary committees. If disapproved, the decrees must be voted on like ordinary laws by the Assembly. But now the Assembly for a time may become little more than a rubber stamp for approving what was done while it was not in session.

This state of affairs, of course, was brought on by the irresponsibility of French politicians. Others can do no more than judge by pragmatic standards. If civil rights are respected, if France's problems are brought nearer solution, if alliances are not disturbed, and if the General's strong medicine brings a revival of responsible democracy, there will be little complaining. But the tasks which De Gaulle is undertaking are enormous.

The renunciation of political affiliations by his followers smacks of a desire for one-party rule. It is a question whether their new Algerian "integration" policy will end the drain of the North African war. This already has brought France to the verge of a bankruptcy which threatens the advances toward economic and military integration of Europe. While De Gaulle promises a foreign policy based on NATO, this may be affected by France's deteriorating position in the various inter-European organizations. And beyond these issues is the question of how he proposes to strengthen executive authority.

The difficulties are immense. Perhaps De Gaulle will use only methods which justify. Since France long has been one of the political, intellectual and cultural leaders of the West, it is to be hoped that the ordeal will be crowned by recovery. The prayer must be: Vive la France!

Will Mr. Dunne Break the Tie?

Once again the County Council has been unable to decide the fluoridation proposal that has been pending before it for almost a year. As has happened twice in the last two weeks, the question has run up against a 3-3 vote. Both times Councilman Thomas C. Dunne, north county Democrat, has abstained from voting.

Fluoridation is "controversial" to the extent that it is opposed by a small but militant minority of laymen who have frightened half the Council out of its wits. Those Councilmen, including Democrat James H. J. McNary, who seeks promotion to the Supervisor's post, have voted more on the basis of their estimate of the measure's unpopularity than on its merits. This is the easy way out for men who refuse to do the hard thinking necessary to a conclusion based on valid evidence, but it is not the proper one.

Fluoridation is a technical and scientific proposal, and the individual Councilman has a duty to inform himself by consulting the qualified technicians and scientists. Fluoridation is endorsed by every important public health, dental and medical organization in the United States.

If Councilman Dunne were ill, would he consult a physician? If he suffered from a toothache, would he see a dentist? If his answers are Yes, then why doesn't he listen to the qualified experts in this field and give fluoridation the one vote it needs?

Labor's Own Suggestions

George Meany and the revitalized leadership of the AFL-CIO for which he speaks again have shown themselves alert to the realities. It has been almost standard procedure for trade unionists to oppose any regulation of their activities. Instead of following this pattern, Meany in appealing to Congress not to enact vindictive laws also has proposed a 15-point legislative program which is fair and intelligent.

He calls for adoption of the Kennedy-Douglas bill for full publicity on welfare funds. He recommends a law to insure disclosure of the financial accounts of all but the smallest union locals. He wants the Department of Labor to have authority to examine records. He urges disclosure of expenditures by employers in efforts to discourage unionization, as well as reports by labor consultants. He would make failure to report a federal offense punishable in the federal courts.

Meany also advocates a law requiring full public reports on the trusteeships in charge of union locals. He would make the embezzlement of union funds a federal crime. He would broaden the Taft-Hartley Act to make it a crime to bribe a union official, or for such an official to accept a bribe. He would prohibit certain anti-union practices such as payments to synthetic "employees' committees," labor spies and the like. In each case, he would grant the Secretary of Labor adequate powers of investigation. Further, Meany would prescribe federal standards for union elections, these to take into account long-established procedures.

He makes no recommendations regarding needed additional rules for picketing or boycotting. That might be a little too much to expect of him. Nevertheless, Meany's recommendations cover many of the most serious labor and management abuses. Many of the abuses revealed by the McClellan Committee would have been impossible had a code such as this been vigorously enforced.

Missouri Wants None of It

With House passage of a fair-trade bill reported almost certain, Missouri risks being forced under price-fixing legislation it has successfully avoided for 25 years.

Despite warnings against it by the Justice, Agriculture and Commerce Departments and the Federal Trade Commission, the House is reported to favor by an overwhelming margin the fair-trade bill sponsored by Representative Oren Harris of Arkansas.

In the Senate, the picture is not helped by the fact that Senator Humphrey of Minnesota, an ardent advocate of fair-trade legislation, is chairman of the Small Business subcommittee which will conduct hearings on the measure June 23-25.

Fair-trade laws permit manufacturers to fix prices on trade-marked products, despite the anti-trust laws, which outlaw price-fixing. What is more, "fair-trade" imposes penalties on retailers for violation. The Harris bill outdoes all its predecessors by letting manufacturers act without the least consent by retailers, and by forcing the system on states whose legislatures have rejected it.

As the Justice Department warned the House, this would "drastically change the basic concepts of our basic economy."

It would raise prices substantially at a time when inflation is already a problem.

It would close some stores, principally the discount houses, and throw people out of work although business recession and unemployment are already vexing the nation.

It would damage retailers by preventing them from getting rid of excess inventories by reducing prices.

Fair-trade laws have always been unfair. At the present they would also be dangerous folly.

Popular Support for Alaska

On Capitol Hill they call Representative John R. Pillion "Mr. Anti-Statehood," so violently is he against admitting Alaska to the Union. To get support for his campaign of opposition, the Republican Congressman from Erie County, N.Y., sent 10,000 postcard questionnaires to constituents in his district. The question was distorted with anti-statehood phrases. It even managed to drag the issue of Communism in by the heels. Yet when the returns were in, 8206 voters had waded through the distortions and voted by the generous margin of 4 to 3 in favor of taking Alaska into the Union. This is something for the Senate to keep in mind as it prepares to take up the bill which the House passed last week after defeating just about all the stalls and dodges known to legislative procedure.

No Place for Insubordination

The suggestions that President Eisenhower was weakening on his defense reorganization plan should now be dispelled. In his latest statement on the modifications made by the House Armed Services Committee, Mr. Eisenhower made it very clear that he was going to fight for his program just as he laid it out. He has raised a third objection to the rewriting that was done by the Committee. This one, more serious than the two dealing with the right of Congress to block service mergers and the authority of the service secretaries, involves the relationship of the Defense establishment to Congress.

Under the present law, a service secretary or a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has the right to present to Congress "on his own initiative, after first so informing the Secretary of Defense, any recommendation concerning the Department of Defense that he may deem proper." President Eisenhower declares this clause is "best described as legal insubordination." He also views it as an invitation to service rivalries.

It is said that no use has ever been made of the clause. That would seem to be another reason for showing it has no reason for being. There is ample opportunity for making suggestions and registering complaints through the normal channels within the Defense Department. And Congress always has the right to step in and investigate wherever it sees fit.

Congress may have legitimate doubts about passing a defense law which seems to block direct communication between some military leaders and itself. But it should consider also the evils that arise when military men can circumvent their own chiefs and go straight to Congress for the purpose of upsetting decisions reached by the defense establishment.

Any admiral or general, of course, has the right to appeal directly to Congress if he is willing to give up his job. Should he have the right to keep his job and at the same time flout the authority of his superiors? President Eisenhower thinks not, and his experience gives his opinion great weight. We think the House ought to take his advice and knock out the clause when the bill comes up for action.

An Eye on the TV Networks

The Department of Justice in Washington acts in the interests of the people in its reminder to the Federal Communications Commission that television networks are subject to the federal anti-trust laws. In the opinion of Assistant Attorney General Victor R. Hansen, certain basic network practices violate policies laid down by Congress.

One such practice is the "must buy" arrangement. This requires any advertiser who desires to use the network to any extent to contract for time on all stations on the network.

Another practice which the Justice Department questions is known as "option time." Under this practice the networks may require all their affiliated stations to put on network programs for 12 hours out of each 24.

These are not the only practices which the Justice Department finds questionable and which the networks are defending as necessary. Initially at stake here is not whether the practices are right or wrong, but the responsibility of the FCC to be an alert regulator of the television industry. If the FCC were doing its duty, the Department of Justice would have no occasion to sound this warning.

Missouri's Patchwork of Local Governments

Taxpayers Are Burdened With Inefficiency of Overlapping Units

From the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey

Missouri citizens are unnecessarily burdened with a multiplicity of local units of government. Local government in many cases would be improved by reorganization and consolidation of numerous small units into fewer, stronger and more useful units. The facts of the local government picture were gathered by the United States Bureau of Census, and they disclose that:

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Missouri has 5307 units of government. This is one unit of government for every 801 citizens. For the nation as a whole, there are 1664 citizens for each unit of government—or more than twice as many citizens per unit as in Missouri.

The Missouri county having the largest number of governmental units within its boundary is St. Louis county with 147. The county with the smallest number is Worth county with nine.

Almost three-fourths of the state's school districts are not operating schools or have less than 40 pupils each.

—Missouri with 546 road districts has 70 per cent of all road districts in the United States.

—Only eight states have a larger percentage of their populations living in municipalities than Missouri.

—Missouri with 561 municipalities under 1000 population is exceeded by only three states in number of municipalities.

—With 114 counties, Missouri is exceeded by only three states in number of counties.

Thousands of small, weak units result in duplication of services, higher administrative costs, overlapping and diffusion of authority and responsibility, fragmenting of financial resources and other related inefficiencies and problems.

For example, too many school districts in Missouri cause an illogical division of tax and bonding resources. With financial resources spread thinly and unevenly one school district may have an average of $2,000 assessed valuation back of each pupil while an adjoining district has an average of $34,000.

A similar situation exists in many special districts, townships, and other units of government. Weak school districts can't afford needed professional skills and adequate facilities and small road districts can't afford to hire the technical skills required in modern road building or the specialized equipment needed to do the job well.

The administrative confusion inherent in a multiplicity of small units thwarts citizen participation in local government. Due to their small size and lack of resources, many small districts find it necessary to operate with part-time and poorly qualified personnel.

When a citizen wants information often he can't find out who has it, or if he does, he frequently can't get an informed answer.

The existence of small, inefficient units, incapable of providing the services required of them, often leads to calls for state help, but state aid usually perpetuates these units and puts off the needed reorganization or consolidation.

Strengthening local government by improved organization enables citizens to solve many problems at the local level and relieves pressures on already over-loaded state and federal governments.

While progress is being made, particularly in reducing the number of school districts, much more study and effort is needed in Missouri toward reorganizing its multiplicity of small local units into efficient, responsible units of sufficient size to provide needed services economically and efficiently.

Stan Enters the Select Company From the Trenton (N.J.) Evening Times

Not all of the history that is being written these disturbing days is on the somber side. Occasionally a cheerful note intrudes, such as that sounded in Chicago recently when Stan The Man Musial, hastily summoned from the bench as a pinch-hitter, cracked out his 3000th major league hit.

The event was anticipated and was destined to be historic. It was scheduled to be staged in the more auspicious setting of the Cardinals' home grounds and before admiring throngs of the townsfolk. Stan was being held in reserve for the occasion. But it so happened that St. Louis needed a hit to score a run and win the game. And Stan always has a hit stored away in his keen eye, his strong arms and hands.

Needless to say, he delivered and thus entered a select company numbering only a few of the game's immortals—Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Napoleon Lajoie, Honus Wagner, Paul Waner and Adrian Anson. There will be no discordant notes in the peasants of praise rising wherever the game is played.

The universal reaction, variously expressed, will be: "It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy."

Between Book Ends Civil War Sequel, The Kremlin, 'Clock in the Sky'

THE HOUSE IN RUINS, by Robert S. Weekley. (Random House, 248 pgs., $3.50.)

Outstanding in several ways in the wave of Confederate-Union writings of the past year or so, both the fictional and the non-fictional, is this taut, economically written short novel of D. D. P.

Southerners who refused to take the military verdict of Appomattox.

In his first published work, the 25-year-old Mr. Weekley evokes with skill and a fine conviction a people and a scene with which Robert Weekley is clearly well-familiar, his native Mississippi. He offers a story of a mixed group of men with mixed motives—whites and Negroes, civilians and military in a tense hour that provided one sequel to the war's end in the Deep South.

Mr. Weekley's figures are a determined individual, head of a band which went systematically to work in Cold Fork, Miss., to bring loss and terror to the Union troops that lived about the area; his rather less single-minded nephew; two or three women of varying social status, a Negro or two drawn in one way or another into the tragic events that followed.

The author holds a controlled hand over his narrative, which moves with precision and a certain inevitability. He has the gift of a telling phrase, a sharp observation of costume or mannerism; a moving sentence, a scene sketched with apparently effortless effect. While there is an element of suspense in the plot, Mr. Weekley seeks to do much more than give a tale of action, and in this aim he succeeds well.

Here, all in all, is a thoughtful book, a novel of characters and also of character.

THE KREMLIN: EIGHT CENTURIES OF TYRANNY AND TERROR, by Jules Koslow. (Thomas Nelson & Sons, 244 pgs., $5.)

The Kremlin—"part fortress, part palace and part cathedral"—has been a force in world history for more than 800 years and yet here is, so the publishers assert, the first book about that strange and fascinating place to be published in English.

The story begins in the era of Genghis Khan, continues through the reign of Ivan the Terrible whose father taught him cruelly by throwing the cobbles below, and comes down to the Communist purges. Other notables in its violent history include Peter the Great and Catherine all of whom came under what almost seems to be the Kremlin's evil spell.

Only the final and twenty-second chapter of 15 pages (out of a total of 220 pages of text) concerns the Kremlin under the Communists—Lenin, Stalin and their current successors. That suggests how much more to the Kremlin story there is than being merely a symbol of post-World War I Red dictatorship. The author, who has toured the walled area of which he writes, is an editor for the Ford Foundation.

PRACTICAL ASTRONOMY: A NEW APPROACH TO AN OLD SCIENCE, by W. Schroeder. (Philosophical, 206 pgs., $6.)

The importance of time, light, the appearance of the sky and various astronomical phenomena are very closely related to man's life. The reader of this practical book on astronomy will find a wealth of information about various aspects of astronomical science. Here in forthright language and clear-cut diagrams are explained the use of the stars as a "Clock in the Sky," the determination of time by sundial, the use of the quadrant by navigators, the peculiar orbits of planets and our astronomical calendar.

Through a better understanding of these data, the reader is further guided in the construction of simple instruments of use to the astronomer. A ruler and compasses and the graphs and tables printed in the book preclude the use of mathematics in solving problems such as predicting an eclipse of the moon with an error of less than 10 minutes.

With the new shape of things in the sky in this age of artificial satellites, more individuals are interested in the determination of a satellite orbit. Such predictions will be more understandable after learning about the "celestial globe" as outlined by Mr. Schroeder.

Beginning with early theories on the nature of the Universe, and ending with instructions on how to construct a simple telescope, this readable, thorough book is a valuable reference tool for the aspiring gazer and the student of astronomy.

WILLIAM S. WHITE

Kefauver: Independent, Indefatigable

INDEPENDENT, INDEFATIGABLE, indestructible and inextinguishable—all these large adjectives best describe Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. He is as independent a politician as ever twice ran for the Democratic presidential nomination.

When he sought it in 1952, he had arrayed against him the top leaders of the two most powerful wings of the party—the northern organization bosses and every last one of the Southern elders. The story was about the same in his next try, 1956. But this time, though Adlai E. Stevenson won the top prize from the Democratic convention, Kefauver got the Vice Presidential nomination. He is thus not quite a two-time loser—having been in 1956 in the "place" position with Stevenson in the "win" position.

But the real point, on both occasions, was that Kefauver was able to survive such massive hostility at all.

Must Stay in Senate.

An even more arresting point brings this piece to another of the adjectives for him—indefatigable.

His seat in the Senate is up in 1960—and this, of course, he simply has to hold. Thus all his planning must, and undoubtedly does, center on remaining in the Senate.

Nevertheless, few of the general political rules apply to Kefauver. And none of them applies to him all the time. He is, therefore, an entirely safe prophecy that one way or another his name will be in the 1960 Presidential reckoning.

Kefauver's ambition, even at its height, has been the sleepiest-looking in the experience of this writer.

Not in Southern Club.

But depend on this: somebody or something—Kefauver himself, his friends or some turn of the wheel of chance, will see to it that he is not altogether out of it.

For Kefauver—and now the adjective "inextinguishable" is reached—defies any ready analysis or ready understanding as a political force. Though from Tennessee, he is not really a Southern politician—and not even really a typical border-state politician.

WASHINGTON.

Kefauver

So little is he in agreement with the Southerners that for years they excluded him from their informal but real club in the Senate. Even now, he only timidly "pokes his head in occasionally."

His speech, particularly in the Senate and to some extent on the stump, is largely an amiable muttering and murmuring to most of his audience. His memory for first and last names—and a keen memory is supposed to be a politician's special requirement—is so bad as to be almost unbelievable.

Smiles in Wisconsin.

Reporters chancing to visit Oklahoma in the 1956 campaign may recall that Kefauver on several occasions spoke proudly to the crowds of his friendship for a fellow Democratic Senator from Oklahoma—"Mike Mansfield." Mansfield is from Montana; Senator Mike Monroney is from Oklahoma.

This correspondent remembers crossing the Kefauver trail in Wisconsin in that same campaign. There this tall, gangling, gaping outlander seemed as alien to the upper Midwest as one could possibly be. But everywhere he went, and no matter what he said or seemed to say, he left the stolid Wisconsin farmers in broad, fond smiles.

Kefauver himself at the very same time usually was looking unaccountably downcast—and a little lost. If any man is able to beam sadly, that man is Estes Kefauver.

Some of the Bravest Votes.

As there is enigma in his personality, there is enigma in his Senate record. He has cast, wisely or not, some of the bravest Senate votes in its post-war history, particularly against frightened actions in the field of subversive control and immigration.

On the other hand, he has seemed to have missed a good many votes altogether. And nearly always about him there has been, to one observer, a faint, genial confusion.

This correspondent has never felt sure he understood in the least where Kefauver was going on some issues, and why.

EISENHOWER URGES YOUTH PEACE DRIVE

Gets Honorary Degree at Mount St. Mary's College.

EMMITSBURG, Md., June 2 (AP)—President Eisenhower called on the youth of America today to wage a crusade for world peace and for justice at home and abroad.

In a commencement address at Mount St. Mary's College, the President said the basic struggle in this age was between free governments based on religious faith and despotic communism.

Mr. Eisenhower told 120 graduates and an audience of about 3200 others that the present offers a wonderful opportunity for pioneering—in such fields as racial relations, education, slum clearance and, generally, the increasing of living standards.

He said he was talking not only about such opportunities in this country, but also in undeveloped nations of the free world.

Role of Neighbor.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Eisenhower, came to the college in the role of neighbor. He and his wife motored to the campus from their farm home at Gettysburg, Pa., where they spent the Memorial day weekend. After the address they returned to Washington by automobile.

This is the 150th anniversary of the founding of Mount St. Mary's.

In advance of his informal talk, the President received an honorary doctor of laws degree. The accompanying citation, read in Latin at the commencement exercises, praised Mr. Eisenhower as a modern colossus who has helped bind the free world in strong alliance.

The President, robed in academic cap and gown, was introduced by Maryland's Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin. Also on the platform were dignitaries of the Catholic church, in scarlet capes, and other Maryland officials.

Pioneer Opportunity.

In his extemporaneous talk, the President said he was amazed recently in reading about a college student who complained there is no longer an opportunity for pioneering in America.

"I think," said Mr. Eisenhower, "there are far more frontiers to be explored and more crusades to be waged than ever before in our history."

Then he went on to say he would like America's youth to crusade for two things particularly—justice at home and abroad, and world peace.

Then he called for a crusade against juvenile delinquency. As for racial problems at home, the President said: "If we believe in the Constitution, if we believe the words of our founding documents, where they say that men are created equal," then there is still much to be accomplished.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PRESIDENT CHOSEN

L. T. Carney, Boston, in Keynote Calls for Spiritual Maturity.

BOSTON, June 2 (AP)—Leonard T. Carney of Boston was named president of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, today.

His appointment was announced by the Christian Science board of directors at the annual meeting of the denomination attended by more than 7000 Christian Scientists from many parts of the world.

He succeeds Miss Mabel Ellen Lucas of Brookline, Mass., and will serve for one year.

A member of the board of trustees of the Christian Science Publishing Society, Carney holds degrees from Grinnell College and the Harvard Law School. He is a native of Marshalltown, Ia.

Roy Garrett Watson and Gordon V. Comer were re-elected treasurer and clerk, respectively.

The board of directors told the meeting that scientific reliance on God's power is needed to meet the challenges of the space age.

In his keynote address, Carney stressed the need for spiritual maturity. "It is yielding to materiality," he said, "that blocks our progress. The shackles of materiality fall away as we advance spiritually."

MRS. LOUISE E. NUGENT DIES; ASSOCIATE IN LINEN CONCERN

Mrs. Louise E. Nugent, vice president of L. E. Nugent, Inc., died of a heart ailment yesterday at St. Mary's Hospital. She was 69 years old and lived at 4 Andred Walk, University City. The Clayton linen importing firm bearing her name was formed by Mrs. Nugent, in association with a sister and another partner, in 1948. She had been a linen tressor consultant for debutantes here for 25 years.

INTEREST REVIVED IN SPIRITUAL HEALING

Presbyterians Latest of Protestant Groups to Give It Recognition.

By New York Times News Service
PITTSBURGH, June 2—Spiritual healing is fast becoming the most talked-about phenomenon in American Protestantism.

With few exceptions, every major Protestant body in the country has given the "healing ministry" a place in its forums and assemblies.

Latest to do so is the new United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., formed here six days ago by a merger of two denominations. The church has a 14-member special committee on the relation of Christian faith to health.

Committee members include the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, a former St. Louisan who is chief administrative officer of the new church.

A report prepared by the committee described as a danger the "tense emotional atmosphere of large healing missions" where the individual healer, rather than God, is singled out as the source of renewed health. It also warned against the danger of rejecting medical aid.

Without mentioning individuals, the report declared that the "reappearance of faith-healing cults reflects the failure of both the church and the medical profession to take account of and to make clear the inspiration and meaning to life of faith in God."

Basic in the revived interest in spiritual healing is the premise that Christ himself was the first practitioner of a healing ministry.

One of the leading proponents of spiritual healing is the Rev. Dr. John Ellis Large, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Heavenly Rest in New York. Recently, Dr. Large said the legitimate healing ministry has no relation to Christian Science, or "black magic," nor is it a "back door way of bargaining with God" to get rid of ulcers.

It is simply, he declared, an ancient, Biblical and classic way of "reopening the Thruway of the soul between man and his Creator."

Fees are not a part of the healing ministry.

Most clergymen involved in the ministry of healing are not overly interested in medical proof.

In its report, the Presbyterian committee asserted that the healing ministry requires doctors and ministers to "work together in mutual respect and understanding."

The committee also reported that it had received a "modest grant" from a foundation to enable it to "undertake a more serious survey of present practices in our church in the realm of spiritual healing."

SIR LOU'S STERLING DIES; BRITISH RADIO FIRM HEAD

LONDON, June 2 (UPI)—Sir Louis Sterling, who built up Britain's largest radio and record company and ran it for 40 years, died today. He was 79 years old.

Sterling, an American-born naturalized Briton, was not only a shrewd business man but also a philanthropist and a first nighter. He gave away more than £1,250,000 ($3,500,000) in his lifetime. He was knighted in 1947.

He came over from New York on a cattle boat at the turn of the century with $25 in his pocket. He stayed to become the boss of His Master's Voice record company, now merged in the giant E.M.I. radio and record combine.

CALLS FOR TEACHING INTELLECTUAL VIRTUE

Fontbonne Speaker Says Parents Must Nourish Children's Minds.

Parents who are absorbed in the "world of illusion" represented by much of modern advertising cannot be expected to provide a proper intellectual climate for their children, the Rev. William J. Rooney said here yesterday.

Father Rooney, executive director of the Catholic Commission on Intellectual and Cultural Affairs, spoke at graduation exercises of Fontbonne College. Sixty-nine young women received degrees.

Much of the content of mass circulation magazines and television programs, Father Rooney said, is a threat to the intellectual excellence of children.

It is necessary that children be taught intellectual discrimination, he said, and parents have a duty to see that they develop intellectual as well as moral virtue.

Father Rooney, associate professor of English at Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., said society's pressures moved people toward "a deadening uniformity and a prolongation of all the insecurities of adolescence."

Parents set up a climate of opinion in the home, he said, and inevitably the children reflect the way their fathers and mothers think and feel.

"Where the parent accepts as life the discontinuous chatter of so much of what passes for entertainment," he asked, "can we expect that the home will be other than a climate where popular slops and blind prejudices prevail?"

SGT. MARCEL BONZON DIES; COUNTY POLICE EMPLOYEE

Sgt. Marcel Bonzon, who was in charge of the identification bureau of the St. Louis County Police Department, died of cancer today at the County Hospital. He was 52 years old.

A former yardmaster at Missouri State Penitentiary, he also was a former deputy sheriff and deputy constable. He had been a member of the county police department since 1955.

He lived at 6336 Suburban avenue in Wellston. His wife and four children survive.

UNIVERSITY ALUMNI PLAN 36 REUNIONS

Class Functions Are Part of Commencement Week at Washington U.

Alumni of Washington University have planned 36 special class reunions during the university's ninety-seventh annual commencement week, starting Thursday.

The medical class of 1933 will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday at Old Warsaw Country Club, while the medical class of 1948 meets at 8 p.m. on the same day at the Forest Park Hotel.

Friday meetings include the medical classes of 1908, 1913, 1918, 1923, 1928 and 1938 at Hotel Chase at 6 p.m. and the arts and sciences class of 1948 at Ray Quinlan's Party House, 7817 Clayton road, Clayton.

Reunions Saturday will include the arts and sciences class of 1933 at Schneithorst's Restaurant, Clayton road and Lindbergh boulevard, and the medical class of 1943 at Hotel Coronado at 6 p.m.

Next Sunday, the arts and sciences class of 1933 will meet at the Kuhs estate, 13080 Spanish Pond road, and the arts and science class of 1929 will meet at 4:30 p.m. at Le Chateau Restaurant, 10405 Clayton road, Frontenac.

Reunions of the law classes of 1908, 1913, 1918, 1923, 1928, 1933, 1938, 1943, 1948 and 1953 will be held during the Law Alumni banquet, June 9 at 3 p.m. at Ruggeri's Restaurant, 2300 Edwards street. The same day reunions will be held by the arts and sciences class of 1913 at 5:30 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vollmar, 8920 Julia Dent drive, Grantwood Village. The arts and sciences class of 1918 will also meet the same day at Le Chateau Restaurant.

Classes of 1883, 1888, 1893, 1898, 1903 and 1908 will meet for luncheon June 10 at the residence of Chancellor and Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley, 6510 Ellenwood avenue, Clayton. The arts and sciences class of 1908 also meets June 10 at 3:30 p.m. at 64 Broadview drive, Clayton.

Other meetings June 10 are the arts and sciences class of 1923 at the Prime Rib, 7800 Clayton road, Clayton, at 4:30 p.m.; arts and sciences, 1938, Garavelli's Restaurant, De-Giverville and DeBalliviere avenues, 4:30 p.m.; arts and sciences, 1943, at Town Hall, 6736 Clayton road, Clayton, at 5 p.m.; arts and sciences, 1953, Santoro's Restaurant, 375 North Big Bend boulevard, University City.

Ina Ray Hutton Married. LAS VEGAS, June 2 (UPI)—Bandleader Ina Ray Hutton, 39 years old, and beauty stylist Michael Anter, 34, were married here Saturday. It was the blond bandleader's third marriage and the second for Anter, who operates the beauty salon at the Dunes hotel here.

SINATRA ON WAY TO MONACO

HOLLYWOOD, June 2 (AP)—Frank Sinatra departed last night for Monaco to attend the premiere of the film "Kings Go Forth" June 14.

The singer also will appear as guest star at the "gala," an annual event sponsored by Prince Rainier and Princess Grace. Proceeds from it go to the United Nations child refugee fund.

STEVENSON CALLS PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY USELESS

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said last night that the presidential primary was almost useless.

"It's a very, very questionable method of selecting presidential candidates and actually it never does," Stevenson said. "All it does is destroy some candidates."

A man who aspires to the presidency—a governor or a United States Senator, for example—has not got the time to run in a primary if he is conscientious about his job, Stevenson said.

Stevenson's remarks were made on the Mike Wallace interview series "Survival and Freedom."

He said, in primaries "you burn up yourself, you burn up your ammunition, you burn up your means."

DR. DANIEL LASZLO DIES; STUDIED STRONTIUM 90

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Dr. Daniel Laszlo, internationally-known cancer expert who last year headed research which showed how strontium 90 can be eliminated from the human body, died yesterday. He was 53 years old.

His studies on strontium 90 were aided by the Atomic Energy Commission and United States Public Health Service. His wife, Dr. Herta Spencer, helped him to head the research team.

They reported findings that 90 per cent of radioactive strontium 90—one of the by-products of nuclear bomb explosions—which is taken in orally through food is eliminated automatically. They also found that the amount of strontium 90 eliminated can be greatly increased by administering calcium gluconate and ammonium chloride. Strontium 90 tends to accumulate in bone marrow.

CAPT. GERHARDT SCHWARTZ FUNERAL TO BE WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Capt. Gerhardt F. Schwartz, retired commander of the Sixth Naval Reserve Area, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Belvidere undertaking establishment, 3620 Chippewa street, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Capt. Schwartz, who was 80 years old and lived at 5069 Cabanne avenue, died Saturday of a brain hemorrhage at Deaconess Hospital. He was commander of the Naval District, which includes Missouri, parts of Kansas and Illinois, for 21 years before his retirement in 1942. He was a charter member of the American Legion, founded here in 1919, and founded of the Legion's Navy Post 294.

In World War I, he helped train sailors in pre-aviation at Gulfport, Miss. He was promoted to the rank of captain in 1935. A sister, Mrs. Clara Morrison, survives.

MRS. MARTHA KEENER DIES; 104 YEARS OLD

Mother of Sid Keener, Director of Baseball Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Martha Edwina Keener, who observed her 104th birthday Jan. 2, died yesterday at the Ozark Nursing Home, 11692 Manchester road, Des Peres. She was active and in comparatively good health until six months ago.

Mrs. Keener, who formerly lived at 7111 Dale avenue, Richmond Heights, was the mother of Sid C. Keener, former sports editor of the old St. Louis Star-Times who now directs the Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Cooperstown, N. Y.

She was born in Berlin, Germany, in 1854. Mrs. Keener came to the United States with her parents in the late 1850s. The family settled first in Baltimore and then moved to Nashville, Tenn. She married Edward Keener and moved to St. Louis in the 1870s.

Mrs. Keener's hobby was baseball. She followed newspaper accounts closely, and could recall names of St. Louis baseball greats from the days of Charles A. Comiskey's Browns, in the late nineteenth century, to Stan Musial.

Surviving, in addition to Sid Keener, are another son, Fred Keener, of Norfolk, Va., and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Foster of West Palm Beach, Fla. The funeral will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. at Ambuster undertaking establishment, 6633 Clayton road, Clayton, with burial at Valhalla Cemetery.

HOUSE SENDS FHA LOAN AUTHORITY TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 2 (UPI)—The House passed and sent to the White House today legislation to permit the Federal Housing Administration to resume federal aid to home financing.

The bill, passed by overwhelming voice vote, would increase to $31,500,000,000 the ceiling on the amount of home mortgages which the agency can insure. The present limit is $27,500,000,000.

FHA has exhausted its present insurance authority. Its 75 field offices last Wednesday were ordered to stop issuing commitments to insure home mortgages. FHA Commissioner Norman P. Mason said this was necessary to stay within the dollar limit imposed by law.

There never was any question of Congress increasing the ceiling. But the final outcome was a victory for the Administration.

Liberal Democrats had hoped to hold back temporarily some of the four-billion-dollar request by the Administration for inclusion later in an omnibus housing bill. They wanted it as insurance against an expected presidential veto of their housing bill.

The Democratic-controlled House Banking Committee had recommended an increase of only one billion dollars to tide FHA over until the big housing bill is enacted. But the Democrats abandoned the strategy after the Senate late Thursday approved the full four-billion-dollar increase.

No Treasury funds are directly in the FHA bill. It merely increases the amount of mortgages which may be insured at any one time.

Under the program, buyers of FHA-insured housing pay a one-half of 1 per cent premium to cover cost of the program. This is in addition to the 5 1/2 per cent interest which FHA permits mortgage lenders.

H-TEST PROTEST VOYAGE TO GO ON, PRESIDENT IS TOLD

HONOLULU, June 2 (AP)—A Connecticut skipper who is against nuclear tests has sent President Eisenhower word that he intends to defy the Government by sailing his ketch Golden Rule Wednesday toward Eniwetok. United States nuclear tests now are in progress there.

The 52-year-old skipper, Albert Smith Bigelow, of Cos Cob, Conn., still is on probation with his crew for trying the same thing May 1.

"You, our President, can stop United States nuclear test explosions immediately and turn the world away from monstrous arms competition threatening humanity with extinction," read the message Bigelow sent Mr. Eisenhower. When the Golden Rule tried to sail from Honolulu for Eniwetok May 1, it was halted by the Coast Guard 1 1/2 miles from shore and towed back.

Its four crewmen were convicted of criminal contempt of court for defying a court injunction and given 60-day suspended sentences. They were placed on probation for one year.

BLAIR TO FLY TO NEW YORK FOR ISRAELI ANNIVERSARY

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 2—Gov. James T. Blair will fly to New York tomorrow to attend ceremonies marking the tenth anniversary of Israel's independence, he announced today.

The Governor said he may go to Washington from New York to learn what the Government's plans are for liberalizing the unemployment compensation program. If the plans call for increasing the state unemployment tax rate, action by the State Legislature would be required.

PHILADELPHIA NEWSPAPER STRIKE MEDIATION SET

PHILADELPHIA, June 2 (AP)—Federal mediators are preparing to intervene in a weekend strike that has halted distribution of this city's two major newspapers, the Inquirer and the Bulletin.

Two unions are now on strike with no settlement in sight. They are Teamsters Local 628 which distributes the papers, and the American Newspaper Guild, representing editorial and clerical workers, which struck the Inquirer early Sunday.

The teamsters strike also includes the nearby Camden Courier-Post, the major afternoon newspaper in southern New Jersey.

COMMERCIAL TELEGRAPHERS AND WESTERN UNION AGREE

WASHINGTON, June 2 (AP)—A nation-wide telegraph agreement in principle on a new contract between Western Union and the Commercial Telegraphers Union.

The agreement still must be drawn up formally and ratified by the union. It calls for a 6-cent hourly wage increase, effective June 1, plus an additional 5 cents an hour effective Sept. 1. Workers involved now average $1.80 an hour.

In addition, Western Union agreed to set up a fund, equivalent to a 3-cent-an-hour wage increase, for the correction of inequities.

Text of De Gaulle's Address To French National Assembly

PARIS, June 2 (AP). Following is an unofficial translation of the text of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's address yesterday to the National Assembly:

THE DEGRADATION OF THE STATE going at a headlong pace. French unity directly menaced. Algeria plunged into a storm of trials and emotions. Corsica undergoing a feverish contagion. In the metropolis movements in opposite directions reinforcing their passion and their action hour by hour.

The army, long suffering under bloody and meritorious tasks but scandalized by the insolence of the public powers. Our international position beaten and battered right up to the heart even of our alliances.

Such is the situation of the country. Even in this moment where so many chances, in so many respects, are offered to France, it finds itself threatened with a breakup and may be of civil war.

It is in these conditions that I have proposed myself to try to lead, one more time for the welfare of the country, the state, the republic, and that, nominated by the chief of state, I have been brought to ask the National Assembly to invest me for a heavy duty.

For this duty, the means are necessary.

The Government, if you wish to invest it, will propose that you attribute them (the powers) very soon. It will ask these full powers in order to be able to act in the conditions of effectiveness, rapidity and responsibility required by the situation.

It will ask of you these powers for a duration of six months, hoping that at the end of this period, order being restored in the state, hope reappears, the amount of the public powers to resume the normal course of their operation.

But this would only be a provisional remedy, for better or worse, for a disastrous state of affairs, if we did not decide to finish with the deep causes of our difficulties.

The cause—the Assembly knows and the nation is convinced of it—is the confusion and, through this, the impotence of the public powers. The Government that I am going to form, on condition of receiving your confidence, will introduce without delay a bill for reform of Article 90 of the Constitution, of such a nature that the National Assembly gives a mandate to the Government to prepare, then to propose to the country through a referendum, the indispensable changes.

By the terms of the introduction to the bill (outlining its purpose) which will be submitted to you at the same time as the text, the Government will state precisely the three principles which must be, in France, the basis for a Republican regime and to which it promises to make its project conform. Universal suffrage is the source of all power.

The executive power and the legislative power must be effectively separated in such a way that the Government and the Parliament assume, each for its part and under its responsibility, the whole of its attributions. The Government must be responsible to Parliament.

The solemn occasion to reorganize the relationship of the French republic with peoples associated with it will be offered to the country in the same constitutional reform. The Government will make the commitment to promote this new organization in the project which it will propose to the voters of France.

Endowed with this double mandate, conferred upon it by the National Assembly, the Government will be able to undertake the immense task which will thus be fixed for it. As for me, to assume it, I need, first of all and assuredly, your confidence.

And then, without any delay—for events do not accord us any time—Parliament must vote the bills which will be submitted to it.

Once they are voted, Parliament will take a vacation until the date set for the opening of its next ordinary session. Thus, the Government of the republic, empowered by the national representatives and, with extreme urgency, provided with the means of action, will be able to assure the unity, the integrity and the independence of France.

Air Safety

stead of snap decisions is the kind of mature action that is required."

The aviation industry, Lederer said, had been "unable to combat complacency in the highest reaches of government in regard to air traffic control before 1956" and should have learned a lesson from its experience.

"Who in the industry refused to recognize the importance of the problem?" he asked. "Was there any pi-sissingfoot? What can be done to prevent such a situation from arising again? These questions are asked not to fix blame but to prevent similar delays in the future in other areas."

In 1938, when the civil aeronautics act was passed, only a few more than a million passengers used the airlines, Lederer pointed out in discussing the explosive growth of the industry. This year nearly 50,000,000 passengers are expected. In 1938 fatalities for each 100,000,000 passenger miles were 4.5; last year, 0.2.

The number of aircraft in general use in 1938 was about 11,000, of which 183 were involved in fatal accidents, Lederer recalled. Last year there were more than 67,000 aircraft and 360 of them figured in fatalities.

"As highways become more congested, as more aids to navigation are installed and more landing areas built, an ever-growing number of people will seek the air in preference to the hazards of the road," Lederer predicted.

"But the civil aeronautics act of 1938 was designed for a different breed of aircraft than we are now on the threshold of using. The cruising speed of the air transports of 1938 was less than many of the privately owned aircraft of today."

More Speed, Weight. "The new transports will fly three times as fast, three times as high, descend 10 times as rapidly, weigh 12 times as much and carry up to 10 times as many passengers as those of 1938. They will be equipped with an entirely different kind of power plant. They will cruise in the same air space as military jets and in climb and descent will use the same air space as all other aircraft."

Complicating these new developments of the jet age even further is the growing use of helicopters and the increase in their size. Use of 15-passenger helicopters began last week in New York.

Within a few years, Lederer sees development of steep takeoff and landing aircraft which, he thinks, will make it possible for the airlines to enter the short-haul market as successfully as they have taken over the long-haul passenger market.

SCHOOLS DIDN'T TAKE $10,000 COUNTY GIFT

The St. Louis County Board of Education did not accept $10,000 offered last year by the County Council to finance a school district reorganization survey, a spokesman for the Council said yesterday.

Donald E. Lasater, the Council's executive secretary, told the offer during a television panel discussion of school district consolidation. In answer to questions, he explained the council has neither the authority nor inclination to intervene in school matters. The council nevertheless wanted to be helpful in solving schooling problems, Lasater added, and told of the offer of $10,000 to the board.

Lasater, amplifying his remarks after the telecast, said the offer arose from a conference between County Supervisor Luman P. Lumsden and the county school board.

Board members, he said, had commented they were responsible to the State Board of Education for recommending consolidation of school districts but had not been given funds to finance a survey.

Asked by Matthews how much was needed, the board made an estimate of from $40,000 to $50,000, Lasater said. The council, "to encourage the board in its task," was willing to give $10,000 toward the survey's cost, Lasater said. He said his recollection was that the council voted a resolution to that end.

Paul A. Leopold, president of the school board, said today he could not recall the $10,000 being formally proffered. There would be no point in accepting it, he said, with knowledge that no additional funds would be available to cover the remainder of the survey's cost.

Officials of various county school districts since have helped the board to obtain much of the data that would have been gathered in a professional survey, Leopold said.

Other participants in the television program, sponsored by Teamsters Joint Council 13, were Edgar C. Miller, assistant principal of Fairview High School; Francis J. Lloyd Jr., superintendent of Clayton public schools; Carl A. McCandless, associate director of the Metropolitan St. Louis Survey and professor of political science at Washington University; and Sidney Zagari, the union's community relations director.

Chinese Communist ideology since his two major innovations of nearly two years ago. Both have since been ended. One was the invitation for an open clash of opinion summed up in the call to "let a hundred flowers bloom, let a hundred schools of thought contend." Second was Mao's contention that "contradictions" between various classes must exist in socialist as well as capitalist society.

It was Liu, not Mao, who made the major report to the recent Chinese party congress condemning the Yugoslav Communist ideology in violent terms. The Congress upheld the justice of the sanctions imposed on Yugoslavia by Stalin in 1948. Later the Russians themselves conceded that sanctions were a mistake.

leaned toward Russia. Churchill accused him of being pro-Russian. Last winter when De Gaulle began to assume a strong backstage role in French politics, the Russian Ambassador began calling on him. It is to be expected that De Gaulle might now play the United States off against Russia.

Another fact to remember about De Gaulle is that very few of the French really know what he stands for. All they know is that France needs a strong man to pull the nation together. Actually De Gaulle is not too strong. He is sincere, stubborn, old, and not at all brilliant. Many consider him stupid. But on the question of Algeria he is moderate and would probably favor a reasonable early independence. If he is too moderate, the army clique which is using him will undoubtedly move in and take over.

Dairy Products Play a Leading Role in Summer Menus

Here's a Trick
To Make
Steaks Superb

WHAT IS better than broiled steak? Well, for one thing, steak broiled with a special butter spread. For instance, a steak broiled right in your own kitchen can have that wonderfully smoky flavor of a charcoal broil.

How? Simply by spreading it lavishly with Provone Butter, a delectable mixture of softened butter, grated Provone cheese (a mild, smoky cheese of Italian origin), chopped onion and Worcestershire sauce.

Prefer a robust flavor? A favorite with the stout of heart is Garlic Butter; blend minced garlic with softened butter, then add the authority of a little prepared mustard.

Parmesan cheese is a favorite of devotees of Italian food, and when grated Parmesan is mixed with oregano and golden butter, there's a spread worthy of the most discriminating gourmet.

The real value of these savory spreads is that they make it possible to dress up even the less expensive cuts of meat and serve them with great distinction by adding the flavor that is your own particular favorite.

Butter Broiled Steak.

Four small steaks about one-half inch thick. Spread one of the following butters generously on top side of steaks. Broil butter side up for three to five minutes (depending upon how well done the meat is desired). Salt. Turn steaks, butter other side. Continued on Page 2, Col. 3.

Custom-made Delicacies

Recipe for Summer Fun—
A 'Soda Fountain' at Home

COME SUMMER it is a wise mother who sets up a soda fountain at home as insurance for keeping the small fry in "seeing distance" and close tabs on teenagers.

It's easy to do—tall glasses, straws, iced tea spoons, chilled sparkling water, fruits and, of course, plenty of ice cream in the refrigerator's freezing compartment or in the freezer.

The idea, in general, is simply this: Into a large glass put about one-third cup of crushed sweetened fruit—strawberries, raspberries, peaches, apricots, pineapple—or about three tablespoons of sirup such as chocolate or maple, then a scant one-fourth cup of chilled milk, a large scoop of ice cream, and almost fill with chilled sparkling water. Stir, add straws and serve.

For a richer soda stir a small scoop of ice cream into the fruit or sirup and milk mixture until creamy, then top with a full scoop of ice cream and add sparkling water.

For variety use different flavors of ice cream, the choice depending upon the sirup, sauce or crushed fruit used.

Cola, root beer or gingerale sodas are good. Put a large scoop of vanilla ice cream into a large glass, almost fill with the chilled beverage desired, stir well. Ice cream may first be stirred into the beverage.

Fruit juices and nectars may be used in much the same way, although they are not really a true soda. A good one is made by putting a generous scoop of vanilla, pineapple, lemon or peach ice cream into a glass. Pour ice cold pineapple juice over it. Muddle just enough to mix the flavors slightly; add a spoon and gay straws, then more ice cream.

For a grown-up group, try scoops of vanilla or coffee ice cream in a milk glass of hot coffee. The younger set will settle for chocolate milk with a scoop of chocolate or vanilla ice cream.

Prefer sundae? It's fun to let each guest make his own. Just provide one or two flavors of ice cream, several sauces, and such toppings as chopped nuts, slivers of semi-sweet chocolate, and flaked coconut.

Here are recipes for several excellent sauces:

Praline Sauce.
One cup sugar.
Three-fourths cup boiling water.
Few grains salt.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-fourth cup chopped pecans.

Melt sugar in heavy pan over moderate heat until light brown, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add boiling water a few drops at a time, stirring vigorously until blended after each addition.

Cook until moderately thick (218 degrees); add salt, cool. Add vanilla and nuts.

Mocha Fudge Sauce.
Three squares unsweetened chocolate.
One-half cup strong coffee.
One-fourth cup milk.
Two-thirds cup sugar.

One tablespoon butter.
Few grains salt.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
Cook chocolate, coffee and milk together over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth.
Add sugar, butter and salt. Continue to cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly for three to five minutes or until slightly thickened.
Remove from heat. Add vanilla. Serve warm or cold.

Red Raspberry Sauce.

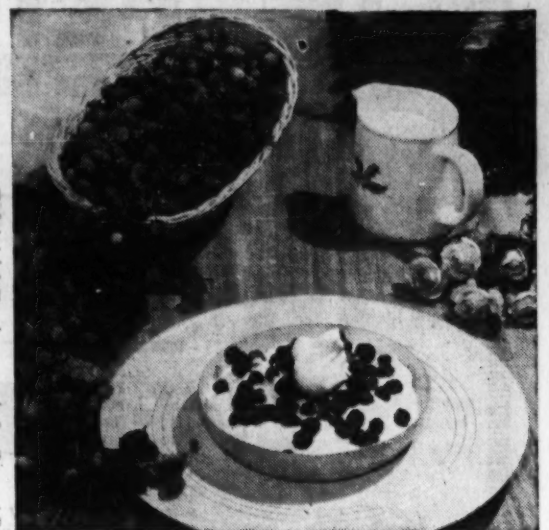

One one-pound package frozen sweetened red raspberries, thawed.

One and one-half tablespoons cornstarch.

One-fourth cup cold water.

One tablespoon lemon juice.

Press berries through fine sieve. Blend cornstarch with water. Add to raspberry puree. Cook in heavy saucepan, stirring constantly until thickened and clear. Add lemon juice. Chill.

Continental Strawberries

Try serving strawberries Continental style, with Creme Chantilly. The whole red berries rest on a cloud of sweetened whipped cream.

AS A SALUTE to the strawberry season, try serving the ruby beauties with Creme Chantilly. Here's all you do to make an ambrosial cloud for the berries to rest upon: To one cup of whipping cream, whipped until not quite stiff, add one-fourth cup confectioner's sugar and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Continue beating until cream is stiff.

Spoon the Creme Chantilly into individual serving dishes, top with fresh hulled strawberries—and enjoy one of the supreme delights of the land.

Cream—both sweet and sour cream—and strawberries make a happy alliance served as simply or as elaborately as you please. Here for instance, is a suggested party service for ten—a towering cream mold in which sour cream shows its own luscious way with fresh fruit. This is a handsome edifice of a dessert, dramatic and delicious, but easy to prepare.

Macaroon Cream Tower.
Two envelopes unflavored gelatin.

Two cups milk.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Three cups sour cream.

One-half cup sugar.

Two cups crumbled coconut macaroons.

One-half teaspoon vanilla.

One-half teaspoon almond flavoring.

Sweetened fresh strawberry sauce.

In top of double boiler, soften gelatin in one cup of milk. Place over hot water and stir constantly until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in salt.

Blend together the remaining milk, sour cream, sugar, macaroons, vanilla and almond flavorings. Stir in dissolved gelatin; mix thoroughly.

Pour into one and one-half quart tower mold. Chill until set. Unmold. Serve with strawberry sauce.

Blue Cheese Salad Bowl

Here is a recipe to add to your collection of salad favorites. It's a perfectly seasoned romaine salad, flavorful with Blue cheese.

HERE IS PROOF that salads need not be elaborate to be delicious. This one contains only a few ingredients, but it is so well seasoned that it is sure to be a success.

This is the sort of salad of which gourmets dream: crisp, tender romaine, sliced green onions and wedges of ripe olives are tossed with a tangy Blue cheese dressing. Simple but perfect.

If necessary, the salad can be prepared as long as an hour before serving; simply cover the salad bowl and refrigerate it. However, the salad should not be tossed until serving time.

Blue Cheese Salad Bowl.

One cup ripe olives.

One-third cup salad oil.

Two tablespoons cider vinegar.

Three tablespoons Blue cheese.

One-half teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon pepper.

Four green onions, coarsely chopped.

One large chilled head romaine.

Cut olives into wedges. Combine salad oil, vinegar, cheese, salt and pepper in a large salad bowl. Mix until creamy and well blended, using a fork. Add green onions.

Cut romaine into one-inch crosswise slices. Add to salad bowl. Add olives.

If salad is not to be served immediately, cover and refrigerate until serving time.

Just before serving, toss mixture gently to distribute dressing. Serve at once on chilled salad plates.

RED RIPE TOMATO wedges with snowy cottage cheese, ice cream made into luscious sundaes or sodas, an upside-down cake piled high with drifts of whipped cream, a pitcher of cool milk, butter to melt gently over the fresh vegetables now in market—these foods say, in culinary language, "It's summer, and time for a change in menus; time to switch from the heavy foods of winter to light but nutritious warm-weather fare."

Just as the seasons call for a change in wardrobes, so do they call for a change in meal patterns. The basic nutritional requirements remain the same around the calendar, of course, but tastes vary with the temperature. Dairy products provide an ideal way to keep your meals in tune with the season.

In the good old summertime salads frequently become a main dish instead of just one of the courses of a meal; but these salads may provide generous amounts of protein if they are made with cottage cheese.

Butter does flattering things to the homegrown vegetables which play such an important role in summer meals; cream (sweet or sour) brings out all of the delicate flavor nuances of fresh berries; ice cream is an easy answer to the dessert problem; milk can be varied in many ways to satisfy the never-ending demand for something cool to drink as the thermometer climbs.

In many households strict mealtime schedules relax during the vacation months, at the very time that sports and play make it more important than ever for foods to supply energy. Milk is a real powerhouse of energy, whether served as a beverage or used as an ingredient in cooking.

The milk value of many foods containing fluid milk can be stepped up by adding dry milk; for instance, in preparing soups, mashed potatoes and cereals the dish will be about twice as rich in milk value if four tablespoons of dry milk are added to each cup of fluid milk.

Puddings and pie fillings made with evaporated milk will offer more milk value if two or more parts evaporated milk are added to one part of water instead of the usual one-to-one proportion.

Since dairy products fit so neatly into summer meals and snacks, it is fortunate indeed that milk is in seasonal abundance during June. The pages of this food section contain recipes to help you enjoy milk and its by-products to the fullest extent; others will appear during the weeks to come.

Ice Cream Sodas, Home Style

Homemade ice cream sodas make refreshing fare on a summer day. Suggestions for making both sodas and sundaes are given in the story on Page 1.

Pink Party Punch

Peppermint Flit is a milk party punch that is gay as a circus. A giant peppermint stick makes a dramatic stirrer. The accompanying story gives recipes for three types of milk punches.

Planning a June party? Then the party punch should be pink—pretty as a picture, gay as a circus, satisfying as thoughts of holidays.

Peppermint Flit, frosty cold and peppermint-pink, is the answer; serve it for graduation parties, teenage dances, small fry birthdays or showers.

A giant peppermint stick is the stirrer for this easily made milk punch. Sparkly ginger ale, lots of cold milk, peppermint extract and a tiny amount of red food coloring go into the punch bowl to make this delectable warm weather drink. Finger sandwiches and simple cookies join the party punch on the festive buffet table.

Here are several milk punches that make delightful refreshments for summertime parties:

Peppermint Flit.
Three quarts icy cold milk.
Twenty-eight-ounce bottle icy cold ginger ale.
One and one-half teaspoons peppermint extract.
One-fourth teaspoon red food coloring.

One large peppermint candy cane.

Just before serving, pour milk into chilled punch bowl. Add ginger ale, peppermint extract and food coloring; blend well. Insert candy cane into milk drink. If desired, garnish with whipped cream and crushed peppermint candy.

Honey Milk Noggin.
Three tablespoons honey.
Few grains salt.
Six eggs.
Four and one-half cups milk.
Three-fourths teaspoon vanilla.

Nutmeg.
Vanilla ice cream.
Add honey and salt to eggs and beat well with rotary beater. Stir in milk and vanilla. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Float a spoonful of ice cream on top of each serving.

Yield: Six servings.

Come-All-You Milk Floak.
Three eggs, separated.
Three tablespoons sugar.
One-half cup crushed pineapple.

One-half cup cream.
One cup milk.
Whipped cream.
Beat egg yolks until light and foamy. Add sugar and beat well. Add pineapple, cream and milk; stir to blend.
Beat egg whites until stiff; fold into pineapple mixture. Pour into punch cups. Garnish with whipped cream and pineapple.

Yield: Four to six servings.

Dairy Dessert Souffle

Planning a party and wondering what to serve for a "different" dessert? Try this easy-to-prepare souffle of the dessert variety, served with fresh strawberries and topped with additional sour cream.

Sour cream is one dairy product which is gaining in popularity, according to a recent release from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Since it is ready to use, it is a true convenience food. With its satin-smooth thickness and tangy, distinctive flavor it lends itself well to many types of cookery.

Here it is used in an unusual way, in a souffle of the dessert variety to be served with fresh strawberries and topped with additional sour cream.

Dairy Dessert Souffle.
Two three-ounce packages cream cheese.

One cup commercial sour cream.
Three eggs, separated.
One-fourth cup honey.
Dash of salt.

Let cream cheese stand at room temperature until softened. Beat until smooth and fluffy, blend in sour cream.

Beat egg yolks until slightly thickened; stir into sour cream mixture. Stir in honey and salt. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into sour cream mixture.

Pour into a one and one-half quart casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 35 to 40 minutes, or until top is golden brown.

Serve with sour cream and sweetened sliced or whole strawberries.

Summer Favorite

Along with summertime comes the urge for lots of that old favorite, fried chicken. Make sure your fried chicken has a crisp even crust by dipping it first in evaporated milk, then in seasoned flour. The evaporated milk helps the flour cling to the chicken in an even coating which permits the best browning all over, too.

Save the evaporated milk used for dipping for use in a cream gravy.

Steaks

and salt well. Broil three to five minutes or until browned. Serve garnished with parsley.

Provolsone Butter: Blend together one-fourth cup (one-half stick) softened butter, one teaspoon chopped onion, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and two tablespoons grated Provolsone cheese.

Garlic Butter: Blend together one-fourth cup (one-half stick) softened butter, one-half clove minced, and one tablespoon prepared mustard.

Parmesan Butter: Blend together one-fourth cup (one-half stick) softened butter, two tablespoons oregano flakes, and two tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese.

Summer Treat

Prepare cucumbers with sour cream as an appetizing accompaniment for hot weather meals. Slice cucumbers thinly. Leave the skins on for color and nutritive value.

Season them with salt, freshly ground pepper and chopped dill. Top with sour cream and chill well before serving.

More Milk Now

Make your plans now to order more milk during the summer when the youngsters are out of school.

They've become accustomed to generous amounts of milk, through the Special School Milk program, and they'll be expecting plenty of milk on hand at all times at home.

Tasty Tid-Bit

Toast both sides of leftover angel food cake lightly and top with generous scoops of vanilla ice cream. Serve with a bowl of sliced fresh raspberries.

Menu Built Around Dairy Foods

By CATHERINE BRENT
Home Economist, St. Louis
Food Marketing Program

This week's menu was planned around dairy products which will be in the spotlight throughout June. Since all of these foods yield excellent returns for the marketing money spent for them, the menu follows the "best buys" pattern established in this weekly feature.

MENU OF THE WEEK

Glazed Lamb Shoulder
(Boned and Rolled)
Minted Carrots
Buttered Whipped Potatoes
Mixed Lettuce and Cucumber Salad
Sour Cream Dressing
Hot Yeast Rolls—Honey Butter
Tall Glasses of Cold Milk Individual Baked Alaskas*

Meringue:
Three egg whites.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar.
One-half cup fine sugar, scant.

One teaspoon lemon or vanilla extract.
Six baked pastry circles, three and one-half inch diameter* OR Six large sugar cookies.

One pint ice cream, frozen very hard.
Sliced strawberries, un-sweetened, about one cup.

To Prepare for Quick Baking and Serving: In advance prepare baking sheet: Place a thick layer (about one-fourth inch) of newspaper on a baking sheet. Top with a double layer of foil or clean brown paper.

To Prepare Meringue: Shortly before meringue is needed, beat egg whites with salt and cream of tartar until mixture begins to pile. Gradually add sugar in one tablespoon portions. Continue beating until meringue is glossy and stiff.

To Complete Individual Baked Alaskas: Place a layer of the sliced berries atop pastry

Cottage Cheese 'Dunk'

Cottage cheese is a good companion for many kinds of fruits. For an attractive summer combination, mix three cups cottage cheese lightly, stirring in two teaspoons grated orange rind. Arrange six bananas, one quart strawberries, contents of one No. 2 can sliced pineapple on leaves of lettuce on a tray with cheese in a bowl or mound in the center of the tray.

circles leaving a one-half-inch rim of pastry around the edge. (Or, place strawberries atop ice cream before "frosting" with meringue.)

Place a scoop or heaping tablespoon of ice cream (very hard frozen), rounded side up, atop berries. Completely cover ice cream with a one-half-inch layer of meringue. Be sure meringue touches pastry at all points.

Place immediately in a preheated very hot oven (500 degrees) for three to five minutes until peaks are delicately browned. Slip the Individual Baked Alaskas onto dessert plates and serve at once. Makes six servings.

*Cut pastry circles about four inches to allow for shrinkage during baking. Pastry should be rolled thin.

Swiss Straws

Spread lightly toasted bread with softened butter. Sprinkle with onion and garlic salts. Top with a thin slice of Swiss cheese. Cut into finger-length strips and broil until cheese starts to melt. Garnish with paprika.

Chocolate and Peppermint Sauce

Chocolate and peppermint are a happy combination of flavors if ever there was one. Put the two of them together in a smooth sauce, and there is a "success ingredient" for many a dessert.

To make such a sauce only three things are needed—semi-sweet chocolate pieces, evaporated milk and peppermint extract.

Put one package semi-sweet chocolate pieces and three-fourths cup evaporated milk in top of double boiler. Cook over hot (not boiling) water until chocolate melts, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and add peppermint to taste. Stir occasionally while cooling.

Yield: About one and one-third cups of Chocolate Peppermint Sauce.

Cabbage Parmesan

Saute one quart shredded cabbage in two tablespoons butter. When tender-crisp, sprinkle generously with onion salt and ground black pepper. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese just before serving.

Tropical Fruit Dressing For Salads

Fluffy and delicate, this tropical fruit dressing is at its best served with a platter of fresh fruits and chunks of cold chicken.

Prepare the fruit salad dressing by cooking the first portion of dressing ahead of time. When ready to serve, whip the instant nonfat dry milk, lemon juice and ice water very stiff, then fold into cooked mixture and serve.

A faint pineapple flavor permeates this dressing made the extra nutritious way with instant nonfat dry milk.

Tropical Fruit Dressing.
One-half cup sugar.
One-fourth cup flour.
Three-fourths cup pineapple juice.

Two egg yolks.
One-fourth cup lemon juice.
One-fourth cup ice water.
One-fourth cup instant nonfat dry milk.

Mix sugar and flour in sauce pan. Add pineapple juice slowly, mixing well. Cook over low heat until mixture thickens.

Beat egg yolks. Add a part of cooked mixture to egg yolks, then combine both mixtures. Cook three minutes. Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Chill.

When ready to use, add instant nonfat dry milk to ice water and whip until stiff. Fold into dressing and serve. Yield: two cups.

Nonfat Dry Milk

Use larger amounts of nonfat dry milk in these preparations for more nutrition values.

Meat loaf—Six tablespoons to each pound of ground meat.
Soups and gravies—Six tablespoons to each cup of liquid.

Puddings and cocoa—Two tablespoons to each cup of fresh fluid milk, or six tablespoons to each cup of water.

Yeast rolls—Six tablespoons for each cup of liquid called for in recipe.

Kroger A Guardian Of Your Food

Years ago food distributors did not bother to test the quality of foods they sold. It was pretty much a case of hoping for the best. Too often, canned foods were rated by the attractiveness of their labels and a homemaker had no assurance that she would get the same quality twice.

A few farsighted grocers, such as B. H. "Barney" Kroger, recognized the fact that women would not continue to be content with this haphazard way of buying food. Mr. Kroger's unofficial method of quality control was simply to sample the product himself. He found that homemakers returned again and again to buy when they could depend on the products they bought from him.

Laboratory research is closely co-ordinated with home economics and consumer research. Practical kitchen tests supplement all stages of study and development of a product. Final tests are made acceptance. They perform practical kitchen tests on samples sent to them in unlabeled containers.

At the Kroger Food Foundation, 25 food experts work constantly to bring better foods at lower cost to the American homemaker. And the man who probably knows more about the prob-under conditions similar to those in the average home.

Supplementing the research and testing done in the laboratories, a committee of 750 women, representing a cross-section of homemakers in Kroger's 18-state area, serve as permanent advisors to the Food Foundation in making the final decision on product lems of homemakers than any other in the country is George F. Garnatz, director of the nationally-known quality control and research laboratories in Cincinnati, O. Garnatz has been solving food problems for Kroger ever since his graduation from college 36 years ago, and it's pretty hard to find one he hasn't met. Food problems are commonplace at the Food Foundation where four laboratories and a home economics department run approximately 3,000,000 routine tests each year on products that bear the Kroger label and on other products sold in the company's stores. In addition, the laboratories conduct research on special problems. A number of new or improved products have been developed through research done in these laboratories.

An imposing array of "gadgets"—some of them specially developed by Kroger scientists—helps in the mammoth task. There's a machine to test the bite resistance of a jelly bean, the crumb potential of a cookie or the tenderness of steak. The consistometer measures the thickness of jam to hold down its tendency to drip on Junior's shirt; an ordinary machine-shop micrometer measures the thickness of quick-cooking macaroni within 26/1000 of an inch.

One of the most thorough quality checks is maintained on bakery products. Each of the 14 Kroger bakeries must obtain Food Foundation approval of each shipment of flour purchased. Samples of each shipment are submitted to the Foundation. There, chemists test the sample chemically and by the practical method of making small "pup" loaves of bread.

New food distribution center being erected for Kroger Co. on a 62-acre site in Hazelwood. It will serve 101 retail company stores in the St. Louis area and will house division offices. The new facilities are scheduled to be completed next year.

This "supermarket" at 1807 Market street (indicated by white arrow) was one of the first Kroger stores in St. Louis. The year was 1917. Union Station, partially shown at the left, is still a busy place but "improvements" on the north side of the street have given way to the Aloe Plaza fountain.

Today's shopping is done the modern way—by automobile—and ample parking for shoppers is a "must" for Kroger supermarkets. A spokesman for the company said that its stores are planned with a maximum of parking area for the convenience of housewives.

Multi-Million Dollar Food Distribution Center Under Way Here for Kroger

Construction of Kroger's new food distribution center here is progressing rapidly, with opening of the new plant scheduled early next year, Robert A. Hughes, vice president of the retail food firm's St. Louis division, reports.

The new multi-million-dollar warehouse and office building is under construction on a 62-acre site on Highway 66 in Hazelwood. It will serve 101 retail Kroger stores in and around St. Louis, and will include nine acres under roof.

Surface parking adjacent to the building will provide facilities for employees as well as business representatives and visitors.

Located immediately north of the St. Louis Municipal Airport and adjacent to the Lincoln-Mercury plant, the tract was purchased from the Wabash Motor Transit Co. It will be served by the Wabash Railroad, in addition to tractor-trailers, with docks provided for each.

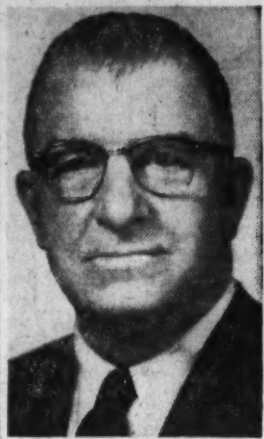

The one-story building which will be one of the most modern food warehouses in the country, will also include division offices, Hughes said.

Each section is planned for utmost efficiency and care in handling food, Hughes said. Increasing use of frozen foods call for 15,000 square feet of freezer space where the temperature will be held at zero, while 14 banana ripening rooms will reproduce the warm, moist temperature of the jungles.

Other produce areas will be air-conditioned to hold fresh fruits and vegetables at peak condition. Dry grocery areas will be built with 18-foot ceilings to allow use of pallet loading methods to triple space.

The rail dock at one side of the building will be 140 feet long, sufficient for 35 cars, and will be raised slightly at one end to accommodate higher refrigerator cars.

A part of the truck dock on the opposite side of the building will be under cover for protection from weather. Approximately 880 feet long, it will provide space for 80 tractor-trailers.

Kroger St. Louis headquarters have been at 1311 South Thirty-ninth street the last 45 years. When the company first began operation here in 1912, the division included 25 stores and was the first Kroger expansion outside the general area of Cincinnati, O.

Warehouse and manufacturing facilities were added to the Thirty-ninth street location at later dates. As Kroger grew in this area, the manufacturing operation was moved in 1937 to its current quarters at Spring and Chouteau avenues.

Manufacturing Division Big Team

Today, the Kroger Manufacturing Division includes offices and a huge factory in Cincinnati. There are 14 bakeries, two cracker and cookie plants, two coffee roasting plants, an ultra-modern instant coffee plant, three dairies and ice cream plants, four egg grading plants and an evaporated and instant milk plant.

Approximately 4000 people with skills ranging from candy making to tea blending combine their efforts to produce 600,000,000 pounds of food annually. Hundreds of different food products are made or packaged. The manufacturing team assists in the annual production of: 130,000,000

loaves of bread; 36,000,000 pounds of coffee and 11,000,-

000 jars of instant coffee; 58,- pounds of peanut products.

Many Employees.

More than 39,000 men and women work full time for Kroger and nearly a third as many more work part time. An extensive personnel setup is responsible for hiring and training employees, keeping records of their progress, and promoting many projects for their benefit.

These intent kaffeeklatschers are professional coffee tasters. Just like any good cook, we at Kroger are proud of our name for fine coffees. (It's a reputation that has been growing since 1883.) Our testers brew up a sample cup or two from every batch to make sure it's full-bodied, rich and hearty.

These days we keep tasting and testing to be sure we're getting real coffee flavor and aroma in our new Instant Spotlight Coffee. It's a special combination we call FLAV-AROMA and you'll never know how much instant coffee has been

Tenderay Quick Meat Process

More than 15 years ago, Kroger Co. decided to do something about the problem of tender beef. Food Foundation scientists began work in co-operation with the Mellon Institute and the Westinghouse Electric Co.

The process finally developed by them in 1939—Tenderay—merely streamlines nature's own slow aging method. High grade beef is held in rooms in which humidity, temperature, air velocity and air sterilization are carefully controlled. At relatively high temperature, the natural enzymes in beef tenderize the tough connective tissues, while ultra violet ray lamps keep the air

Kroger meat-cutting methods have come a long way since B. H. Kroger started his first store in 1883.

Free from bacteria and mold spores. The high humidity in the Tenderay room prevents loss of natural juices.

Automatically controlled temperature and humidity hasten the tenderizing process, while the sterilizing lamps prevent spoilage. Nothing is added to make the meat tender and the lamps serve only to keep the air sterile. The meat is hung in processing rooms about 44 hours and in this short period attains a degree of tenderness equal to that obtained in 20 to 30 days, when the older process of aging in cold storage is used.

Tenderay claims no magic powers that will give stringy, low quality meat the flavor and tenderness of choice beef. Only good quality beef is used. Tenderay's job is to hasten the tenderizing process so that beef will retain the juices and vitamins of fresh meat and, at the same time, be consistently tender.

Good Year for Kroger.

There were 140 new stores opened, 195 smaller and older stores closed and major remodeling of 37 stores completed, culminating in a total store space increase of 1,174,000 square feet.

Wide aisles, island-type displays, the latest in store design and equipment and wide variety of foods, meats, produce and household items are incorporated in each "food department store" in Kroger's expanding chain.

Initial Investment Of $722 Built Into Multi-Million Business

In 1883, B. H. "Barney" Kroger and a partner pooled their resources of $722. They bought a horse and wagon, a cash register, some merchandise and with high hopes opened the first Kroger store. It was in Cincinnati, on the riverfront.

"Barney" bought out his partner after the first year and it wasn't long before he was successful enough to open a second store. He relied on a lot of sales and a small profit on

The business grew, customer by customer and store by store. In order to control quality and to sell for less, a bakery and small factory were started. Manufacturing operations increased with the number of stores.

On April 3, 1902, the company with 40 stores was incorporated and in 1903 extended its operations beyond Cincinnati to Detroit and St. Louis. After World War I expansion continued into other states in the Middle West and South.

The shift from small low-volume units to modern high-volume food department stores has accelerated in recent years. Since 1946, average store volume has increased five-fold and store area doubled, while the number of stores has been virtually halved.

The rapid growth of the business required the enlargement and replacement of the company's distribution and manufacturing facilities. Old fashioned multi-story warehouses gave way to modern Savings and Profit Sharing Fund is one of the largest shareholders.

During its first three-quarters of a century, the company has blazed many trails in the changing pattern of food merchandising. It has been a long journey from Barney Kroger's first little red-front grocery store to the modern supermarkets. Seventy-five years of progress and success is the solid foundation on which Kroger is building its future.

Tremendous Boom in Frozen Foods Field

"Frozen French fries? Ridiculous!"

Such a comment could have been typical of the American homemaker just a few years ago. Today, French fried potatoes are commonplace as a frozen food item, along with chicken pot pie, chop suey, sandwich steaks, shrimp cocktail, pre-cooked fish and even entire dinners.

Fresh from the farm and the ocean, an increasing number of items ranging from appetizers to dessert are being marketed quick frozen. The swiftness with which frozen foods have worked their way into the nation's buying habits has been phenomenal. Frozen orange juice is an example. In 1946, it was unheard of as a grocery item. Last year more than 65,000,000 gallons were packed in the United States alone.

There are several reasons given for this tremendous boom in an entirely new field. For one thing, frozen foods are convenient because they are ready to use. There is no shelling, trimming or cleaning to be done and meals can be prepared much more quickly. Then too, frozen foods are waste free. Availability in all seasons is another big factor in their favor. Winter, summer, spring and fall find them in the store in the same wide variety.

Typical of the 50 Kroger supermarkets in the Greater St. Louis area is this one at 642 East Lockwood in Webster Groves.

One of Kroger's early stores at the northwest corner of Gravois and Magnolia in St. Louis.

New Building for Kroger Headquarters

The 25-story $9,000,000 Kroger Building is scheduled to be completed in Cincinnati during 1959 reports Joseph B. Hall, President of The Kroger Co. The building, with an area of 400,000 square feet and third highest in Cincinnati, will be finished in a wrap-around porcelain enamel metal skin.

The building will be owned and operated by Milner Enterprises, Inc., of Jackson, Miss., and will house general offices of Kroger, central area long lines offices of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and offices of a number of other national and midwestern companies.

Kroger, with 450 employees, will occupy 75,000 square feet of office space as executive headquarters for its entire grocery organization.

The air-conditioned building, located on a one-acre site, is accessible to the downtown shopping and business area.

There will be a restaurant and two retail stores on the first floor and a park-it-yourself garage in the basement will accommodate 400 cars. Tenants will be able to park and board high-speed elevators to their offices.

Scholarships

The Kroger Co. believes that aid to education is both an obligation and a privilege of business. Its scholarship program is part of the retail food firm's broad educational program, designed to help develop better citizens of tomorrow.

In addition to agriculture and home economics scholarships at land-grant colleges, the company encourages study in other fields through financial support of state associations of independent colleges. Scholarships are also offered to outstanding distributive education students.

Food Industry Basic, Vital

When your mother was a little girl, the corner grocery was just a small room with a pot-belly stove, dusty shelves of assorted merchandise, a counter, open barrels of cereal, apples, crackers, figs and what-have-you. There was no meat "department" and fresh produce in the winter months was unheard of. The only "personnel" were the owner and his wife.

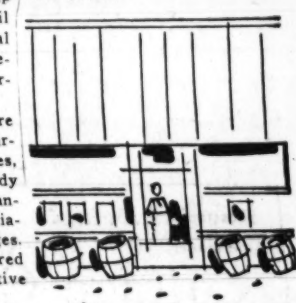

Today, a modern Kroger Food Department store may be half the size of a football field, cost in excess of $500,000 to build and equip, and be staffed by 30 to 50 carefully trained men and women. It probably has automatic door openers, mirrored and muraled walls, chrome-trimmed shelves and sanitary, white enameled cases; air conditioning, refrigeration and fluorescent lighting. Delicacies from around the world, fresh produce the year round, and prepackaged meats are among the items lining the walls. Such a store may be stocked with 3000 to 5000 food and non-food items.

This dynamic expansion of our most basic industry is vital.

To the American farmer belongs the credit for our agricultural progress. His courage, resourcefulness, and energy have made possible the tremendous increases in our food production.

Food on the farm, however, is not food on the table and to make the products of the farm available to every American home is the business of modern food distribution.

The task of supplying enormous varieties of food and merchandise economically over wide areas to millions of Americans is a craft of high order. It involves market research, product research, equipment research and packaging research; customer preference surveys, exploration and experimentation. It requires a wide variety of skills—experts in architecture, accounting and control; buying, selling and advertising; transportation, warehousing and refrigeration; law, finance and real estate.

KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION KITCHENS

It's nice work if you can get it! Above, a Kroger Food Foundation panel taste-tests samples of steaks—Tenderay, of course. Panelists will check steaks on flavor and tenderness and enter their results on record cards. Kroger home economist Jean Allen, at left above, and her staff prepare food under conditions similar to those in the average home kitchen. The Warner-Bratzler shear tester, at right confirms human judgment by giving a scientific measure of the amount of pressure required to cut through the steak.

In addition to practical tests of all food products, Miss Allen and her staff prepare recipes for Kroger labels and booklets on food preparation. Each year thousands of homemakers write Jean Allen at the Food Foundation, 1212 State Avenue, Cincinnati 4, Ohio, for menu and recipe advice. You, too, are invited to write Miss Allen for advice on meal planning.

FOUR TASTY IDEAS WITH THE ZIP AND ZEST OF SEALTEST SOUR CREAM

2. PARADISE SALAD

1 pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup Sealtest Sour Cream

1 cup Sealtest Cottage Cheese
2 cups drained canned crushed pineapple
Salad greens. Fresh mint sprigs

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Chill until syrupy. Beat in sour cream with a rotary beater until smooth. Fold in cottage cheese and 1 cup of the pineapple. Pour into 1-qt. mold. Chill; when firm unmold on salad greens. Garnish with ring of orange slices or the remaining crushed pineapple and fresh mint sprig. 8 servings.

1. GOURMET APRICOT PIE

TOPPING:

1/2 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup sifted flour
1/4 cup hard butter

FILLING:

2 cups Sealtest Sour Cream
1 cup sugar
4 tbsp. sifted flour
1/2 tsp. salt

1/4 tsp. almond extract
2 eggs
1/2 cup dried apricots, stewed, drained and cut into small pieces
1 nine-inch pie crust

Mix together brown sugar, flour and butter. Set aside.

Combine sour cream, sugar, flour, salt, almond extract and eggs; beat well with a rotary beater. Fold in apricot pieces. Pour the mixture into unbaked pie shell. Bake in a hot oven, 400°, 25 min.

Remove from oven and immediately sprinkle topping over the pie and return to hot oven to bake 20 min. longer. Chill in refrigerator. Serve with whipped cream. Serves 8.

3. EASY BEEF STROGANOFF

1 tsp. salt
Pepper
1 tsp. garlic salt

Flour
1 1/2 lbs. round steak, cut in 1/4" cubes

3 tbsp. butter
1 cup canned tomatoes
1 cup Sealtest Sour Cream

Combine salt, pepper, garlic salt and 1/4 cup flour in clean, heavy paper bag. Add meat and shake until well coated.

Brown meat slowly in butter in heavy skillet, turning frequently. Use large enough pan, and keep pieces apart for best browning effect. Add tomatoes; stir well. Cover tightly and simmer about 2 1/2 hrs. or until meat is tender. Stir frequently during cooking; add hot water as mixture becomes dry.

Add 2 tbsp. flour to sour cream; stir until smooth. Add to meat. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. If desired, serve on hot noodles. 4 to 6 servings.

4. DE LUXE POTATO SOUP

3 cups diced raw potatoes
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
3 cups water
2 cups scalded Sealtest Milk

2 chicken bouillon cubes
3 tbsp. butter
1 cup Sealtest Sour Cream
1 tbsp. flour
2 tsp. salt. 1/4 tsp. pepper

Cook potatoes, celery and onion in the water in covered pan until very tender. (Do not drain.) Press vegetables through a sieve. Add milk, bouillon cubes and butter. Mix sour cream with flour until smooth. Add to soup and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and bouillon cubes are dissolved. Stir in salt and pepper. 6 servings.

Sealtest Sour Cream adds a tangy, tantalizing new flavor to your favorite foods. Made from fine sweet cream, transformed by a pure gentle culture to give Sealtest Sour Cream a smooth, delightful taste all its own. Use Sealtest Sour Cream on fruits, salads, desserts; stir it into soups; serve it on meats, fish or fowl. Use it often, and with a lavish hand. Get Sealtest at your store or at your door.

YOU KNOW IT'S BEST WHEN YOU GET Sealtest

ROBERT MORRISON

No. 5 at 45?

ONE of the more intriguing features of the fifty-eighth National Open golf championship at Tulsa, Okla., 10 days from now will be the effort of Ben Hogan to win an unparalleled fifth crown.

Some 2118 amateur and professional golfers today are seeking 144 places in that tournament at 28 sites across the nation. Forty-three are scheduled to play for three berths here at Old Warson.

Hogan, who last won in 1953, is exempt from qualifying as one of the last five champions. Barring any unexpected turn of events such as the pleurisy that forced his withdrawal on the morning he was scheduled to tee off at Inverness in Toledo last year, the little man will be there.

This will be his fourth able-bodied effort in an attempt to win No. 5. After his greatest year of 1953 when he won the Masters with a record 274, took the U.S. Open with 283 at Oakmont, then won the British Open at Carnoustie with 282—he frequently came close in the American championship. But he didn't win.

The question now is whether his age—at 45 he's two years older than the oldest Open champion of record—will work against him.

In a champion of Hogan's stature, age is only a subtle factor in this game, causing perhaps momentary lapses of concentration or a minor lapse of nerve control, particularly on the greens. But it is a factor and particularly the wrong department of putting, as Hogan himself has remarked in the last few years.

Don't Count Him Out. THERE are reasons to believe that Hogan can do it.

Only last year Jimmy Demaret, two years older than Hogan, came within a stroke of tying Dick Mayer (eventual winner) in the first and Cary Middlecott for first place at the end of the regulation 72 holes.

Now, as the time for another Open approaches, a sharp observer is advising golf followers not to count Ben out.

"I wouldn't bet against him at Tulsa," Winged Foot (N.Y.) Pro Claude Harmon said after seeing Hogan finish a stroke back of the 264 shot by Sam Snead and Gary Player at Greener in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. "I never have seen Ben play better."

In his comment to an Associated Press man in New York, Harmon noted that Hogan's biggest improvement was in putting.

"He's got back his putting touch; he's playing great," Harmon said. "I never have seen a man more determined to win than Hogan at this time. He resents being counted out. He always bounces back as he did after his automobile accident in 1949."

Age of Hogan. IN the period of golf that has been aptly tagged the age of Hogan, Ben won his first National Open title in 1946 with a record 276 at the Riviera course in Los Angeles.

The automobile accident, in which he suffered multiple injuries so severe that it seemed highly unlikely he ever would play again, happened in 1948 and kept him out of the Open that year.

But in 1950 he came back to win at Merion (Pa.) and he repeated in 1951 with a brilliant victory at Oakland Hills (Mich.), one of the toughest Open courses in history. In 1952 at Dallas, in intense heat, he finished third; then he won his fourth in 1953.

Since then something always has happened to prevent another triumph. He was sixth at Baltusrol where he was tied for second with eventual winner Ed Furgol going into the final day, but took a third-round 76. In 1956 unknown Jack Fleck tied his likely winning score of 287 and beat him in a playoff. Then last year he didn't even get to the first tee when incapacitated by the chest ailment.

Can he do it this time? "He told me he was going to win it," said Old Warson's Dutch Harrison, who saw him at Greener. "And I know one thing—the tougher the course is, the better chance he has."

Giants Return to Coast on Top; Dodgers in Last Place

5-for-5 By Carey Of Yanks

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2 (UPI)—San Francisco threw open its heart and its gates to the home-coming, first-place Giants today while the last-place Dodgers found a referendum and that faithful fence again awaiting them in Los Angeles.

Southpaw Johnny Antonelli ended the Giants' first eastern trip on a triumphant note yesterday when he pitched them back into the National League lead with a 7-2 victory over the Cardinals. That gave the Giants a record of 11 wins in 19 games since they left California.

The Dodgers didn't do so well on their trip, winning only eight out of 17, although they beat the Cubs, 1-0, yesterday on Rookie Stan Williams' two-hit pitching in his first major league start.

Even so, the Dodgers are still a long way from being out of the woods.

Don't Having Trouble. Not only are they two games behind the seventh-place Phillies, but they can also find themselves behind the eighth-place Dodgers if the Los Angeles team from using Chavez Ravine in a special referendum tomorrow. Along with that, they are returning to the Coliseum and that 250-foot left field fence, which Don Drysdale and Don Newcombe claim has wrecked their pitching styles.

In any case, the Dodgers looked like champions yesterday behind the nifty pitching of Williams, 21-year-old right-hander. Los Angeles scored the only run of the game off loser Dick Drott in the fourth inning when Carl Furillo doubled and came home on Don Zimmer's single.

Bob Friend limited the Milwaukee Braves to five hits while leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 decision in a game called during the eighth inning because of rain.

The Pirates helped Friend to his eighth victory when they rocked Gene Conley for three runs in the first inning on a walk, singles by Dick Groat and Ted Kluszewski and Frank Thomas' triple. Loes dropped the Braves into second place, a full game behind the Giants.

Curfew Steps 11-11 Tie. Cincinnati beat Philadelphia, 2-1, in the first of two games and then struggled to an 11-11 tie in the nightcap, which was suspended in the ninth inning because of Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew law.

Bob Purkey outpitched Jack Sanford for his sixth win in the opener. The only run he allowed was Solly Hemus' homer in the third inning. The Redlegs scored a run off Sanford in the second inning and what proved the winning run in the third on a double by George Crowe and Don Hoak's single.

Play was halted in the ninth inning of the nightcap after the Phils battled uphill to overcome a 10-3 lead the Redlegs took in the sixth on Johnny Temple's inside-the-park homer with the bases full. An error by Temple, however, helped the Phils score the tying run in the eighth. The Redlegs used six pitchers and the Phils five. The game will be resumed at a later date.

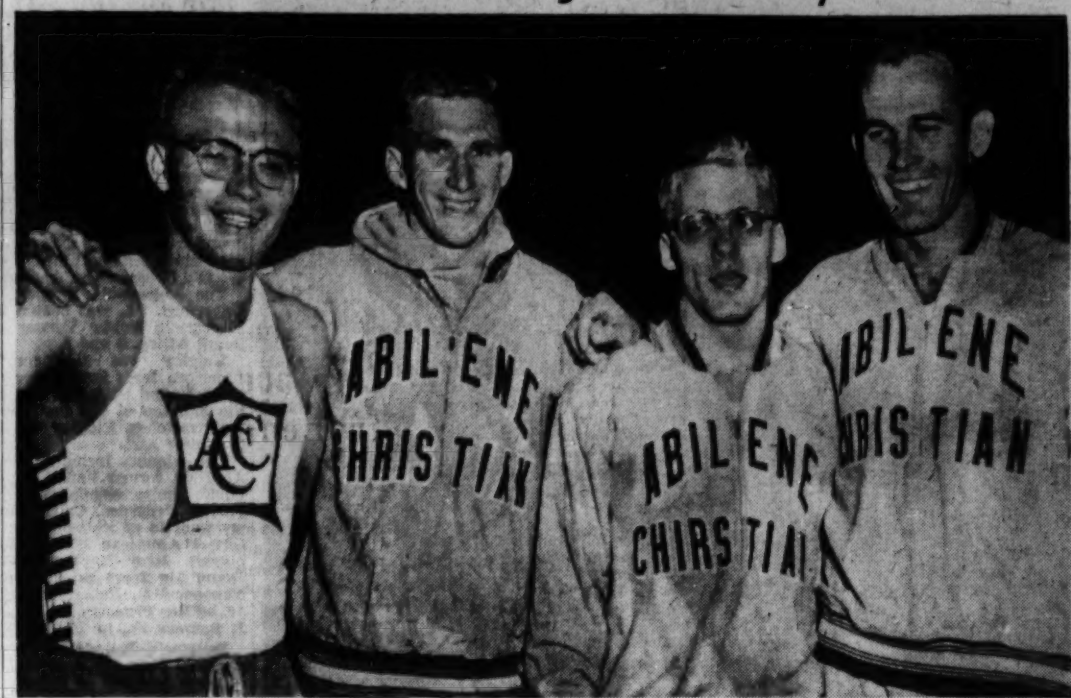

The New York Yankees maintained their 6½-game lead in the American League by bouncing the Boston Red Sox, 10-4. Bob Turley struck out 10 batters and allowed only five hits in registering his eighth victory. Andy Carey led the Yanks' 15-hit attack with five hits, including a pair of homers and a double. Reliever Murray Wall was tagged with the loss. Frank Baumann, Red Sox starter, was cuffed for seven hits and three runs in three innings.

The Kansas City Athletics hammered Cal McLish for five runs in the first inning and went on to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 6-2, on Ray Herbert's six-hit pitching.

Rookie Bell Impresses. Vic Power singled home two runs in the first inning and a double by Harry Chitt and Joe DeMaestri's single accounted for two more. Gary Bell, brought up by Cleveland from San Diego, made an impressive big league debut when he struck out six batters and allowed one run in a three-inning relief stint.

Washington shoved Baltimore back into the cellar with a 5-2 decision over the Orioles. Billy Loes, charged with his fifth straight defeat, contributed to his own downfall when he messed up a rundown play in the fifth inning. Loes shoved Umpire Larry Napp

Orioles Expected to Drop Loes Following Suspension and Fine

BALTIMORE, Md., June 2 (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles announced today that the suspension of Billy Loes, erratic pitcher who became involved in a brush with an umpire on Sunday, will end on midnight Wednesday.

Loes was fined $100 and suspended indefinitely by Manager Paul Richards. The pitcher said he planned to take up his case with Commissioner Ford Frick. Their reports that he had pitched his last game for Baltimore.

However, Assistant General Manager Jack Dunn, issued a brief statement today to the effect that Loes' suspension will last only three days. He would not comment further.

Loes' troubles all came about during the fifth inning of yesterday's game he was pitching against Washington. With Ken Aspromonte on third and Julio Becquer on first, Camilo Pascual hit back to Loes, who tried to tag Aspromonte in a rundown. Aspromonte slid headlong into the plate and when Umpire Larry Napp called him safe, Loes went wild.

"I've put up with quite a lot from him. He is fined $100 and suspended indefinitely. Beyond that I have nothing to say."

Loes told the Associated Press, "He (Richards) can trade me and I'll go somewhere else. . . . He doesn't care whether you win or lose, just so you don't make him look bad."

Asked whether Loes was through with the Orioles, Richards said:

47 New Marks As Japan Wins In Asian Games

TOKYO, June 2 (UPI)—Asia's greatest sports event ended yesterday with a massive eight-day assault on the record books serving notice that Asian athletes will be increasingly tough in international competition.

Athletes of the third Asian games set 47 new Asian records and three world marks before the flame finally flickered out in the huge cauldron in Tokyo's national stadium.

It was an exhibition of athletic prowess never before seen in Asia. A total of 23 marks were set and two tied in the 31 events held in track and field alone. Eleven out of 21 swimming records were shattered. Every weight-lifting record was surpassed.

Japan, with its 288-member delegation, took the greatest number of gold medals. The Japanese contingent won 67 gold medals, 41 silver and 30 bronze.

Japan won the games with a total of 138 points, followed by the Philippines which had 48 and China which scored 34 for third place.

The Philippines won the basketball title by defeating Japan, 90-83.

Here are some of the outstanding features of the games: Japan won 25 out of 26 gold medals to score a near sweep in the swimming event. This was thwarted when the women's relay team was disqualified earlier this week after winning the event.

China's Yang Huan Kuang rolled up a total of 7101 points to win the decathlon, breaking the old Asian mark of 6324.

Japan's 19-year-old Tsuyoshi Yamakata set a world record Friday with a time of 4:23.9 in the 400-meter freestyle swimming event, then followed with another world mark Saturday by negotiating the 200-meter freestyle in 2:03.6 during the 800-meter medley relay.

Kutis Wins Soccer Warmup Game, 1-0

Carondelet S.M.A.C. soccer team gave Kutis a useful workout in a summer league game at Meramec Sport Club field yesterday, holding the national amateur champions to a 1-0 score. Left Winger Butch Cook scored the only goal of the game. The pace in the 90-minute contest was fast. In the first game of the league doubleheader, Jack Diamonds won from South Side, 4-2.

Kutis will be host, Saturday night, to the Los Angeles Dances in the western final of the United States Amateur title tournament. The game will be played at Public Schools Stadium.

WARSAW, June 2 (AP)—Scotland beat Poland 2-1 yesterday in the Scots' last match before the world soccer championship.

Brazil Defeats Milan

Batting Slump Costs Kaline $3000 Bonus

DETROIT, June 2 (AP)—Right Fielder Al Kaline missed out on a $3000 bonus from the Detroit Tigers because his batting average was not .300 or better by June 1.

The 23-year-old outfielder admitted today that his contract contains an incentive clause which called for the extra payment. Kaline was hitting only .288 yesterday after a slump that lasted through most of the early season.

At the same time it was learned that several other Tiger players, including left fielder-first baseman Charlie Maxwell, made similar bonus agreements.

Maxwell's clause calls for an added payment of $2000 if he hits 25 home runs or drives in 100 runs.

The office of baseball commissioner Ford Frick frowns on incentive arrangements. Kaline said today "the incentive thing was General Manager John McHale's idea."

Kaline added: "I had almost forgotten about it (the incentive clause) until June 1 came. Of course, it didn't help to have that kind of contract in the first two weeks of the season when I was hurt."

Kaline had a pulled muscle but played every game. The only time the young star got off to a rapid start the plate was in 1955, when he led the league in batting with a .340 average. He hit .314 in 1956 and .295 in 1957, raising his average several points in late season spurts both years.

Kaline was benched for one game by Manager Jack Tighe when his average fell to .216 a couple of weeks ago. Since then he has had a nine-game hitting streak.

Kaline makes an estimated $30,000 a year in straight pay and Maxwell an estimated $17,500.

Jim Brown and Overby Win at Kansas City

Ladue's Jim Brown and Principia Academy's Richard Overby were back home today after capturing track titles in the Missouri Valley A.A.U. meet Saturday night in Kansas City.

Brown won the senior 220-yard low hurdles in 24.3 seconds, beating out Stucker of Kansas State and Sidlow of Fort Hays.

Overby noted out Jim Baker of Kansas City Southwest in the junior 440-yard dash, winning with a time of 49.5 seconds.

Missouri's Cal Groff ran second to Bill Tillman of Kansas in the 120-yard high hurdles, the winning time being 18.2 seconds and in the 220-yard dash Henry Wiebe of Missouri lost out to Resler of Emporia State who won in 21.0.

Archie San Romani, son of the famous Emporia State miler of the same name, won the junior mile in 4:18.9, a meet record. The former mark, 4:30.7, was set by Kenny Lyon of Kansas City, Kan., in 1956.

Stu Paterson, also of Kansas City Southwest, won the junior 100 in a record-tying 9.8 seconds.

Several St. Louis area girls competed in the women's division without capturing any first places. Valeria Groce was second and Sharon Whittle third in the broad jump, while Betty Desha ran fourth in the 80-meter hurdles and Marion Millett was fourth in the 100-yard dash.

The meet was run despite a series of downpours.

German Horse Wins The Austrian Derby

VIENNA, June 2 (AP)—The Austrian Derby was won by the German horse, Hieb, owned by Frau Marie Hieb, of Cologne. The horse won by a length over the Austrian horse, Be captured. Another Austrian horse, Talsman, was third in the field of seven over the 2400 meter c. se. The winner was ridden by P. Alafi. The winner took a purse of 100,000 schillings (about $3850) and a gold cup.

McMackins Capture Ban Johnson Opener

Bob House pitched a four-hitter and whacked a two-run homer to get the defending champion McMackins off on the right foot in the Missouri-Illinois Ban Johnson baseball league yesterday. The McMackins routed Parkview, 17-4.

Gary Shoen and Larry Sartori combined in a four-hit 10-4 triumph for the Ironworkers over Twin City. The winners' day Schlicker hit a two-run homer.

Remember? 5...15...25 YEARS AGO

1953—During the Cardinals' first 40 games, Manager Eddie Stanky used 13 pitchers for a total of 105 appearances. . . . Unbeaten Floyd Patterson, 19-year-old Olympic middleweight champion, took another forward step with a third-round TKO over Gordon Wallace, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, at New York's Eastern Parkway Arena.

1945—The Cards acquired Danny Litwiler to play left field and obtained another outfielder, Earl Naylor, who immediately was sent to Rochester, in a deal in which the Redbirds gave the Phillies three outfielders — Coaker Triplet, Buster Adams and Dale Clay.

Gloria Thompson, Tom Shanklin and Bob Savitt, all of East St. Louis, won Southern Illinois tennis championships at Murphysboro, Ill. . . . Maj. W. A. Navy football coach, died.

Harry Walker's two-run homer in the eleventh off Rube Melton gave the Redbirds an 11-9 victory over the Dodgers.

1935—Dizzy Dean pitched a six-hitter at Chicago, where the Cardinals gained a 6-1 victory to take first place by four points over the idle Pirates. . . . John McGraw, retired New York Giants manager, accepted an invitation to manage the National League team in an All-Star game to be played July 6 and the best in the American League as part of Chicago's Century of Progress exposition.

Earl Buchholz Takes French Junior Title

PARIS, June 2 (UPI)—It took a 17-year-old player from St. Louis, Mo., to salvage some prestige for the United States on the final day of the French clay courts tennis championships.

Earl Buchholz Jr., considered a promising Davis Cup prospect, won the junior singles title by defeating Alain Bresson of France, 6-8, 6-4, 6-2, yesterday.

In the men's doubles title round, Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser of Australia, defeated Bob Howe of Australia, and Abe Segal of South Africa, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3, 7-5. The Mexican team of Luis Ramirez and Rosa Maria Reyes won the women's doubles crown by downing Australia's Thelma Long and Mary Hawton, 6-4, 7-5.

After seven years of failure, Mervyn Rose of Australia finally won the men's singles title by disposing of Luis Ayala of Chile, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, in the near-record time of 65 minutes, Saturday. Mrs. Suzy Kormoczy of Hungary upset defending champion, Shirley Bloomer of Britain, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, in the women's singles final.

Baltimore Sixth Stop For Lefty Lou Sleater

BALTIMORE, June 2 (UPI)—Lou Sleater, 36-year-old left-handed pitcher, was purchased by the Baltimore Orioles today from the Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers sold Sleater to Charleston of the American Association last week but he refused to report to the minors. He then was given permission to make a deal for himself. Baltimore is the sixth major league stoppage point for Sleater.

Victim of a broken finger on his pitching hand early this season, Sleater appeared in only four games for Detroit and had no decisions. He lives in Baltimore.

To make room for Sleater on their roster, the Orioles have cut outfielder Bert Hamric, who currently is awaiting assignment to a minor league team.

27th Ward Democrats Gain Khoury Triumph

Buzz Jakul pitched the Twenty-seventh Ward Democrats to their second successive victory yesterday in Khoury senior baseball. He held the North Side Yanks to six hits and fanned 13 in a 5-1 victory. Jakul also had three hits.

The Village Barbers scored their second shutout in as many starts, 2-0, over Vorhof-Duenke.

St. Pius Loses, Drops Into The Fox Lead

Printers Win Over Falcons

By Neal Russo
When the Catholic Youth Council said it was realigning the baseball leagues to achieve greater balance, it wasn't kidding about the Cardinal Glennon circuit.

St. Pius jammed the standings yesterday with a 3-0 thriller over St. Pius, which had been the last unbeaten team in the league. The other game at Cherokee Park also was a squeaker, with St. Agatha, defending C.Y.C. champion, downing St. John 2-1.

St. Pius now shares the top spot with St. Cronan, each having 3-1 records. St. Agatha is next with 2-1. Then come St. Aloisius, 3 and 2 after losing its first two games, Resurrection 1-3 and St. John 0-4.

Mike Colombo of St. Aloisius singled to drive in the only run of the game after Jim Humiston reached first on an error and advanced on Sam Tomlinson's single and Ken Hammen's sacrifice. Tom Drazen, who allowed six hits to five off St. Aloisius' Charley Calcaterra, missed a chance to tie the score when he was nailed at home plate trying to score after a fly ball was caught in the sixth inning.

Al Klein of St. John pitched a two-hitter, but one of the blows was a costly triple by rival hurler Bob Bauer, who gave five hits and fanned 11. The three-bagger was sandwiched between a walk and Willie Baer's sacrifice fly.

Bob Fredrickson hurried from McBride's commencement program to strike out the side in the last inning and save Holy Cross' 7-4 victory over St. Augustine. Ed Reinagle's two-hitter helped St. Pius' Founders an 18-3 win over St. Boniface.

In the Muni League, Carondelet Sunday Morning Club, Union Printers and the St. Louis Giants continued on their merry unbeaten way.

Jim McGee of Missouri U. graduate, collected five hits to pace Carondelet in a 17-4 rout of Webster A.C. in the South Side League. Lefty Vern Lehmann hurled the distance against Webster, which trailed by only 5-4 after two innings.

The Cardinals, outscored by a combined margin of 97 to 1 in its four previous games, showed some signs of coming to life by dropping a 9-1 decision to Kutis South. Don Nix yielded the only run in his seven innings and a doublet hurled the final two frames.

In the North Side circuit, the Polish Falcons proved stubborn, trailing only 5-4 before the Printers ran off with an 11-5 victory. Ron Neighbor and Bob Lodeck shared the mound duty for the Typos, who have won five games.

Kutis North, defending Muni champion, needed a five-run sixth to subdue Berber-Young, 8-5, and keep within two games of the lead. Berber led 2-1, before the big sixth, which included a double by Vern Stout and singles by Jack Calto, Al Hedrick and Ed Gerken, the Kutis pitcher. Kenny Kortum homered for Kutis.

With Harry Jones pitching a six-hitter, the St. Louis Giants walked the Rams, 23-2, for their fourth triumph. Harry Walker's ninth-inning single enabled the Brooklyn Robins to beat Scullin, 7-6. The East St. Louis Giants shared the mound duty, 7-4, with Dick Taylor's three-run homer providing the difference.

The Maine League games were postponed because of wet grounds. Larry Hummel of St. Gabriel's juveniles pitched a no-hitter to St. Ignace, 15 to defeat St. John, 8-1.

Western Open Champion Doug Sanders Takes Western Open With 275

DOUG SANDERS, 24, of Miami, Fla., displays his score card after winning the Western Open golf championship at Red Run Golf Club, Detroit.

AMERICAN LEAGUE	NATIONAL LEAGUE
DETROIT 10, MINNAPOLIS 4 Detroit 10, Minneapolis 4. Detroit's 10 runs were scored in the first six innings. Detroit's pitcher, Hal Newhouser, pitched a complete game, allowing only four hits and one run. Minneapolis' pitcher, Lefty Grove, pitched six innings, allowing six hits and four runs.	ST. Cincinnati's pitcher, Andy Pettit, pitched six innings, allowing six hits and four runs.

DETROIT, June 2 (AP)—Youngster Doug Sanders had enough money today to pay doctor bills for the injuries that kept him out of tournament golf for the better part of a year.

Once the 24-year-old former college swinger from the University of Florida shook off the injury and the challenge of top competitors yesterday he won the fifty-fifth Western open tournament.

Back on the tour less than a month after his second injury within the year, Sanders slogged through a driving rain for a final round 68 and made his 4-under-par performance stand up for a one-stroke victory. Sanders, with 275, was 13 strokes under par for the 72 holes.

Dow Finsterwald finished second for the sixteenth time in 21½ years and collected $2500, half the amount Sanders received for winning the $25,000 tournament.

Sanders fired rounds of 69-68-70 before his fourth straight sub-par showing over the suburban Red Run Golf Club lay out (36-36-72). The big pay-check for his first major tournament victory as a professional nearly tripled his 1958 earnings.

The Miami Beach pro had won $1800 before he overcame a two-stroke deficit while a three golfers who had shared the 54-hole lead faltered in the final round over the 6765-yard course.

Finsterwald had a 71 and his total was 276, one stroke behind Sanders. Dave Ragan of Orlando, a teammate of Sanders in college and a former runner of the University of Miami, finished third with a 72 and a total of 277.

Sanders, who won the Canadian open as an amateur in 1956, rejoined the tour May 8 after a four-month absence because of torn ligaments in his right foot.

He was injured in a freak accident while playing in the Colombia open.

Late last summer an infected hand kept Sanders idle for four months.

Only 11 of the 53 golfers who took off in the final round were able to better par. Defending Western champion Doug Ford blew to a 77 for a 287 total that left him out of the money. Half-way leader Tommy Jacobs went over par for the first time in four days with a 73, but captured sixth place and $1100.

Top finishers and their earnings: Sanders, $2500; Finsterwald, $1800; Ragan, $1200; Ford, $1100; and others.

Keeney Suffer First Loss but Stay in Lead

Keeney-Toelle, last of the County Baseball League's unbeaten teams, finally was stopped by Bridgeton's Bill Seerba, 3-2, yesterday. The National Division leaders clung to their one-game margin, however, by taking the second contest, 9-2.

Davison missed a chance to tie for first by losing to Ellistown, 6-5, after scoring a 12-3 first-game victory. Glencoe scored in the ninth for a 3-2 triumph over Chesterfield's Al Tschel, who hurled a five-hitter but was handicapped by six errors.

Bridgeton got all of its runs in the seventh off Ron Schuettenberg, who had a 2-0 lead. Lowell Lucas hurled a five-hitter for Keeney in the nightcap.

Vigus stayed on the heels of Ballwin in the American Division by beating Manchester twice, 5-4 and 5-3. Roy Brannely, who had driven in two-eighth-inning runs to tie the score, was hit by a pitched ball with three on in the ninth inning of the opener. Lefty Klaus, the milkman who hurled the route in the first game, delivered again after taking over in the third inning of the nightcap.

Ballwin, whose game with a 5-1 record, Vigus is 5-2.

Keeney's four-run game, three hits off Olivette's Jerry Kinnis but one was Don Carter's home run, which enabled Jules Faron to win a five-hitter, 2-1.

Pallardy Gets 1641 Total in A.B.C. Event

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 2 (UPI)—The 1958 American Bowling Congress tournament went into its final week today. The tourney went through its seventh day yesterday without a change in any division.

The top open division score was a 2966 by the Fred J. Robinson team of Detroit. The best in the Boomer Division was a 2607 by Roncone's of Rochester, N. Y.

The minor events were paced by a 1226 doubles by Robert Ramirez and Paul Calleros of Anaheim, Calif. Charles Buchholz shot at 641 single series to lead that division, while the No. 1 all-events score was an 1843 by Anthony Kilian of Akron, Ohio.

Joe Pallardy's 1641 all-events total paced the St. Louis bowlers to lead the tourney over the weekend.

In the team competition, the Ace team totalled 2745 and Sports Bowl 2625 well off the pace.

31,000 Fans Attend Football, Hurling Show

NEW YORK, June 2 (UPI)—The Giants couldn't draw flies at the Polo Grounds last season, but an estimated 31,000 fans turned out at their former home yesterday to watch an Irish football-hurling double-header.

New York All-Star teams swept the twin bill for the first time in history, upsetting Kilkenny in hurling, 30-15, and then beating Louth in Gaelic football, 24-14.

JAKARTA MUST WIN WAR SOON OR GO BANKRUPT

JAKARTA, June 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Djarda warned today that the Indonesian government will go broke unless it quickly puts down the three and one-half-month-old revolt in the outer islands.

Addressing a local trade fair opening, Djarda said that if the revolt goes on much longer the government won't be able to finance the armed forces. He said President Sukarno's regime may have to shut down its diplomatic missions abroad and curtail already restricted interisland traffic.

In his first public disclosure of the government's dire financial plight since it launched its costly war against the rebels on Sumatra and Celebes, Djarda warned:

"In one year alone the government lost 300,000,000 United States dollars in foreign exchange and out of it 80,000,000 is due to the Sumatran revolt."

The Central Sumatran revolt was put down last month and the government since has concentrated on the rebellious North Celebes. It is expected to launch a full-scale invasion there in the near future.

Rebels Report Shooting Down Three Raiding Planes.

MANILA, June 2 (AP)—The Indonesian rebel ruler claimed yesterday three government warplanes were shot down while raiding the town of Djallio, on Halmahera island in East Indonesia, Thursday and Friday.

The broadcast, from Menado, North Celebes, said 20 P-51 fighters and a B-25 bomber were knocked down.

ARABS FIRED ON BY ISRAELI, ONE REPORTED KILLED

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, June 2 (AP)—Israeli police fired today on a group of Arabs near the Hadassah hospital compound in the Mt. Scopus demilitarized zone. Jordan said one Jordanian was killed and two others injured.

Jordan complained to the U.N. truce organization. One report said the Arab group was trying to go to Jerusalem and was attacked by five Israeli guards from the hospital.

An Israeli army spokesman said the Arab band of about 120 was carrying knives and axes. He gave this account:

"The group was developed about dawn after a smaller Arab group from the Jordan sector of the demilitarized zone had been turned away by Israeli guards."

The group returned with reinforcements. Israeli police fired after the Arabs had ignored calls to halt.

It was in the same area that Lt. Col. George Flint of Canada, the chief U.N. mediator of the Arab-Israeli conflict, was killed May 26. Lt. Col. James Earl Ricke of Canada was named today to succeed Flint.

EX-CONVICT CHARGED WITH ASSAULT IN TAVERN FIGHT

Thomas Lawrence, ex-convict, was held today suspected of assault with intent to kill in the shooting of Harold Trago, 4903 Hawthorne avenue. Trago was shot in the left shoulder Friday.

Lawrence surrendered yesterday to police and admitted he fought with Trago outside a tavern in the 4000 block of Olive street. Lawrence told police that Trago, who was a stranger to him, knocked him down and kicked him.

Police quoted Lawrence as saying he then obtained a revolver from the glove compartment of a car and fired at Trago on the head with the weapon. Lawrence said he did not mean to shoot Trago. Lawrence, a laborer, gave an address in the 2700 block of Park avenue.

POLAND WILL ADMIT U.S. POLISH-LANGUAGE MAGAZINE

WASHINGTON, June 2 (UPI)—The United States has reached agreement with Poland to distribute a Polish-language magazine in Poland. Poland has advised the State Department that it plans possible distribution of a similar magazine in the United States.

The agreement reached through exchange of notes May 30 is part of an exchange to promote better understanding between the United States and Polish people.

The United States magazine, to be called America in Poland, will be similar in format to America Illustrated, the Russian language publication which the United States publishes for distribution in the Soviet Union.

Three Syrians Reported Killed In Clash With Egyptian Troops

BEIRUT, June 2 (AP)—Three Syrian army officers were killed last Friday in a clash with Egyptians in Syria's northern commercial capital of Aleppo, according to diplomatic reports reaching Beirut yesterday.

There was no confirmation from Damascus. Telephone communications between the two countries were cut yesterday. The diplomatic reports said the clash was apparently the result of growing tensions over the Egyptianization of the high command in Syria, of the United Arab Republic forces. The report said the officers were a picture of Egyptian U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser, a well-thought of in the ground, starting the trouble.

The Beirut press has reported that up to 70 Egyptian officers were killed in the clash, but the diplomatic report did not confirm this.

There have been other recent incidents of discontent over what is sometimes referred to as the Egyptianization of Syria, particularly among the farmers and trade unions.

Syrian Lt. Gen. Afif Blizi was removed as commander of the northern army of the U.A.R. several months ago. Now it is reported that Wing Commander Ali Sabry, Nasser's chief political adviser, will become his chief pro-consul in Syria. Syrian Interior Minister, former army intelligence chief Col. Abdel Hamid Seraj, apparently remains in Nasser's good graces. He is making an "inspection tour" of the uneasy northern district.

Business Outlook

WEST HAS ITS OWN VIEW
By J. A. Livingston

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2—To say that there is no recession here would be exaggeration. But it's no exaggeration to say that San Francisco bankers and brokers were surprised when Eastern financial analysts hit town by way of their convention in Los Angeles and spouted bearishness. To most persons on the West Coast, this is a "rolling readjustment," a passing economic unpleasantness, no more.

Admittedly, unemployment is up and department store sales are down. But only slightly. San Franciscans are quite willing to blame much of the 1958 lull on bad weather—rain, rain, and more rain throughout the spring, which delayed construction activity and kept people out of retail shops. Now the sun is shining. So are faces.

San Francisco department stores have been reporting pluses over 1957 and there was nothing wrong with last year's sales. Sales for the entire year of 1957 were up 10 percent. Which proves that the District has shown a consistent rise this year. The index reads: 132 for January; 135 for February; 137 March and 142 for April.

No Automobile Cross.

John S. Piper, financial editor of the San Francisco News, took a poll prior to the opening of the California Bankers Association convention and reported: "California bank presidents are optimistic. They don't think a tax cut or a big federal public works program will be necessary to pull us out of the recession. Very few expect a lower stock market."

Forty-eight per cent of the more than 60 bank presidents who answered the Piper questionnaire said that business would hold at its present level—would get no worse. Forty-three per cent forecast a recovery. Only nine per cent said the recession had further to go.

The West Coast region doesn't beat the automobile cross. Though passenger car assembly plants here are down, the components—the bodies, fenders, motors, and numerous parts—are shipped in from the East. Therefore, automobile unemployment isn't nearly so significant as unemployment in aircraft around Los Angeles or in lumbering and saw mill operations in Oregon and Washington.

One Another's Relatives.

Aircraft orders are still sliding relative to shipments. No quick revival is expected. But housing starts show signs of perking up. Lumber's slump came in 1956. It has had its recession, according to officers of the General Development Corp. They are optimistic for 1958, 1959, and blatantly bullish for the 1960s.

West Coasters don't understand the pessimism that creeps in from the auto-ridden East.

Steel operations here have held around 65 per cent of capacity—down, of course, from the 100 per cent rates of a year or so ago, and off as much as eastern steel centers where production of ingots slipped below 50 per cent of capacity.

At one time, the West Coast steel industry preened itself as recession-proof. It imports steel from the East. If business slumped, local mills would still operate at full blast. Eastern shipments would be slashed. But prosperity—expansion of capacity to meet a year or so ago, and off as much as eastern steel centers where production of ingots slipped below 50 per cent of capacity.

BOTTLERS' ACCORD VANDALS DAMAGE FORESTALLS STRIKE 4 SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Extensive damage, including broken windows and uprooted flowers and shrubbery, was caused by vandals at four schools over the weekend, police reported today.

Seven panes of glass were broken with stones or air rifle pellets at Humboldt School, 2516 South Ninth street, at Public School No. 1, 1006 Carroll street, vandals threw stones through 10 panes of glass.

Flowers and shrubbery, in a special decorative area, were jerked from the soil at Pruitt School, 1212 North Twenty-second street.

Vandals also broke nine panes of glass in two doors at Pruitt School. Several glass bricks were broken in a wall on the second floor.

The vandals collected a large assortment of rubbish and placed it in large piles inside the broken doors.

At Jackson School, 1632 Hogan street, vandals broke through a door and ransacked a storage room. They stole two typewriters, an adding machine and a radio.

2700-MILE FLIGHT IS MADE BY THOR; EXCEEDS RANGE

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—United States squadrons armed with the Thor intermediate-range missile will be operating in Britain by the end of the year, Maj. Gen. Bernard Schriever said yesterday.

He disclosed, for the first time, that the Thor had flown 2400 nautical miles (about 2700 land miles) last Oct. 24.

"This is 900 miles in excess of its designed range," he said.

Schriever, chief of Air Force missile research and development, spoke at a breakfast meeting of a "final British lodge." He said the Thor intermediate-range missile would be making 5500-mile full-range flights this year. He said the Titan I.C.B.M. would be ready for flight testing soon.

THREE CZECHS FORCE PILOT TO LAND PLANE IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, June 2 (AP)—Three anti-Communist Czechoslovak brandishing an old broken pistol forced the pilot of a chartered Czech plane to land in Austria today. They asked for political asylum.

The passengers were a married couple and a man friend. One man was reported to be a mechanic and the other a former factory owner. After landing at Vienna's old Aspern airport they told police the gun they used was broken and could not shoot.

The passengers said they hired the plane for an internal flight in Czechoslovakia and then forced the pilot to head for Austria. Police took four away for interrogation and locked the plane in a hangar.

AVERAGE STOCK PRICE TO A NEW HIGH FOR 1958

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Steel and other industrial stocks paced the stock market today to another new high for the year. Dealings were quite active.

The United Press said "the steel industry furnished the spark for the rise when the steel mills rose to nearly 61 per cent of rated capacity. The output which is set for this week at 1,641,000 tons is two per cent higher than the production average of the industry 10 years ago."

Standard & Poor's average of 300 stocks was 22 of a point higher at 44.31 at the close. The 425 industrials rose .24 to 47.15 and the 50 utilities gained .17 at 37.11, while the 25 rails fell .06 at 25.12.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 3.41 points higher at 466.11 at the close. The 20 rails lost .18 of a point at 15.82 and the 15 utilities gained .19 at 78.38.

A rise in steel output for the fifth straight week combined with other favorable news to bolster prices. Aircrafts, rubbers, coppers, some chemicals and selected issues forged ahead.

The market was higher from the start in brisk turnover after the three-day Memorial Day holiday. Prices improved until about mid-session when there was some profit taking. The general level remained well ahead although there was some further softening in late trading.

Of 1166 issues traded, advances totaled 580 and declines 340. New highs for the year totaled 145 and new lows 7. Volume was 2,770,000 shares compared with 2,350,000 on Thursday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $1.00 to $171.10, a new peak for 1958. The industrials rose $1.80 to a new high for the year, the rails rose 10 cents and the utilities were 40 cents to a new high.

Based on the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange rose an estimated $1,276,000,000.

Latest News From World Of Business

"ORDERLY DEBT LIQUIDATION AND GOOD CONSUMER DEBT ATTITUDE PREVALENT IN THE FACE OF INCREASED UNEMPLOYMENT," according to a report by the American Bankers Association's Installment Credit Commission's Advisory Board. "The results of the quarterly survey belie the fears of litigation, foreclosures, repossessions and failures which have been expressed by some authorities," the report said.

COTTON TEXTILE MARKET was steady Monday although converters purchased only small quantities of cloth for nearby delivery. The 38 1/2 inch 64x60 5.55 yard print cloth advanced 1/4 cent to 13 1/4 cents a yard. Some other specialty type print cloths were fractionally higher. There was no feature to other sections of the market.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS by St. Louis Clearing House banks increased $10,572,000 in the week ended last Wednesday. Demand deposits increased $7,189,000; time deposits increased $1,688,000; and bond and stock accounts decreased $654,000.

STOCK SALES ON THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE for May totaled 54,783,523 shares. The daily average was 2,379,920.

LONG-RANGE U.S. BONDS DIP FACING NEW ISSUE
NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Long-range U.S. Government bonds firmed somewhat late today after posting losses of up to half a point.

Over the counter dealers quoted intermediates minus 2-32 to plus 2-32. Long-range issues ranged from plus 4-32 to minus 18-32.

Traders said the declines stemmed from the Treasury's new 27-year 3 1/4 per cent bond on which subscription books will be opened tomorrow.

Corporates staid in late afternoon. Rails and investment quality issue were firm to a half higher. Utilities were mixed while foreign dollar loans and industrials drifted lower.

Italian dollar bonds gave ground in a fairly active foreign list.

The Treasury opens subscription books tomorrow on a 27-year, 3 1/4 per cent bond to raise one billion dollars in cash. The offer was separate but announced simultaneously with the refunding of 9 1/2 billion dollars of expiring June 15 maturities.

Grime and Punishment

There is a good reason for apprehensive look on faces of 17-month-old twins Darrell and Jarrell Layman. The boys, who went all out for the mud bath treatment at their Louisville (Ky.) home, have just sighted their switch-carrying, shrieking mother bearing down on them. Switch-hitting mother should be able to convince the twins that they have made an error and that clean living is the least painful way of life.

Storm Damage in Walnut Park Area

Huge tree uprooted in yard of home at 4723 Beacon avenue in Walnut Park district, a victim of high winds which roared through the St. Louis area early yesterday. Winds of up to 46 miles an hour, accompanied by heavy rain, slammed through the area causing extensive property damage. Electric power was cut off to about 25,000 homes, but virtually all service had been restored by late yesterday afternoon.

John Crosby Refreshing Note: Ben Hecht on TV

NEW YORK, June 2. BEN HECHT, the man who has written 70 movies and who has called movies "an eruption of trash that has lamed the American mind," has just succumbed to television and this should be a refreshing, though frightening experience for all of us.

BEN HECHT

Hecht, an iconoclast of gargantuan proportions, has written some superb things (the screenplay of "Wuthering Heights," for instance) and some utter drivel and it'll be fun to see what he'll do for television. Of television, he has said on the Mike Wallace show: "Well, television excites me because it seems to be the last stamping ground of poetry, the last place where I hear women's hair rhapsodically described, women's faces acclaimed in ode-like language. The commercials are for me the most thrilling and exuberant poetry left in the United States."

The name of the series Hecht is writing (he's already written 26 scripts and one pilot film has been shot) is "Dr. Pygmalion." It's the story of an internationally known plastic surgeon who, after changing the outer features, watches for changes in the psyche, the inner wounds and self of the patient. Hecht will tell you it's based on the files of a real plastic surgeon, Dr. Maxwell Malta, who is on the staff of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"DAYDREAMER is a mild description of the men and women who seek the plastic surgeon," comments Hecht. "Their daydream is often violent with tragedy and full of melodrama. The stories I contemplate are not medical stories. They will be the stories of curious and confused men and women who seek to solve inner problems or improve dramatic situations by changing their faces or their seeming ages."

"Policemen, grocery clerks, stenographers, ballerinas, society dowagers, tycoons, underworld figures, politicians and all their neighbors will be my cast of characters. The thing that will tie my stories together will be the daydream of youth and beauty that all these varying types have in common. Most of the stories will be love stories. Why else daydream? They will, however, be slightly offbeat love stories. I feel that in this age of science, of impersonal generalities concerning the problems of government, mass annihilations and outer space, stories about the intimate stresses of individuals will be of extra interest to our propaganda harried audiences. I feel also that stories that do not specialize in the sentimentalities of 'good' people winning their goals and 'bad' people getting their comeuppance can be sharply interesting to television audiences."

THAT DOESN'T TELL US MUCH. The series could be awful or it could be very stimulating, as Hecht certainly was on the Wallace show. I can't remember an interview on TV ever entertaining me so wickedly and so well.

Of movies, for instance, Hecht said: "I don't really dislike them. I have no interest in them, any more than a plumber has any vital interest in his product. The plumber has to know how to make his stuff; he doesn't have to admire what he makes."

Of movie writers: "The writer is a stowaway. He has the privileges of a stowaway. He has no power to assert himself and about 10 or 15 villains, including his own incompetence, usually corrupt him. . . . The writer has no more to do with the making of a movie than an usher with running the theater. . . . Out of 70, maybe I've written about eight or nine I could tolerate if I were a member of the audience."

Wallace read Hecht the Paddy Chayevsky statement which implied movie writers could have as much integrity as anyone else. Snorted Hecht: "He sounds a little like Goldilocks. He'll change his mind after he's been out here awhile. He has one success and one success usually gives a fellow feverish ideas about who he is and what he can do. But after you've had four or five successes and about 50 failures, you change your mind."

Walter Winchell

On Broadway

NAT KING COLE's nifty newy is "Looking Back." His quickest overnight smash since "Nature Boy." . . . "Something's Coming," from the "West Side Story" score, should be more popular. A dreamy sound. . . . Gad, imitators of Elvis are packing theaters in Japan. In other words, that country has lost another war. . . . The Cricket Theater (on Second Avenue) offers plays by tots and for tots. Charming and imaginative. . . . Hugh O'Brian was dropped by 20th Century-Fox five years ago. Then came his bang-bang click on teevee. He now has a $400,000 contract with that studio.

THE ALVIN THEATER box-office displays this sign: "While in this office speak in a low, soothing tone." Good idea. . . . If you want to show an earthquake in a movie, it costs $3500. A flood is more expensive. . . . Sir Laurence Olivier's next project is a movie version of "Macbeth." . . . A half-dozen current Broadway shows were born in London. . . . The latest badge of success for thespians: A sports car. . . . Sinatra's "Come Fly With Me" album has wings. Whizzy, jazzy, sassy. . . . Nonsensoryship in action: The New Yorker magazine reports: "Censorship in Havana has been so strict lately that a newspaper advertisement for a watch was banned not so long ago because the celebrity shown wearing it was a bearded explorer and every Cuban knows that Castro has a beard." (Ohhh!)

James (Maverick) Garner is an avid golfer, podna. . . . "Young, Warm and Wonderful," a new-comer, can't miss being a songstress: Velvet tempo, silky lyrics. . . . The Lunts' tremendous click, "The Visit," played in England under the title "Time and Again." . . . Most-written-about playwright in years is Tennessee Williams. His life is as starkly dramatic as his plays. Williams will be interested to know that Diane Ladd (to whom he is promised an opportunity comedy) is on the verge of signing with 20th Century-Fox. . . . S. Goldwyn's forecast: I think we'll end up seeing Hollywood making no more than 50 films a year. . . . Happier news for H'wood: 112 movie theaters have reopened in Chicago.

THE SEASON'S MOST-HONORED DRAMA is "Look Homeward, Angel," of course. Ironically, Thomas Wolfe, whose novel inspired the play, had a great year to be a successful dramatist. But he was a failure as a playwright. . . . "Tequila" is one of the few rockers worth your bent ear. (It is practically this column's new mambo theme). . . . Lauren speaks like Frankie. She told a reporter: "My son, he's a gasser." . . . Broadway now has three theaters named after living stars. The more the merrier.

Mother Who Traded Job for Home

St. Louisan Tells Why She's Happy Now to Be Full-Time Housewife

Toby Harnett, who writes under her maiden name, is Mrs. Victor N. Harnett. Now glad to be a full-time mother to her 13-year-old son, Noel, she formerly worked for insurance, investment and aircraft firms and most recently as secretary for the University City School District. Her husband is assistant director of Public Works for U. City.

By Toby Harnett

ALL WE SEEM to read these days is "How to Have a Career and Raise a Family" or "How I Keep House and Hold a Full-Time Job." Are you up to the nostrils by this time?

Well, I am. And I have just resigned my very stimulating and pleasant job as a school secretary, and I am glad. Of course, it took the family doctor to apply the brakes to my fast-moving chassis, but I'm stopped. Just before a good crackup.

It was partly the morning rat race. You know the type of thing. You rise reluctantly at 6:30, wash without opening your eyes, brush your teeth (sometimes your chin), fumble for clothes, and thump downstairs to put on the coffee. The sharp orange juice slowly begins to do their routine tasks of packing lunches and preparing cold crunchy wunchies for breakfast, meanwhile boiling the three-minute egg for the Man of the House for five minutes. The pace accelerates.

You glance at the clock and begin to hurry. Just 45 minutes before you have to be at school. You dash upstairs to check on your family, pour cold water on your son, and dash back down to drop the bread in the toaster, pour coffee and rapidly absorb a tasteless breakfast. You kiss the air above the M. of the H.'s forehead, and race upstairs to dress for work and make up the tired face. As you trip downstairs at 7:45, you urge your son to polish off his breakfast, whisk yesterday's paper from the floor, and dump the ashtray, thus colliding with the M. of the H. who is emptying orange rinds and coffee grounds. After this mess is scraped up, you hurl on your coat, grab your purse, and yell like a Pullman conductor "Go, Go, Go!"

You arrive breathless and thoroughly stimulated at 8:01 to begin the day's work. You know the type of thing. Well, a day's work is a day's work. No matter how much you may enjoy the people you work with, or how fast it goes, you are tired at 3:30. And if you are not tired, just let me tell you, you can't live on bread and butter and coffee all the time. But if you are tired, like the rest of the world, this is what happens.

You're lucky. You get a ride home with one of the teachers, who only has to stay five minutes with a spitball expert. You walk up and down, rehearsing what you have to do when you get home. You're halfway through this rehearsal when the teacher rushes down, sorry to have kept you waiting, not at all. I understand perfectly. Since you're 15 minutes off schedule, you sit on the edge of the seat all the way home, and you have one foot out of the car before it stops.

You follow an exact path. Front door to closet where you hang up coat, drop purse on desk, with mail you have no time to read. You dash upstairs to get clothes from hamper, kicking off your heels and sliding into loafers with your arms full of clothes. You thump down to the basement, stuff the stuff in the automatic washer, and trudge back up.

You wash the breakfast dishes, glance guiltily at the headlines of the evening paper, and go upstairs to spread up the beds. By this time your son is home from school and is regaling you with how fast he ran the track, what they have to do for English homework, and who took the horn off his bike. You murmur Ummmmm as you peel the potatoes, not hearing a single word. And he knows it. So he goes to watch television as you prepare dinner. You listen for the automatic washer to stop, so you can go down and hang up the clothes. It stops while you are browning the pork chops, so you don't hear it. When everything is cooking, or thawing, you go in to have a friendly chat with your son who is deep in "The Buccaneers" by now, and has nothing to tell you. By this time, the M. of the H. is home and you greet him vaguely on your way back to the kitchen. You remember the clothes and proceed below to hang up the washing. Then you proceed to serve the dinner. And since you are a "working woman," the Man of the House is a lamb and does the dishes for you, while son does his homework.

Ah! Now you can sit down and rest for a minute. You read the national news, the weather so you'll know what to wear tomorrow, the sales, and the funnies. You all watch TV for a few minutes, and suddenly it's 9 o'clock and you stagger upstairs, forcibly propping your son to his bedroom. By 9:30 you are in a state of utter exhaustion.

Well now, it isn't always this busy. Sometimes you don't have to do a washing, but then of course, you have to live the clothes you washed. And now and then you have to conform with society to the extent of inviting someone over for dinner and bridge. But that's another tale.

You love your work, and you need the money. You think "I'll get a cleaning woman once a week, and let her do the ironing." You do that little thing. She breaks your antique lampshade, slides gently over the furniture, and irons everything in sight. Of course, you have to press everything over, because she didn't iron them completely dry. Then she charges you your whole day's salary plus carfare. This only happens once.

You deliver an ultimatum to your family. You've got to have help. Your son can scrub the bathroom on Saturday for a fee, your husband must do the marketing while you clean the house. This only antagonizes your family, and adds to your feelings of guilt.

Ah yes, those feelings of guilt. You haven't had time to shorten the pajamas your husband got for Christmas, your son is bursting out of his pants, his report card is also in need of a good overhaul. There just aren't enough hours in the day. Then you begin to have stomach aches every day. You think "ULCER," and go to see the doctor. He says you have to cut out some activity. What can you cut out? Just your job, my friend. Your paying job. So you resign.

Problems for De Gaulle

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, June 2.

AS LONG AS President Eisenhower has to deal with General Charles de Gaulle it is encouraging to know that he likes him, because personal relationships do mean a great deal. But the Socialists continue to be opposed to De Gaulle and the Communists have joined in the demonstrations against him. In coming to power, he will not find the same problems he had immediately after the war, but he will find others that are, on the whole, more difficult to settle.

After the war there was unanimous decision in France as to what had to be done and all of the people joined together with one purpose—that of recovery.

But now within France there is division of purpose on many different questions. These will need fresh thinking, and I have a feeling that this is as difficult for De Gaulle and his supporters as it seems to be for some of our own leaders in this country.

IF YOU ARE looking for a play school for your child's summer days, there is a helpful pamphlet published by the Play Schools Association, 41 West Fifty-seventh street, New York City. I think every parent will find it useful because it tells you what to look for when you go to visit play schools. This association will also help you to find play schools or day camps or some kind of supervised play school program in the area where you need it. This is one way of helping to keep down juvenile delinquency.

I AM SURE that people all over the country were glad to have the pleasant weather of the Memorial day weekend, especially after the long stretch of cold and rainy spring days. We had a busy Memorial Day, with a buffet luncheon before the services which always take place here in the garden at Hyde Park around 2 p.m. I always have a tea afterwards for all my neighbors, so that we had a good many people coming in and out of my small cottage. I am always given a great deal of help, however, by all my family and guests who stay with me over this weekend. It never seems as though the day were a burden, because we all have fun in getting ready for our guests and in enjoying them while they are with us.

On Saturday my oldest son, James, and his wife came up for the night. This was a great joy, for they are rarely able to get away from Washington or from his many other commitments. After Memorial Day was over we tried to spend a very quiet weekend, and I think we succeeded in having a pleasant time together.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

HERE ARE three opening lead problems for you to consider. How would you handle them? Also presented below is the play of today's hand.

1. You are West and hold these cards:

North East South West
1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
3♠ Pass 3♠ Pass
4♠ Pass 4♠ Pass

What is your opening lead?
1. West opens the heart six, hoping to build up some hearts tricks before declarer can take diamonds on dummy's diamonds. The hand probably can't be set unless East holds the ace or queen of hearts.

2. You are West and hold these cards:

South West North East
1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 3♥ Pass

What is your opening lead?
2. West opens a heart. As dummy is placed with four hearts and short spades, West tries to protect his partner's high spades by killing dummy's ruffing power. He keeps the top diamond as re-entries for more heart leads.

3. You are West and hold these cards:

South West North East
1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 3♥ Pass

What is your opening lead?
3. West opens a heart. As dummy is placed with four hearts and short spades, West tries to protect his partner's high spades by killing dummy's ruffing power. He keeps the top diamond as re-entries for more heart leads.

4. You are declarer of today's three no-trump hand and West opens the diamond three. Study only the North-South cards: then plan your play. Both sides vulnerable.

Stan Delaplane Japanese Hotel Modes, Manners

WE FLEW DOWN to the old Japanese capital of Kyoto. It takes an hour and a half on Japan Air Lines DC-4, a very pleasant flight.

In Kyoto, they made a good many scenes of "Sayonara." Though the company did not get all the co-operation they would have liked. Japan did not care too much for the Michener book or the picture. Not officially. They liked it at the box office, though.

"I see three times," said Mitsuko, a bath-house girl who is now famous in Kyoto as the girl who "gave bath to Mollon Brando."

The old Japanese town was spared by American bombers. It has about a million people and three whooping geisha districts. This is the traditional home of the honorable geisha. Three geisha troupes are playing the local theaters at this time. It is one of the great towns for Japanese gentlemen on the loose. On the expense account.

"I think I had best run over and see how the factory is doing," says the Japanese honorable gentleman to his honorable wife. "Though as you know the factory is in a terrible factory town. And I hate every minute I am away." He then picks up a ticket and flies off to the Kyoto tea houses.

One of the most interesting shops in Tokyo is in Tokyo Central Railroad Station. It specializes in gifts from various towns in Japan. When the Japanese honorable gentleman comes back from Kyoto, he rushes to this shop. He tells them the name of the town he was supposed to be in. The shopkeeper reaches on the shelf and takes down a gift that is typical of this town. He gets out wrapping paper of an actual shop in that town. He sets back the date on a little date stamp.

HE WRAPS the package in the special paper. And he dates it back a couple of days. The Japanese honorable gentleman takes it home to his honorable wife. "A little present I picked up while visiting the factory town," he says. The honorable wife is overcome to have such an honorable husband.

We stay at the Doi Hotel in Kyoto. It is so private that you must be introduced to get a room. It is the most elegant hotel I have seen in Japan. But like all Japanese hotels, the beds are so short your feet hang over the end.

It does not matter much since the bed is on the floor anyway. The problem is keeping your feet and shoulders covered at the same time by the quilt.

A CURIOUS THING about Japanese hotels is that you cannot ask the price of a room. It is very bad manners. You just take the room. When you leave they hand you the bill. Along with a little present-o. The bill is always correct. And rooms will run about $10 to $15 including breakfast, dinner and a 10 per cent service charge.

You do not carry any packages into your hotel. The maid comes to meet you at the gate and carries them for you. She sits with you and serves you while you eat. She takes you down to the gate each time you go out.

You have to be back by 12 midnight. Or turn into a pumpkin. There is no night help. Everybody goes to bed at 12 and they lock the gates. If you want to whoop it up into the small hours, you are supposed to do it in your room.

That is the Japanese custom and nobody minds that at all. Last night, the Japanese expense account boys below me went nearly all night. And between laughter and the cat-and-elephant music of the samisen, I was a wreck in the morning. I should have gone down and joined the party.

Hal Boyle Spring Illness

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP). IF A MAN wants to find out how really dispensable he is, both at home and in the office, all he has to do is come down with an out-of-season illness.

One of the arts of staying happy in this world is knowing when to fall ill, and when to stay healthy. Illness at the right time, say in the dead of winter, lends a man stature in his community. This is the season to be sick, and people more or less respect you for it. They may even be proud of you—if your ailment is interesting and your struggles are dramatic enough.

They reward you with sympathy, attention, flowers, books and get well cards. After all, it is winter time, there isn't much else going on—and, besides, their turn may come next. But a man who shows the bad grace to fall ill at the wrong time, say on the eve of summer, does so at his own peril. He is as lonely as a hippopotamus at the North Pole. He has violated one of the unwritten rules of civilized living.

Here is what happens: You might, for example, wake up with a bad sore throat. There is a change in the house. Father, the tall column, is complaining now from a horizontal viewpoint. Strength overnight has become weakness. As the head of the family you try to give your final orders.

YOUR ULTIMATE BENEDICTION is never quite translated because, feeling father is at death's door, mother and child summon the doctor. The doctor, a practical man, pulls you back from death's door very swiftly.

"Such nice weather . . . infected throat," he murmurs crossly. Humbly, as you accept his prescription, you realize that a hidden defect in your ancestors a thousand years ago has suddenly cropped out and interrupted his golf game.

Alerted to the fact that father has both feet firmly braced against death's door, mother and child make the patient as comfortable as possible. Then they abandon him to go off on a wild swing of end-of-the-year nursery school birthday parties.

If you protest that such goings-on weren't prevalent in your own childhood, your wife replies: "I know life is going downhill, but how much algebra do you really remember before kindergarten?"

You lie alone on your bed of pain and arise three dozen times a day to answer the phone and the door. It is the cleaner . . . it is a door-to-door salesman . . . it is a wrong number . . . it is the fulltime boy friend of the part-time maid.

THE DOCTOR SAYS you should rest two days more but you dress yourself and totter into the office. Oh, duty! There, overcome with your own sense of quiet heroism, you are greeted:

"How did you enjoy the fair in Brussels—you look pale, you dog."

"Boy, what a night club tan! How is it in Havana?" And the boss says:

"Your vacation has done you a lot of good. It shows in your face. Where did you go?"

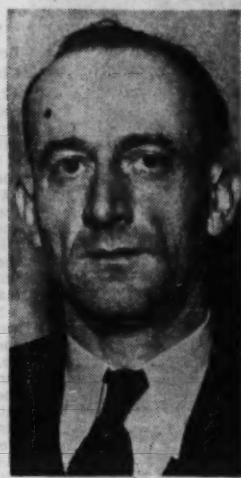

Moral: Never claim you feel bad when the sun shines on everybody else. Rain makes the audience.

Police Capt. 'Paddy' Kirk's War on Gangsters

He Treated Them So Harshly That They Gave His Soulard District a Wide Berth; Solved Many Murders

ARTHUR SCHNELT

FRANK KENNEDY

THE LATE CAPT. PATRICK KIRK . . . A POLICE OFFICER WHO WOULDN'T TOLERATE GANGSTERS.

"LORD" F. SEYMOUR BARRINGTON . . . HE ESCAPED EXECUTION FOR MURDER

By
Theodore P. Wagner

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

POLICE CAPT. PATRICK

KIRK, enemy of gangsters, died in St. John's Hospital in April, 1934, eight months after the death of Capt. Frank Nally, who also hated gangsters. Capt. Kirk was 62 years old, had been a policeman 39 years and commander of the tough Soulard District 14 years, an unusual record.

Born in County Louth, Ireland, "Paddy" Kirk came to the United States as a youth and "went on the cars" (became a streetcar conductor) before joining the police force in 1895. His first police work was as a mounted officer in the old Mounted District. He was an imposing figure on a horse, and it was in the Mounted District he learned the efficiency of a night stick, a technique he perfected throughout his career.

Kirk was a newly-promoted young sergeant, working as a detective, when he had a part in a notorious criminal case. The central figure was "Lord" F. Seymour Barrington, bogus English nobleman who was a frequent patron of the night spots of his day. "Lord" Barrington, whose real name was Frederick Barton, became a friendly with James P. McCann, operator of the Leland Hotel and Bar in downtown St. Louis.

McCann was a free spender, and he and Barrington spent many a gay evening in places like Old Delmar Gardens and at the several race tracks which the city boasted. In 1903 McCann disappeared.

Detectives Kirk and the late Gratiot Cabanne, a noted athlete who had become detective, received information that McCann had been murdered and his body disposed of in a quarry in St. Louis county. The county in 1903 was an area of farms and woods. Kirk and Cabanne, two city policemen, spent many hours of unaccustomed hiking along railroad tracks and muddy roads in their inspection of abandoned quarries. In time they received information which led them to Bonfils Quarry on Fee Fee road. Their search of the quarry pond led to recovery of McCann's body.

The Lord Barrington case created a sensation, and was one of the early criminal trials involving fingerprints. Fingerprints sent to Scotland Yard disclosed that Lord Barrington was an imposter and a bigamist.

Tried at Clayton, the "Spurious Lord" was found guilty of the murder of James McCann. He was sentenced to be hanged. Gov. Joe Folk commuted the sentence to life imprisonment, and in 1919 Barrington was released from prison on condition he return to Britain. As may have been expected, he failed to keep the agreement. He continued to live in the United States under various aliases until 1933, when, at the age of 73, he collapsed on a Los Angeles street. His true identity was learned and he was returned to England.

Sgt. Kirk, meanwhile, had been placed in charge of a precinct in the old Dayton Street District. Here flourished the "Bottoms Gang," predecessor of some later St. Louis criminal organizations.

Members of the Bottoms Gang were young rowdies and criminals who infested the "lowlands" north and east of Jefferson and Washington avenues. Their chief interest and means of subsistence lay in the old vice district, then tolerated on Lucas avenue.

Kirk became a leading figure in the fight on the Bottoms Gang. The battle of police against crooks lasted two years. Two officers were shot, one when he entered an old church at Twenty-second and Washington used as a gang rendezvous. Connie Sullivan, the gang leader, and some of his men went to the penitentiary. The relentless police activity eventually succeeded, and the Bottoms Gang ceased to exist.

Promoted to lieutenant, "Paddy" Kirk served as assistant night chief of police. In 1920 he was advanced to captain and received his first and only command, Soulard District.

In sending Capt. Kirk to Soulard District, the police board had in mind the presence of the notorious Cuckoo Gang in that area.

The Cuckoos were a gang of ruthless holdup men and killers. Some of their exploits were fantastic. One incident in the Cuckoo history actually involved "trench warfare."

A war party of Cuckoos was jumped in the Lemay area by rival gunmen in broad daylight. Workmen were digging a sewer trench in a Lemay street. When the shooting began the sewer diggers scamped for the open prairie, while the gangsters dived into the sewer excavations and blazed away at each other. One of the Cuckoos identified in the clash was "Wingy" Cox, readily recognized by his one arm. "Wingy," witnesses said, jumped in and out of the trench, popping away with revolver. When deputies arrived the smoke had cleared and the gangsters were gone.

The ranks of the Cuckoos included such gunmen as Gus and the late Pete Webbe, Herman and Roy Tipton, Pete McTigue, the late John Luger, Dave Kiegan, James Doormandy, James Stillman, Louis Mandel, "Dizzy" Daniels and Oliver Hamilton.

The Cuckoos joined one of the Italian factions in the bloody feud over moonshining. Thirteen men were murdered in 10 months in that series of gun battles. Among the victims were Pete Webbe and Anthony Selvaggio, the latter, a young man who had thrown in his fortune with the Cuckoos, and Caesar Cipriano, a leading gunman.

Gus Webbe, Dizzy Daniels and Oliver Hamilton received life sentences for the murder of St. Louis policeman Edward Griffin, who was shot to death by the Cuckoos when they found him off duty at a roadhouse in the south end of the county. In their flight they seized the automobile of John L. Sargent, a produce merchant. The gangsters killed the defenseless Sargent and tossed his body out of his machine when speeding through Carondelet.

The Cuckoos were responsible for the murder of Constable Ohmer Hockett and his pal, John Balke, whose bodies were discovered, wired together, in a shallow grave near Horseshoe Lake on the East Side. The constable had made the mistake of attempting to shake down the moonshining Cuckoos. He and his friend were killed and buried.

Capt. Kirk, like Capt. Nally, had "no truck" with gangsters. He wanted no peace, or friendly understandings, with the Cuckoos. Unconcerned about "civil rights," he treated the gangsters rough. He arrested them repeatedly, kept them in the holdover for the longest time permissible, and arrested them again when they stepped out of his station into Soulard street.

Kirk's purpose was to discourage gangsters from operating in his district. He succeeded well. In the underworld it became known that Soulard District was a good section to keep away from.

The tough captain also had firm theories as to the treatment of juvenile offenders. Many youngsters, the South Seventh street area who had dreams of following the paths of the swaggering Cuckoos found himself stretched across a table in the basement of Soulard District while a husky policeman massaged his posterior with a barrel stave, or a uniform belt. Several initiations into the "Paddy Kirk Fraternity" usually persuaded the embryo Cuckoo that it would be much wiser for him to get a job washing bottles in a brewery than to become a gunman.

When Andrew Deck, a prohibition informer, was murdered at Heruleaneum, Capt. Kirk was placed on special duty and solved the case in three months. He found that St. Louis dealers in moonshine were operating in Heruleaneum and that Deck had informed on them. Capt. Kirk and a group of special officers under his command arrested the killer and the men who paid him to beat the informer. Deck had resisted the beating and was shot to death. The killer and two of the others were sentenced to death.

The murder of Ernie Pillow, Negro bank messenger, at his Fairfax avenue home in May 1921, was viewed as a particularly bold challenge of the underworld. Pillow was the chief witness against a gangster accused of robbing him. Warned not to testify, Pillow persisted and paid with his life.

Capt. Kirk was detached from district duty to work on the Pillow case. His investigation led to the arrest of two men and their indictment on murder charges. He also worked outside his district on the Grand National Bank vault robbery in 1930. Evidence pointed to Monte Bostelman, notorious bank burglar, as the leader in the robbery. Bostelman, had been convicted of another crime in Colorado and served a long prison term in that state.

Capt. Kirk did not have to go outside his district to solve one murder. Eddie Menken, Cuckoo gangster, was shot to death as he lay on the grass plot at Twelfth street and Chouteau avenue on a hot July night in 1931. The captain learned the identity of the men responsible for the killing and gave them a rough time. About a year later, Pete Stevens, gunman, came in and confessed he fired six shots at Menken, confirming Capt. Kirk's information. Stevens also confessed a bombing and an attempted killing and went to prison for 25 years.

Reunions Planned At Mary Institute

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR the women who were graduated 25 and 50 years ago from Mary Institute are putting finishing touches to reunion plans. Parties for classmates, many of whom will come to St. Louis especially for the celebrations, have been in the making for weeks and gifts of money to the school, traditional with reunion classes, have been totaled for the last time.

For the class of 1908, of which Miss Margaret Shapleigh and Mrs. George Logan are co-chairmen, the opening event will be a tour of the school Wednesday, and the tea which the headmaster, Ronald Beasley, and Mrs. Beasley, will have afterward for teachers, alumnae officers and representatives of the board of directors.

After the tea Mrs. Bruce Seddon will entertain the class for cocktails at her home on Ballas lane, Town and Country. A dutch treat dinner at Beve Mill will end the day's activities. Thursday a reunion luncheon will be given by Miss Shapleigh at the St. Louis Country Club and that night Mrs. William H. Bixby will give a class party at the opening performance of the Municipal Opera.

For both classes, Friday is the day anticipated with the greatest interest. On that day, after commencement exercises, both classes will attend the alumnae luncheon. For the fiftieth reunion group, Mrs. Frederick C. Lake Jr. (Emilie Haydock Camp), who will be here from Pacific Palisades, Calif., will respond to the toast to her class, repeating the privilege accorded her in 1933, at the twenty-fifth reunion.

Members living elsewhere who will be here for the festivities are Mrs. James Harold Wallis, Scarsdale, N.Y., who as Miss Sara O'Neil was class president; Mrs. Carl R. Gray Jr. (Glady's Beach), St. Paul; Mrs. Frank Aranow (Blanche Bodenheimer), Springfield, Conn.; Mrs. Samuel Glover (Helen Bonasack), Fairfield, Conn.; Mrs. E. C. Mitchell (Ruth Crawford), Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Mrs. J. Francis Linticum (Eleanor Delano), Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Richmond D. Moot (Edith McCormack), Schenectady, N.Y.; Mrs. Gordon L. Sibley (Vivian Mortimer), Glenview, Ill.; Mrs. Arthur C. Allen (Nelle Musick), Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. Fred T. Kennedy (Elizabeth Phillips), Columbia, Mo.; and Mrs. Milton B. Strauss (Ada Valle Weber), Bethesda, Md.

Graduates and non-graduates who live here are Mrs. Seddon (Frances Wickham Bryan), Mrs. George D. Duntze (Mabel Evans), Miss Callie Ives, Mrs. George B. Logan (Lucille Fullerton), Miss Ann Nichols, Miss Sallie Playner, Miss Shapleigh, Mrs. Clifford C. Jones (Ida Young), Mrs. Bixby (Stella Fresh), Mrs. Sydney M. Shoenberg (Stella Hayes), Mrs. Sears Lehmann (Malotte Houser), Mrs. Roland G. Usher (Florence Richardson), Mrs. Carroll Hill (Adele Carman), Mrs. Alfred Lewald (Nellie Eames), and Mrs. Walter E. Bryan (Winifred Kinealy).

Many Parties For 1933 Class

SEVERAL PARTIES are planned for the 1933 class, celebrating its twenty-fifth reunion. Mrs. Harry Clay Deckert (Julabelle Forney), who was class president, is reunion chairman; Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey III (Margaret Allen Marquis) is treasurer; Mrs. Oscar Whitelaw Rexford (Mary Marshall Metcalfe) has charge of events and Mrs. Jerome M. Barker (Fannie Loeb) is arranging for the response to the class toast. The response will be made in a skit by four members.

Seven hostesses will join for the opening luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John E. Russell (Betty Berninghaus), 11 Rockliffe lane, Ladue. Assisting hostesses are Mrs. Rexford, Mrs. Deckert, Mrs. Guernsey, Mrs. Stanley Lentin (Therese Greenfield), Mrs. Leland Hosto (Mary Katherine Ives) and Mrs. John Craib Cox (Jane Fisher).

Motion pictures taken of the class 25 years ago will be shown at the second party, a luncheon Thursday at the home of Mrs. John M. Friedman (Ellen Cronbach), 46 Washington terrace. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Barker, Mrs. William D. Wallbrunn (Bertha Loeb), her twin; Mrs. Carl Glaser Jr. (Ruth Tuholske), Mrs. William Gage von Weise (Marjorie Boettler), Miss Margaret Gilliam and Mrs. Benjamin Durham (Ruth Jane Jones).

Before the alumnae luncheon Friday Mrs. John C. Mosby (Madeline Rogers) and Mrs. George J. Herbst Jr. (Marion Jones), will entertain the class at Mrs. Mosby's home, 9801 Conway road, Ladue. At 8 o'clock that evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Evans Claggett (Blanche Fischel) have arranged for a dutch treat picnic at Sky Line Farm near St. Charles, at which husbands of the classmates will be included.

From out of town will come Mrs. Kenelm Warren Winslow (Virginia Burns) Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. Charles W. Cook (Mildred Bush), Scottsdale, Ariz.; Mrs. Edward Gilson Curtis Jr. (Mary Ellen Chivvis), Washington; Mrs. Douglas W. Dwyer (Vivian Meyer), Darien, Conn.; Mrs. Arthur M. Cole (Betty Ann Noland), Wilmington, Del.; and Mrs. Frank Boyd Gary Jr. (Patricia Gale Thompson), Columbia, S.C.

MRS. WILLIAM J. KRUMMEL, 7515 Buckingham drive, Clayton, will be hostess Saturday at a tea in honor of Mrs. Wilfred Doolittle, the former Miss Elaine Voight of St. Louis, who now lives in Hillsdale, N.J. Mr. and Mrs. Doolittle, who will be guests at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fehlig (Helen Voight), 7516 Carondelet avenue, Clayton, are here for the graduation of their niece, Elaine Voight Fehlig, from Villa Duchesne.

Mrs. Krummel has planned pink and silver decorations for her tea table and in the living room will use arrangements of gladiolas and greenery.

Annual Rose Luncheon Tomorrow

THE ANNUAL Rose Luncheon of the Women's Society of Third Baptist Church will be held tomorrow at noon at the church. A business meeting, the last of the season, will take place at 10 o'clock and the luncheon at noon.

The luncheon will be given in a setting created with a profusion of roses. Mrs. C. Oscar Johnson, whose given name is Rose, was the originator of the luncheon. This year she will be guest of honor and her husband, the Rev. Dr. Johnson, who has resigned as pastor of the church, will be a special guest. The Johnsons will depart the end of June for California to live.

Mrs. Lloyd White of Kansas City, Mo., will speak on "Philosophy Through Your Hat," and will show her unusual collection of hats. A trio will present a musical program. Mrs. Frank W. Harpold is president of the society.

To Be Graduated This Month

FOUR ST. LOUISANS WILL BE GRADUATED JUNE 9 FROM BRADFORD JUNIOR COLLEGE, BRADFORD, MASS. FROM LEFT: THEY ARE MISS BLAIR SMITH, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. JOHN J. SMITH; MISS JANE PETERSEN, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. VERNON F. PETERSEN; MISS MARY WETZEL, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. ALFRED J. WETZEL; AND MISS STEPHANIE MCINLEY, DAUGHTER OF MR. AND MRS. CUYLER ROSS MCINLEY. MISS SMITH AND MISS MCINLEY ARE DEBUTANTES OF THIS SEASON.

Panhellenic Activities In Early June

CHI OMEGA'S St. Louis Alumnae Chapter will have its annual buffet supper Tuesday evening, June 10, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Parker Nichols, 35 Branford drive, Olivette. The hostess committee includes Miss Frances Starr, chairman, Mrs. Lyle Martin and Mrs. Robert Yapp. Pledges and student members of the sorority in the metropolitan area who are home for the summer vacation will be guests. Officers of the alumnae chapter who will be installed are Mrs. William H. McNabb, president; Mrs. Robert Bilger, secretary; Mrs. Gordon H. Pennington, correspondent; Mrs. Russell Court, treasurer, and Miss Ruth A. Rice, chaplain.

Chi Omega will hold its thirty-first biennial convention on June 26-30, at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Delegates from St. Louis will be Mrs. William H. McNabb, Dr. Virginia Jackson and Miss Ruth Rice.

sorties having international conventions this summer are Zeta Tau Alpha, which will convene July 3-7 at the Antlers Hotel in Colorado Springs, and Alpha Phi, which has chosen the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena for its convention June 23-27.

The board of directors of the St. Louis Panhellenic Association is holding its annual June social meeting and buffet luncheon today at the home of Mrs. Jack Heaton's mother, Mrs. H. G. Rumsfield, 620 Ericson lane, Kirkwood. Mrs. Heaton, who represents Chi Omega on the board, is retiring president of Panhellenic. Announcement will be made of the award of a scholarship to the University of Missouri to Miss Patricia Jeanne McCallum, 4693 Rosalie avenue. Funds from the recent benefit scholarship bridge of Panhellenic amounted to more than $1000 and will be used for awards at both the University of Missouri and Washington University. Mrs. B. W. Mayfield of Delta Gamma is chairman of the scholarships awards committee, serving with Mrs. John E. Flynn of Gamma Phi Beta, committee treasurer, and Mrs. L. Nell Buckles of Alpha Chi Omega. Offices of Panhellenic rotate among the member social sororities and will be held for the coming year as follows: Mrs. Lester G. Leutwiler of Sigma Kappa, president; Mrs.

an experiment in "SUBLIMINAL" advertising

You've probably seen or heard reports on Madison Avenue's latest gimmick, subliminal advertising... so called because the sales message is actually directed at the subconscious mind.

On T. V., for example, an advertiser might flash the name of his product many times during a show—so fast it is not consciously noted.

Still in the experimental stage, this new technique has been used with amazing success and is causing a great deal of conversation everywhere.

We at the Brentwood Bank are curious to see if subliminal

advertising really works. Whether you're aware of it or not, you've been exposed to our secret message 10 times in the space of this advertisement.

If it works...we'll be seeing you soon!

If it doesn't...we hope you will open a Brentwood Bank savings account anyway!

Martha Carr's OPINION

Plants and the Property Line

Dear Martha:

THIS IS IN ANSWER to the mother who thinks it is so awful of her neighbor to chase her little darling who pulled up the neighbor's plants. I would suggest that the mother go out and buy the plants at whatever stage of growth they were in when her son destroyed them. If she were aware of the cost perhaps she wouldn't be so critical. Also, how about putting up a fence and make said son stay behind it? It can be done. We are experiencing the same situation in our neighborhood. Our neighbor's children roam at will pulling up what they please. Since all children love to throw, they are forever picking up freshly worked and seeded earth in our yard and tossing it around. Now where is mother while all this goes on? You guessed it. She's hanging over the clothesline gossiping with her neighbor. We don't feel we should be the ones to put up a fence, but would be more than willing to pay for half but we know that another neighbor has already approached them with this idea and ended up paying for all of it. They can't afford fences, yet they have fancier furniture than anyone in the neighborhood, a new car, a speedboat and a clubhouse. We like our neighbors otherwise. My husband gets so disgusted that he plans to sell our home. I have worried about moving and am about to have a nervous breakdown. And who knows, we may move into a situation far worse.

R. G.

Have you tried correcting the children—within hearing distance of the parents? Have you tried talking to them seriously about the damage and encouraging them to watch the plants appear above the surface of the ground and then develop leaves and blossoms? Naive? Maybe so, but most children are pretty reasonable, and talk is cheaper than a fence. If nothing else helps, a fence, however, would be more economical than a move or a nervous breakdown and to remove the temptation would make your life in the neighborhood far more pleasant.

Dear Martha:

I AM A YOUNG WIDOW with two little boys 4 and 5 years old. I have been going with a fellow my same age for about a year and I know he is as crazy for me as I am for him, and he likes my boys quite a bit. He is in the army now. His family has brainwashed him so thoroughly that he is too young and too unsettled to take on the responsibilities of a family that has just about drawn a line between us. They have never met me and wouldn't bother to come from their home in New York when he asked them. Why do some people condemn others before they know what there is to condemn? We have so much in common and my family has taken him in. He is so confused that he doesn't know if he should become more involved with me and run the risk of making enemies of his family or just run away period. Is there anything I can do or do you think I should just let him muddle in his own thoughts.

MRS. J. R.

What's the good of a brain without backbone? If he lets them decide whom he's to marry, chances are he'll let them keep right on making his decisions. I don't think you can assume they're condemning you because they couldn't make a long cross-country trip but, all the same, if you have to do battle against them all your life, the price of winning him may be too high.

In dividing wedding expenses, who pays for what? Martha Carr's free list will help you as you make your plans for the ceremony. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Hollywood Sidelights

HOLLYWOOD.

ANNA MAGNANI will play the mother of Sophia Loren in Alberto Moravia's "Two Women," which Marcello Girosi will produce for Paramount in Italy, next year. Sophia's husband, Carlo Ponti, is co-producer, but he won't return to Italy until the question of his divorce and marriage has been clarified. The screen will surely burn with Magnani and Loren in the same movie. . . . Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo has invited Klm Novak to Ciudad Trujillo—he wants to meet the girl who may become his daughter-in-law.

When Buddy Adler saw the rough cut of "A Certain Smile," he glowed: "This is not a picture, it's a painting." Not a single cut was ordered. Star Rossano Brazzi calls it "Five Coins in a Fountain"—"It's two coins better than that other picture which made a fortune for 20th."

The movie version of "South Pacific" is doing smash business in London. The Gaynor-Brazzi musical is expected to run there for at least a year. . . . Jayne Mansfield will be glad and sorry to learn that she will be co-starred in "Short Weekend" with Eddie Constantine, the American actor who became such a big hit in France. Glad, because it's a break to work with Constantine. Sorry, because the picture will be made in Italy and she won't see her heart-shaped pool in Hollywood until October.

Millie Perkins, who was 19 when George Stevens signed her for the title role in "Diary of Anne Frank," was given a surprise party on the set for her twentieth birthday. She wept while cutting the cake and said, "If only I could cry like this when Mr. Stevens asks me to, for the picture!"

Fred Zinnemann's wife, Renee, wins my vote for the filmland wife of the year. Fred leaves the Hassler hotel in Rome at 7 every morning for the set of "The Nun's Story," outside Rome. He doesn't return until after midnight. But Renee always has breakfast with him, and always waits to have dinner with him. She has also been on every picture location with the Oscar-winning director.

Bob Cummings and wife Mary, with the three oldest children, take off for a 10-week tour of Europe in July. They plan to buy a small truck in Germany and race around the continent.

Jan Clayton is spending her evenings taking French lessons, prior to leaving for the Brussels World's Fair and "Carousel." The pert actress-singer claims the lessons are "to help me spend more of my money shopping in Paris."

Story of Susie, Freshman Queen

By Millie Wolff

SECRETLY EVERY WOMAN wants to be a queen. Many are called, but few are chosen. There are all kinds of queens from the continental siren to the 4-H club variety.

College queens are a special breed, as indicated by Susie's story. The Purple and White political combine at a large midwestern university picked Susie for freshman queen some while ago. No one even knew exactly why except it was their turn for freshman queen that year. Campus politics in those days were plotted like chess games and she was the pawn. As to credentials: Her teeth were straight, her eyes were straight, her legs were straight, unfortunately her figure was straight, too. The only thing about her was wasn't straight was her curly hair. When she announced the news to her family via telephone, someone said, "Gawd, the other girls must be horrible."

But to return to the mechanics of procedure. Each sorority and dormitory innocently entered its favorite freshman in the contest. Not even Susie knew this was formality and she'd already been selected winner. A tribute to diplomacy in embryonic politics.

Now Susie had one peculiar habit. Under stress she would cut her hair, thinking a new coiffure would give her poise and assurance. And as contest time approached she became very nervous and the inevitable happened. The results were disastrous and Susie moaned, "I'm sick. I look awful. I can't go." She telephoned the sorority to withdraw her entry and climbed into bed.

Ten minutes later one of the bigger girls arrived, yanked Susie from her sanctuary screaming, "Into your clothes and off to the contest."

"My hair looks awful, how can I go like this?" protested Susie.

"It doesn't look any worse than usual," was the chilling answer. What Susie didn't know was that it would look pretty bad for everyone concerned if she was announced winner and hadn't been there at all.

Blindly she staggered to the Activities building for the contest. She was given a number and paraded before the judges—two professors and one campus big shot. At their command she stalked stiffly around the room. To sit regally, as she would on her throne, she collapsed pathetically into a chair. A limp figure with no spine. She was questioned to draw out her intellect. Hoarsely she rasped out the answers. Finally it was over. But a deal's a deal. Susie was crowned queen.

She has no clear memories of coronation night, the night of the freshman prom. She remembers hiding in the ladies room when the master of ceremonies wanted to feature her in the floor show as someone crooned, "She Walks Like You, She Talks Like You." She remembers being dragged to the radio where she announced on a national hook-up in a quavering voice, "Hi, Mom. Hi, Dad, I'm having fun (gulp-siggle-choke)." She led the grand march to the tune of "Paeon to Spring." And just as the dance was over, she was beginning to enjoy it.

The following week Susie began to resent the fact that people were treating her like always and nothing was different. She cut her hair again. Nobody noticed. She cut classes. Her professors noticed with, "Two more cuts and you're out."

But no one can take away the fact that Susie WAS a beauty queen. This is a life-long attachment. And she smiles secretly to herself when she hears strangers whisper, "You know she was a college beauty queen. She must have been a gorgeous girl. Isn't it too bad how she's faded?"

Shirtwaist Trends
The shirtwaist dress with full skirt and tailored bodice has some new detailing for summer. Necklines are cut lower and wider although the tailored type often is used. Sleeves are short, and the little sleeve that is puffed in the baby-doll style is a variation of the trim, cuffed type. Some of these dresses are buttoned from neckline to hemline.

"I shall care for you all my life
... and all of yours"

In the marriage ceremony, the groom vows to care for his bride as long as they both shall live.

But most husbands today go beyond this pledge. Through life insurance a man can provide for his wife and children longer than he may live.

How much longer? That depends, of course, on the size of the policies in his life insurance program, and on the size of the family, among other things.

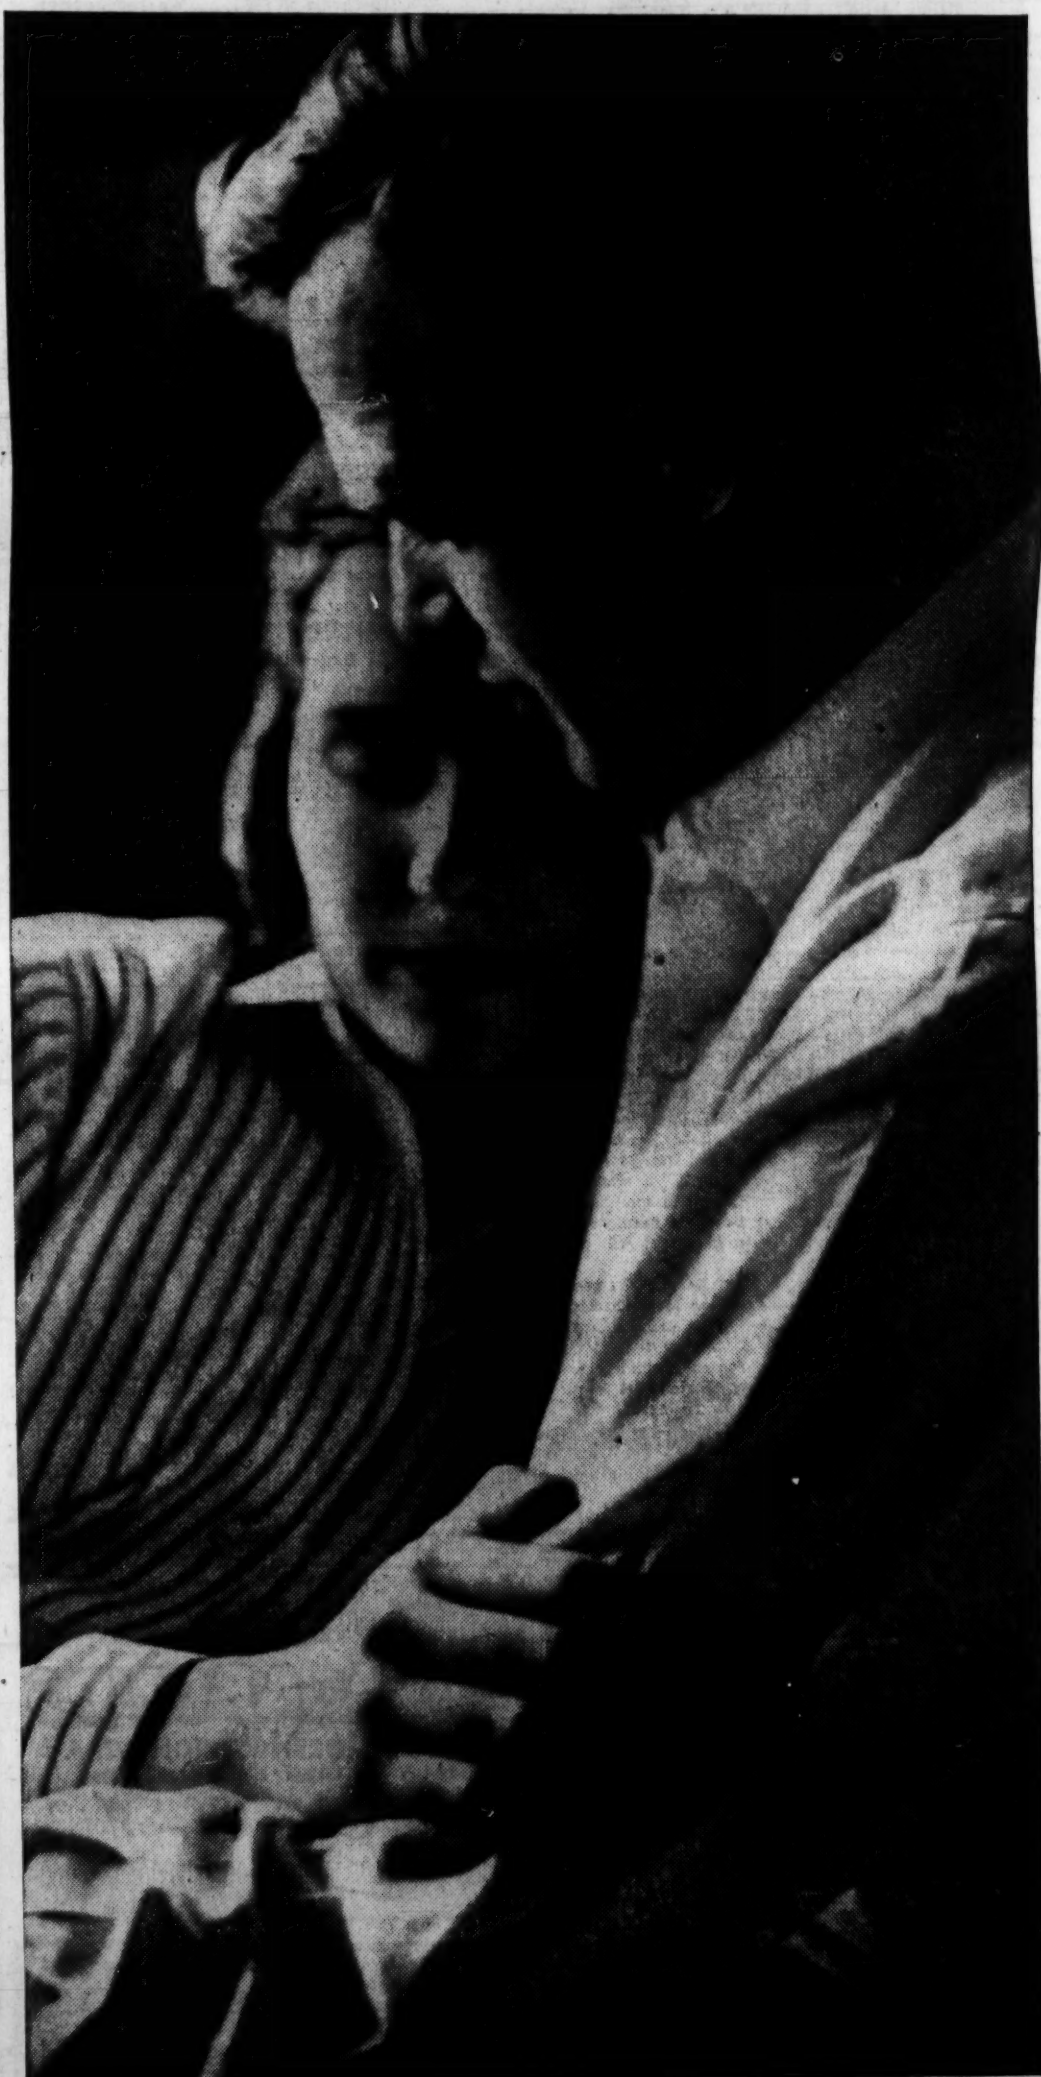

Many a husband has a plan that provides an income for his wife as long as she shall live.

Because a life insurance policy is a contract, its wording is cold, legal and formal. But no wife misses the tender message of devotion that lies between the lines.

YOU can count on life insurance.

Tile Repairs

By Hubbard Cobb

ONE of the few things that can happen to a clay or ceramic bathroom or kitchen wall is a failure of the grout—the white filler that is applied between the tile.

Failure of the grout is bad for two reasons: one being that it spoils the appearance of the wall and the other that it makes it possible for moisture to get in back of the tile and cause trouble.

If you find that the grout between tiles is breaking up and falling out, take a sharp tool like an icepick and remove as much of the old grout as possible.

Clean out the joint between the tile and then apply fresh grout.

You can make your own grout by adding water to white Portland cement to form a paste or you can buy ready-mixed grout at hardware stores and from outfits selling tile and tile supplies.

Applying the grout is easy—you just smear it over the wall working it into the joints between tile by first brushing it across the joints and then with them. Go over the wall several times in this manner to be sure that all the joints are well packed with the grout.

When the grout begins to set, remove it from the surface of the tile with a damp cloth or rubber squeegee. Take a small stick with a dull point to produce a smooth surface.

When the grout has set, wash the surface of the tile with a soft cloth dampened in water. Don't flood the surface with water.

Sometimes the grout between floor tiles becomes badly discolored from dirt and if you wish, you can remove it and then re-grout to give the floor a fresh "clean-looking" appearance.

It's an Idea

At the foot of the bed add an invisible foot rail and you'll be twice as happy with your Hollywood bed. Hidden by spread, it keeps blankets in place, makes bed-making easier, stops covers from sliding or pulling out. Harness around box spring anchors it.

Colored Shoes

Pumps and T-strap sandals made of white linen or white shantung are dyed to match a dress or a summer suit. Bright colored shoes also are being worn with white or dark colored costumes. Flower prints and many other colorful fabrics of silk, cotton and linens contribute to the festive appearance of the new shoe styles.

Guest Soap

GUEST SOAP is soap of a superior quality. It is much too good to be used by members of the family.

So, when guests are expected, a cake of guest soap will be laid out while the cake of ordinary family soap is temporarily retired to a shelf. Unless a guest remains for a longer than average visit the cake of soap will outlast the stay. And unless the guest spent more than the average time washing the cake of soap will hardly look used.

So long as the cake of soap hardly looks used it should do for another guest. A practical test is to see if it is still possible to read what is stamped on the soap or if trade-marks and other decorations continue to be visible.

If the cake of guest soap is to be preserved it must be retired as soon as the guest leaves the house and replaced by the family soap. Otherwise members of the family will be sure to use the guest soap, obliterating the writing and the decorations.

Members of the family do not take seriously the importance of safeguarding and extending the life of guest soap. They do not see why they should be considered inferior to the guests in the matter of soap. They will complain when they are denied its use and, if caught while using it and scolded, they will charge that a mountain is being made out of a molehill.

But at last the writing and the decorations will be worn away, the cake will look definitely used and therefore unsuitable for the next guest. Then members of the family will be told that they now can use the guest soap to their hearts' delight.

But the prouder members of the family will refuse. They will say they never wanted it anyway as guest soap is too smelly.

Meeting Ground for 40 Million Dreams!

It has been authoritatively estimated that over forty million people hope some day to own and drive a Cadillac car of their own.

And how gratifying it is to reflect on the number of those dreams that have already come true.

For the records show that—over the past decade—more than a million new Cadillacs were delivered to their proud and happy owners.

But perhaps the wonder should not be that Cadillac has proved a wise investment for so many American motorists—but that it would be a sound purchase for so many more.

In original cost, it is the rival of automobiles that make no pretension to Cadillac's great quality and eminence. In upkeep, it is a source of constant satisfaction. And in resale value, a Cadillac is simply without counterpart.

So if one of those forty million dreams is yours—you ought to visit your dealer soon.

He'll be happy to show you Cadillac's new Fleetwood coachcrafting—and to tell you about all the distinguished models for 1958, including the Eldorado Brougham.

We think you will be surprised to discover what an easy step it is from dreaming of a new Cadillac—to driving one!

A political cartoon by Ron. Three men in suits are seated around a table, playing cards. The man on the left is looking at a newspaper. The man in the middle is looking at his cards. The man on the right is looking at his cards. On the wall behind them is a map of the United States with the words "CITY ADAP" and "LIVING OFFSHORE" written on it. The signature "Ron" is in the bottom left corner.
